Wanted- 100,000 visitors

Fanfare across Atlantic

100,000.

That's the number of visitors Oshawa and area hopes to bring to town during Fanfare for Oshawa Week and the first ever Ontario Summer Games.

And with a little bit of luck they'll come from all over Ontario, the U.S., and other provinces and perhaps even other countries.

But how?

It's up to you!

In fact, Fanfare Chairman Terry Kelly says that if you do your share, the 100,000 total will probably be surpassed.

This Week is offering a fun way to participate in the "Fanfare with us" competition.

You do the inviting, let us know who you've invited and one lucky invitor-couple will win a trip on Air Canada to any one of 11 European cities plus $200 in spending money. The winner will have a choice of Moscow, Copenhagen, London, Zurich, Frankfurt, Prestwick, Vienna, Shannon, Brussels, Prague or Paris.

This Week's edition of April 25 will have the entry form. Eligible to enter are members of all 46,252 households where This Week is read each Wednesday. The winner will be announced on June 20.

So start getting your list of invitations ready.

April 25th is just around the corner. As of that date, the contest will open.

Watch the next two issues of This Week for additional information.

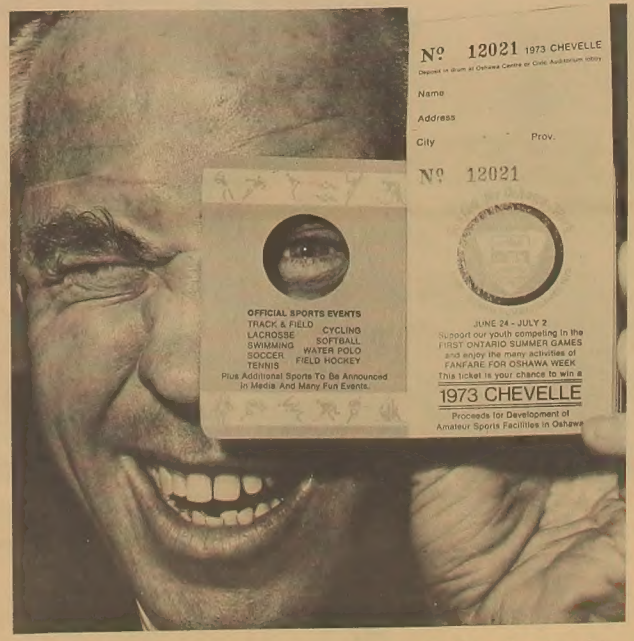
Vol. 4 No. 14 Wednesday April 4, 1973



It isn't Big Brother who's watching you, it's Terry Kelly, Fanfare For Oshawa chairman, peering through the cover of a passport that not only allows the bearer to attend the Ontario Summer Games on the July 1 weekend and Fanfare activities the preceding week, but also puts him in the running for a 1973 Chevelle.

Council votes itself a raise

A motion to increase the combined council annual salary by $45,000 zipped through the chambers Monday and was adopted.

Although there was no debate to the motion, presented by Ald. John DeHart and seconded by Ald. John Aker, Controllers Graham Coulter and Christine Thomas and Ald. Cliff Pilkey voted against it.

The move will raise controllers' salaries by $3,000 to $8,500 and aldermen's salaries by $3,000 to $5,500.

Since the mayor is a controller as well, his salary will increase to more than $25,000 with the raise, his $20,000 yearly salary as mayor and the money he is paid for sitting on the Public Utilities Commission and the Police Commission.

The decision to increase their salaries came after councillors met in two closed caucus meetings to discuss recommendations on the matter from the city internal auditor.

According to the auditor's survey of what other municipalities pay their elected officials, the mayor will make more than the mayors of Peterborough, Whitby, Etobicoke, Hamilton, London and Ottawa.

Controllers however will make less than those with the same positions in Etobicoke, North York, Scarborough, Hamilton and Ottawa.

After the matter was passed by council, Mayor Jim Potticary told reporters that with the "unfortunate system in Canada, councillors have to set their own salaries."

Ald. Pilkey said he was in favor of the increase as proposed but voted against the issue because "the timing was wrong".

"It should have been brought out during the budget," he remarked.

Oshawa Ratepayers' Council President Ed Kolodzie termed the raise "the rape of the citizens. . .hypocritical, shocking, and irresponsible".

"I'm questioning both the increase and council's procedure," he said. "During the election they all campaigned to hold the tax line. Saying that they're working overtime is just a crutch."

He said the ratepayers will pursue the matter at the Ontario Municipal Board level.

New format doubles your pleasure

By Peter Brouwer
Publisher

A few weeks ago I watched a small skirmish in my own family, when on a Wednesday I had forgotten to bring that extra copy of This Week home, and daughters I and II both wanted to read it at the same time.

Even though that isn't exactly what has brought about this week's change in the format of the paper, I hope it will cut down on the minor family quarrels that can develop when two members of one family want to read "the paper" and there's only one.

As you've discovered by now, there are two parts to This Week as of this issue—the old familiar "pocket size" (they call it tabloid in the trade) and the "big paper" (which they call Metro or Broadsheet in the trade).

We at This Week hope you'll like our new approach. If today were the first of April instead of the fourth, we might have our problems, and perhaps you'd conclude "something went wrong." As it is, nothing went wrong—we've done it on purpose.

For page one we've stuck to what some call a "zappy" tabloid cover page. It basically tells you what's inside.

For editorials and other opinion pieces we've made more room and for art work and features our capabilities in terms of space have doubled.

For advertisers, the new format provides new flexibility in layout and design.

If you have any suggestions as to further improvements of the paper, do drop us a line. Community newspapering is a two-way street. You can help us make This Week the best community newspaper in the country.

They make us an offer we ought to refuse

Following all the Academy Awards noise about The Godfather last week, we finally broke down and saw the film at the Oshawa Centre Theatre. We had read the book quite some time ago, and all the ticket office promotion and success of the Godfather had not convinced us to spend an evening on it.

Hollywood's AA then, is responsible for our wasted Friday night.

We say wasted, because, in our opinion, three prime hours of an evening out are wasted if they're spent on a huge array of obscenities.

"Obscene" is the word for the Godfather, whose one killing and murder scene (and we lost count) is even more gruesome and obscene than the next.

There will be a lot of people who disagree that the Godfather is obscene. The same policemen who last week had two books—the Happy Hooker and Xaviera!, by a writer of the same name—removed from bookshelves in Ontario never closed down a single performance of a much more gross and obscene nature than Hooker and X. We managed to wrestle our way mentally through a good portion of Hooker and got completely turned off.

If the Hooker versus the Godfather situation proves anything, it shows once and for all that our policemen are obviously the wrong people to be deciding what's obscene and what is not.

"How dare the police tell us what we can read," said MPP Morton Shulman last week, and he promptly set up his own Hooker and X bookstore at Queen's Park. That was good for a laugh. And the police showed good judgment in not nailing the dapper MPP-bookseller. Now if he held a private showing of the Godfather—that would be a different question!

Let the moral of this piece of writing be that we have all come down a long way, especially when we see parents treating their seven, eight- and nine-year-olds to watch with glee while the Godfather orders the brutal murder of human beings by the dozen.

We'd prefer our kids to mess about with Hookers and X's. They'll be sick to their stomachs before they've finished two chapters. As far as the Godfather is concerned, the film does ruin a kid's or an adult's respect for the most basic and fundamental premise this life has to offer—the sanctity of life itself.

Damn the Godfather!

Fanfare needs you

Now that the passport sale is off to a running start, Fanfare for Oshawa Week is in the countdown stages—with a little bit of luck and a lot of hard work not only Oshawa but the entire Ontariopolis Region is in for a fun time that last week in June and over the July 1 weekend.

A survey published elsewhere in this issue points up clearly the enthusiasm that already exists for the Fanfare Week.

We can all hope and work towards a huge boost in Fanfare enthusiasm as the next few weeks go by.

This Week, along with all the other organizations and businesses involved pledges to do its utmost to make Fanfare Week one that we'll all remember for many years to come.

To those Queen's Park officials who helped pick the first spot for the first ever Ontario Summer Games, we'd like to say "you'll find there isn't any place you would have rather held them."

So, Fanfare to you!

Now all it will take is a move to the East

A couple of weeks ago we criticized Queen's Park for not putting its money where its mouth is in the then proposed super block of government offices for downtown Toronto.

Just last week Priemier Davis announced the 9.8 acre superblock deal was off. Shades of another Spadina? Maybe so. The Premier is obviously a strong believer in the fact that even if a project is on the way to completion—in the case of superblock, 80 per cent of the land had already been assembled by the province—the people's wishes must come before grandiose schemes by even more grandiose politicians, be they for miles and miles of concrete highways or acre upon acre of concrete office buildings.

Good for you, Mr. Premier!

Meanwhile, what about these 6,500 civil servants the Provincial Government wants to house in more suitable working space? Move some of them to Oshawa, we suggest, and we know Oshawa's MPP Charlie McIlveen is pushing for just that.

Oshawa is an obvious choice for a number of provincial government departments. And it's not just a question of the city of Oshawa needing the boost of some government building "largesse" for its panting downtown heart.

Queen's Park needs Oshawa at the centre of the new Ontariopolis Region as much as Oshawa needs Queen's Park. If Ontariopolis is going to be a booming and viable growth area, it needs at its centre a booming and viable city.

So, do look east, Mr. Premier!

Quite apart from the economic considerations, the performance mentally and physically of your civil servants will no doubt improve, what with all that Ontariopolis air that is so much cleaner and healthier than the smog that hangs over the City of Toronto.

Psalms in the mall and printin'

by peter brouwer

I can just see him sit there with his long, long greasy hair, his suede desert boots, the old blue navy coat, a day's growth of stubble on his weary countenance—sitting there right smack in the middle of the Four Corners in Oshawa or on Whitby's main drag or out there somewhere in the Pickering Mall, reading the 23rd Psalm.

Don't go away—I'll explain. Early one morning last week there was this character (see paragraph one) sitting in the glorious morning sunshine on a bench in Ottawa's Sparks Street Mall, reciting from a worn out Old Testament one Psalm after another.

Just when I got there he was half way through the 23rd. And could he read! His voice was a combination Billy Graham—Charlton Heston—Burl Ives and his appearance something like I've always imagined Elijah, the Old Testament prophet to have looked like.

When he got to the part about "thou anointest my head with oil," I tapped him on the shoulder and asked what it was all about, and who he was with. He wouldn't stop. He simply read on: "My cup runneth over."

You read so much serious stuff both in this paper and everywhere else, I thought I'd pass on this highlight of the Ottawa trip first, rather than digging right in to have you all worked up over national unity and serious interviews with our top political brass, ecology, Vietnam, and how much of our natural resources we should or should not sell. All that can wait until next week.

Then there is the second "highlight" of my visit to the capital. A veteran politician passed it on during a lunchbreak in the parliamentary restaurant.

I can't give you the politician's name for fear of getting involved in a libel suit, all of which you will appreciate (hopefully) when you get to the end of this piece.

There was this good looking George who was parachuted into a rural riding and set up headquarters in a deserted funeral home.

As is the case with a lot of parachute candidates, he came well prepared. He'd had all kinds of literature printed well in advance, and he was ready for the onslaught, having been assured many weeks before nomination day that 'it' was his.

Across the way from his funeral headquarters which was quickly transformed into a glittering loud mass of color and banners and huge photographs of "him" and "his leader", there was this small printing-shop-combination-weekly-newspaper.

Everyone in the village read it faithfully. All 260 souls.

With six weeks to go to election day, every issue of the paper was of extreme importance to George. (Remember George?) So picture George walking in with his ad.

In an eight by eight dingy little room—the front office—he meets the publisher-editor-advertising-manager and hands him this big ad.

The p-e-a-m takes a disparaging glance at the material handed in by George, takes a swig from his 40-ouncer which is standing by in his waste basket like old faithful, and offers a swig to George. George says no thanks. "Not this early."

Then p-e-a-m asks, "You doin' any printin'?" And George says it has all been done in the city, whereupon p-e-a-m retorts "You'd better do some printin' here, or somehow your ad won't quite make it."

George walks out. He's mad. He'll teach that so and so. He won't pay for the ad if it doesn't come out the way he's planned it!

Sure enough, two days later the village bugle appears and half of George's ad is missing.

George returns the day after with next week's ad.

"I knew you'd be back," says p-e-a-m. "They all do. Just gimme the printin' and you'll be surprised about the job we'll do on the ad."

Anyway, all this is supposed to be one reason why the cost of elections is so high.

Thus far there is still no definite word from Queen's Park about the proposed torch-relay race of members of the legislature to mark the official opening of the first Ontario Summer Games in Olympic style. MPP Charlie McIlveen reports that Premier Davis is afraid his runners wouldn't make it to Oshawa by the time the Games are over on July 2.

There's a new business in the area that is doing a booming trade affixing fake eye lashes and fingernails to the fairer sex in a more or less permanent way that looks like the real thing. One reader informs us though that the salesgirl forgot to remind her that the fake nails have to be "filled in" every three or four weeks as the real nails grow out. This sets her back $8 a visit—and will add up to more than $125 a year!

One of the Rodin statues at the recent exhibit at the McLaughlin Art Gallery in Oshawa whispered to one of our staff writers that the gallery has been told it's a no-no to display any nudes. One would hope that the Ontario Safety League is more up-to-date with its safety rules than it is with its literature. The association's WINTER bulletin arrived the other day, the 29th of March as a matter of fact—one week into spring.

If libraries in the area truly believe that their "raison d'etre" is to serve the residents of the community, why are they closed on Sundays, one of the few days that a family can get together for an outing? ●

Are the Ontario Liberals admitting that they hired a magician of the likes of Al Capp's Evil Eye Fleegle to sway the voters in the two recent byelections they won? Double Whammy is the way the headline in their latest bulletin labels the victories.

Life in the gutter replaces Lorna Doone

by tom douglas

It used to be that when a person curled up in his favorite armchair in the evening to read a good book, it would be something by Pearl S. Buck or Robert Benchley or Will and Ariel Durant.

A good adventure novel or a humorous one or a big fat tome on the dawn of civilization.

How times have changed. Now it's The Happy Hooker or The Valachi Papers or a book by Clifford Irving on how he tried to bilk a publisher and the general public by faking interviews with the elusive Howard Hughes.

No more the Tugboat Annie series from The Saturday Evening Post or Norman Vincent Peale's Power of Positive Thinking. Now we're into the confessional type of book where we vicariously rub shoulders, or what have you, with Mafia mobsters, prostitutes and swindlers.

People who at one time might have gotten pleasure out of becoming absorbed in the pages of the Readers Digest Condensed Books now line up at the bookstores (those that haven't been raided by crusading politicians) to buy books written by ex-employees of the Queen or Jackie Kennedy, who spent most of their time peeking through keyholes and rifling bureau drawers.

For some reason, our reading appetites are only sated these days by books that show us the seamy side of life. We want to be titilated, not given a story with a moral or a happy ending.

And just when it seems our society has hit the bottom of the literary barrel where taste is concerned, a new low is reached with the publication of the memoirs of another of mankind's sewer dwellers.

However, who am I to pontificate? Rather, like the carny operator who searched the world over for freaks to fill his sideshow, why not give the public what it wants?

I figure I'll sneak back to the office late at night after everybody has gone home—everyone that is except Smokey Raebeht, our cub reporter who works odd hours—and start cranking out the books on our presses.

I've already contacted Martin Bormann in Argentina and he has agreed to send me his autobiography entitled How To Make Lampshades For Fun and Profit.

Christine Keeler is hard at work pounding out her life story which we figure we'll call Cabinet-making and Other Ways To Spend Those Leisure Hours.

Liberace has almost completed what we feel positive will be a real blockbuster. It's all about the Mafia's attempts to muscle in on his act. It's entitled The Fairy Godfather.

Among the lesser lights, there's the confessions of an encyclopedia salesman, another book about what really happens at those closed meetings of Oshawa city council and one about the mad, carefree life Toronto commuters enjoy, entitled Sex on the GO.

Flood victims provided Sunday entertainment

Emergencies bring out the best and the worst in people and the flooding along Lake Ontario over the weekend was no exception.

While a handful of residents in the area fought desperately to stem the onslaught of battering waves whipped up by strong winds, countless hundreds of others from the Ontariopolis region stood by and watched.

Sunday's entertainment, especially for families in Oshawa, was a drive down to the lakefront where mom and dad and the kids could sit snug in their cars while lakeshore residents, some of them elderly men and others young girls, filled sandbags and dragged them to the shoreline in hopes of averting a disaster.

All that was missing was hawker with a pushcart ambling up and down the line of cars selling peanuts and hotdogs.

Perhaps most of the spectators felt that there was no serious risk of anyone's house being washed away by the waves so that it was great fun to watch those characters out there wading around in the surf.

But at least one resident, Mrs. Elsie Couture, had to be evacuated from her home at the foot of Simcoe Street in Oshawa because there were at least four inches of water covering the floor.

On the positive side of things, residents along the lakeshore, whether their homes were in danger or not, banded together to help with sandbagging, bulldozing and using everything from cement blocks to large pieces of plywood to try to hold back the waves.

And yet, several Stone Street residents had to stop what they were doing and erect barriers at the front gates of their homes to stop curiosity-seekers from trampling across their lawns.

It's extremely unfortunate that in our so-called civilized society one person's misfortune elicits the same reaction from others as did the bloody spectacles staged in Rome's Coliseum 2,000 years ago.

High water levels in Lake Ontario last weekend brought out the best and the worst in people as residents on Oshawa's lakefront banded together to carry out sandbagging operations while people from other areas of the city sat by in their cars watching them. In the photo above, Ald. Mike Breaugh checks out the situation with Bill Joyce, owner of several endangered homes. The photo below shows a makeshift breakwall at the foot of Stone Street.

Clarke is ready to raise a little hell with Maggie

Sir,

Regarding your editorial concerning the propensity of the present City Council to cloak its momentous discussions on affairs of state with a veil of secrecy, I must say that this is one of the rare occasions when I could not agree with you more.

It appears to be a congenital defect in the psychological makeup of the politician, particularly those in the lower echelons of municipal government, to, immediately upon assuming office, cast aside the image of the humble public servant Dr. Jekyll and become a superalious, sanctimonious, self satisfied, pompous, all-knowing Mr. Hyde, who on very special occasions condescends to descend from Olympus to receive the exclamation of the populace.

Now it surprises me not at all that his Worship, the most Eminent and Illustrious James Potticary, Mayor of our fair city, self-styled Censor and Defender of the Public Morality, plus a gaggle of some lesser lights in his administration, should adopt such a self-righteous attitude.

It pains me however to confess that I, as a fervent and loyal disciple of all things NDP (and may David Lewis and Abe Taylor in their infinite mercy forgive me for saying so) am greatly perturbed to observe that our Labor members of council appear to have fallen victim to a like malady.

I can only hope that they at least will fulfill my previous faith in their judgment and come back to earth by insisting that all City business, which is your business and my business because we my friend are paying the shot, should be conducted in public and not behind closed doors as has too often been the case in the past.

Contrary to what some of our esteemed aldermen would appear to believe we the public are not such morons as to be totally incapable of any understanding of the workings of government.

We fully appreciate that there are certain instances where it would not be in the public interest to have discussion other than in camera.

However to apply this yardstick to a situation where council must sit behind closed doors to debate on whether to permit the press to report on proceedings, is nothing short of ridiculous.

Its high time Potticary & Co. got down from their high horse and gave the public credit for at least some little intelligence.

I think it might be a splendid idea if Ed. Kolodzee, Doug Wilson, Maggie Shaw et al, would proceed down to City Hall one fine evening and raise a little hell, to assist them in such an endeavour.

So boys if you need me the number is in the book. I await the call to arms.

Question: Do you suppose they will hold a meeting in camera to decide whether or not to let us in?

S. Clarke

Rolling pin ready

Sir:

It's encouraging to know that Ontario riding's federal member, Norman Cafik, is at last taking some interest in the welfare of his constituents by replying to a letter to the editor.

If he would only give us the truth instead of twistings of truth, some constituents might believe that his four-vote majority was well earned.

Firstly, Mr. Cafik's written pot-shots aimed at individuals appear to be part of his government's policy these days.

Mr. Gervis Black, parliamentary secretary to the Minister of Transport, has done exactly the same thing recently, when in a letter to Dr. Godfrey, Chairman of People Or Planes, he complained about my writing so many letters which asked so many questions.

Surely, in any democracy, it is the right of the individual to question government without being considered a nuisance?

Frankly, I also object to Mr. Cafik assuming that my intelligence should be on the same level as his own—if it were, half the people in Ontario riding would be competing for his parliamentary seat.

Secondly, Mr. Cafik mentioned an "enquiry". If he doesn't realize that what he said in his letter is only a half truth, then he shouldn't be our representative.

The enquiry will be into the transportation needs of southern Ontario and how the Pickering site can best be used—not into whether they need the Pickering site at all.

That is rather cold comfort to the hundreds of people who will be turfed out of their homes and off their farms—of which they have already been deprived of ownership without payment.

In suggesting that the airport question has "been flogged enough", why does Mr. Cafik even consider that his kind of enquiry is required at all?

Probably because he fully knows that its terms are not as he purports them to be in his letter.

Unfortunately, I cannot threaten Mr. Cafik with shifting my vote elsewhere. I did that after may first error in helping to elect him to the House of Commons.

Still, I can try to persuade others and will do so when an election is called. My vote will go to any political party which promises to halt airport expropriation immediately and allow a proper enquiry into the need for a second airport.

Until that time, if Mr. Cafik or any person representing him or his government, sets foot on my land without just cause (i.e. the proven need for an airport), I will use every means in my power to deter them.

The pen might be mightier than the sword, but a heavy pine rolling pin can have a great deal of effect on even the thickest of skulls.

Farmers raped?

Sir:

Between the federal and provincial houses this area is represented by three of Canada's four political parties (eg. Cafik, Liberal, Broadbent, N.D.P.; and Dymond P.C.).

I am amazed that not one of them has chosen to tell us the truth about regionalization.

I am with the fourth party (Social Credit) and it looks like the job has been left up to us.

Regionalization is made necessary as a temporary solution to four main problems.

1. Our system is based on debt. In order to grow, a city must borrow and charge the interest to taxpayers.

2. Industrial development requires added services such as sewers and transportation systems. Extra borrowing is done to pay for these services.

3. Expansion that is too fast, such as in Oshawa and Whitby, quickly raises local taxes as far as they can go and reduces the cities' credit.

4. Most of the lawyer-politicians who sit on the government side at Queen's Park represent big debt-ridden cities.

Regionalization is a way of spreading the burden more thinly and expanding the borrowing power.

Farmers in Pickering, Beach and Darlington will soon be expected to pay interest on money borrowed for Oshawa's sewers and Whitby's garbage dump.

Strange. Ottawa recently gave a $60 million loan to an Asian country.

But Oshawa has to borrow and con neighbouring farmers into paying the interest.

Social Credit says that if foreign powers can borrow interest free then Canadian cities should have the same privilege.

With Real Caouette as Prime Minister there would be no need for Queen's Park to rape farming communities in order to meet the credit needs of cities.

Now I wonder why the other parties didn't mention that?

Bruce Arnold
Port Perry

Big bad Bill?

Sir:

It would appear that the people of Ontario are finally becoming aware of the glaring inadequacies and grievous faults of our Tory government at Queen's Park.

The two stunning Liberal victories in the recent by-elections in Toronto St. George riding and Huron riding clearly indicate that people are becoming seriously disenchanted with a government that has showed a totally disgraceful lack of regard for the people of this province.

This disenchantment with the government has spread throughout all segments of society. Toronto St. George riding is one of the most socially complex in the province taking in the lower income Jamestown district and then moving northward through the Yonge Street business area and finally ending in a higher income apartment and townhouse area.

Huron is mainly a rural farming community.

The results of the by-elections to me, show a strong discontent with the government.

I am just wondering what the results would have been if the auditor general's report which had been kept from the scrutiny of the general public for many years by order of the government, had been released a couple of weeks earlier.

Perhaps the Tory candidates would have asked to have their names taken off the election ballot.

The auditor general's report clearly indicates the smugness and arrogance of the government by the way they so inexcusably mismanaged the taxpayers' money. The squandering of 55-million in health care benefits alone is an unforgivable rip-off on us.

I would go as far as to suggest that if the minister of health, along with Ontario's treasurer, cannot manage their departments any better, the time has come for them to resign and give the post to someone who can.

A few weeks ago, the Tories finally decided to appoint a commission to investigate the scandalous state of the lathing and construction industry. Dr. Morton Shulman of the NDP suggested that two years ago, but it fell on deaf government ears at the time. (I suppose the Tories are slow learners).

It seems that the Tories prefer to ignore these problems and hope they will go away rather than offer workable solutions.

I hope that your paper doesn't edit this letter as it is intended as what I feel is a fair criticism of the Ontario Conservative Party.

If any Conservatives would like to rebuke what I have said I'd be most interested to hear about it.

All I can say in conclusion is, Big Blue Machine watch out that you don't get mashed cause the people are awakening.

More muscle

Sir:

This morning in The Globe and Mail, a Canadian Press release says 2 April, 73, is "S" Day. (Suspension Day) for more than 100,000 motorists who are in default of 13 millions of dollars in unpaid fines.

So there must be the same amount of motorists who are in default of parking fines.

Each municipality must be losing a whopping pile of money for the already overburdened municipal taxpayer is now providing free daraging on our streets for motorists who couldn't care less.

Obstructing fire hydrants, parking too close to the corner, parking in no parking areas, obstructing driveway entrances, parking over pedestrian sidewalks, parking over crosswalks are against local by-laws.

They prevent the smooth flow of traffic. They are all a menace to public safety and should be treated as such both under the Highway traffic act and municipal by-laws. Technically they are moving violations.

Starting 2 April, 73, all municipal police forces will be handed the job of rounding up these 100,000 delinquent motorists.

They will do it but at extra cost to the local taxpayers.

According to Mr. Bales, 3.6 million tax paying motorists are carrying the load for 100,000 motorists who are delinquent.

Percentagewise it is the same with parking. Now is the time for new legislation.

Chronicles of Ontariopolis

And it came to pass on the twentieth day of the third month of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy three that the High and Mighty William of Ont called unto himself his servants and those who spoke for the peoples of the lands and regions of Ont upon the Holy Mountain of Qupee, among whom there were Charles the Physician of the Land of Osh and William the farmer who spoke for the Jax and the Pickets and some of the ones that were afar off before the throne of the H. and M.

And the occasion of the calling unto himself of his servants and those who would rather not serve him, was the third gathering together of the twenty ninth conclave of the wise men and rulers of the lands and regions of Ont.

And from the throne were heard the words and edicts of the H and M William of Ont as he spoke through the elgee saying, behold there will be unto the people eleven items of great joy, and among these he showed unto those who were gathered before his throne an oasis of grass, seventy-five miles in length, reaching from the land of Dun unto the Land of Osh. And places there were where the green would be six miles in width.

Thus did the third gathering of the twenty ninth conclave of William of Ont and his rulers, servants, wise and unwise men have a beginning.

And not a helluva lot came forth that shattered the tranquility of the Chronicler of Ontariopolis, until in the last week of the third month of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy three, there arose from among the men who were thus seated before the throne of the H and M Bill, a physician named Mort. Now Mort the Physician had been unto the H and M William of Ont, yea even unto the High and Mighty John before him like unto an abomination, in that he had brought forth much mud which he had caused to be ending up in their eyes.

And Mort the Physician girded what loins he did have and he arose and spoke saying the gendarmes of the lands and nations of Ont ought not to be those who say wherewithal we occupy our minds.

Moreover did Mort the Physician speak saying he was angered because the gendarmes in some of the regions of the lands of Ont had taken off the shelves of the sellers of books the works of her who said she hooked happily, and which works were proving to the people of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy three that more profit cometh unto her who worketh vertically than unto her who laboureth forth horizontally.

Thus did Mort the Physician defy the gendarmes and he made available unto his fellow wise men the works of her who said she hooked happily.

And thus all was well upon the Holy Mountain of Qupee and the people marvelled at the things wrought by the wisemen and the rulers of the regions of the lands of Ont.

And a woman from the low lands, who figures prominently in verse seven, lifted up her countenance and what-have-you and spoke saying, there isn't any place I'd rather be, what with Mort the Physician as the champion of my cause.

Amen. for now

A new Chevelle to drive you to the airport--two Fanfare prizes

Aside from the other "hoopla" Terry Kelly and his Fanfare committee are planning, there is also a chance for the public to win an Oshawa-made 1973 Chevelle

At a press conference Tuesday, Kelly, Ontario Games chairman, announced that special Fanfare Week passports will be on sale throughout Oshawa for $1

Besides allowing the bearer admission to any of the numerous events planned for the week June 24 to July 2, the passport in part will also be a raffle ticket for the car at no extra cost

Beginning tonight, the passports will be sold door to door by members and associates of the Kinsmen Club. They will also be on sale at various locations in the city, including the banks, the UAW Hall, City Hall and other places

The passports will also be sold continuously in the Oshawa Centre just outside Eaton's where the car will be on display

Passport purchasers are asked to fill in the raffle form and deposit it in the drum at the Oshawa Centre or the Civic Auditorium lobby

The passport will entitle the bearer admission to any of the official sports events, as well as a variety of concerts, plays and daily events that are still in the planning

Although awaiting official confirmation, Kelly said it is hoped the passports will also allow entry to the Automotive Museum and Parkwood during regulated times

"It must be clearly understood that the passport doesn't entitle a person to a seat at any one event," Kelly said

That would be impossible It will be worked on a first-come, first-served basis

He said proceeds from the passports will go towards development of amateur sports facilities in Oshawa

As an added attraction to Fanfare, This Week will be contributing a trip to any one of 11 principal European cities on Air Canada's world-wide flight path to one of its readers

Those who fill out a special coupon in our April 25 issue indicating they have invited someone to Oshawa for the festivities are eligible for the trip and $200 spending money

Fanfare chairman Terry Kelly has much to blow his horn about as plans for the event get into high gear.

Please return pup

Sir:

You know, I've always loved dogs and I guess that's because I grew up with them

It's kind of funny how you get attached to them. They become a part of your life

When you hurt, they hurt with you and it works the same in reverse

They know when you're sad and when nobody else can cheer you up, who comes to the rescue but your dog?

When you make mistakes and the whole world seems like it's on your back, who sticks right beside you through the toughest of times, but your dog? Who is it you become so proud of when you show off all his tricks, to your friends, and you boast about all over town, but your dog?

And when he does the things wrong that dogs sometimes do, like get into the garbage, or mess in the house, who spanks him and tells him what a bad dog he is but you?

Well, I had a very special, to me and my wife, dog, but he's gone now and it has left us very sad

You see on March 27, 1973 at about 8:30 p.m. my dog was taken from me while I was at the Midtown Mall in Oshawa

I was in the Shoppers Drug Mart buying a card, and when I came out he was gone I looked and looked but to no avail

He is a small pup about 2½ months old He's brown with black markings on his face He is a very friendly pup that answers to the name of Skippy

Please, I love that dog He means everything to me

Maybe you saw him that night, or maybe you thought he was a stray dog, and you took him home

If you know anything about him or if you have him please give me a call, for even if you have him and don't plan on returning him just let me know he's alright

I will pay a reward to get him back. So please think about it and help me find him

Cameron the problem

Sir:

I address this letter to Al Cameron who feels all gun owners should throw their guns in the junk pile, because it may save someones life

Mr Cameron you may have a very valid point, as a gun owner with several guns in my gun rack, I will throw all my guns in the junk pile if you Mr. Cameron will join me in throwing your car, your boat and motor, your snowmobile and any other potentially dangerous item in your home in the junk pile along with my guns

May I suggest that if no one in the world owned a gun, people would still continue to murder people with knives, axes clubs etc just as they did before guns were known to mankind

Gun owners are not unlike anyone else in our society. Just as there are drivers who are unfit and incapable of practising safe driving, so there are gun owners who should not be allowed to use guns

For every person who meets death at the hands of someone with a gun, there are thousands killed by other means, such as boating accidents

Should we then forbid people to go boating, should we quit manufacturing knives and axes in case someone somewhere should decide to use one as a weapon against his fellow man

Think about it Mr Cameron and perhaps you will agree the problem in our society is not guns. Could it be the problem is people Mr Cameron

Supports meat boycott

Sir:

I have been listening to the radio reports of the meat boycott, which will take place in the first week of April. I hope people will support it, though I think it will bring only temporary success

Few other countries in the world consume as much meat as we do. Due to the increase in the cost of meat, the requirements of Canada's Food Guide are no longer possible for the average family to meet

Education is necessary to inform people of alternatives. I have not cooked meat for over two months. We are working on forgetting about that lifelong, traditional meat, potato, and vegetable plate

I have been using eggs, cheese, milk, rice, yogurt, nuts, vegetables, grains, beans and lentils. Combinations of these foods afford more variety than I thought possible

The consumer must learn to be more crafty than the manufacturer. Just how much you are paying for that prepackaged food and what it contains can be learned from The Great American Food Hoax, available from the library

A prime example of the waste of the consumer's dollar is artificial orange crystals at 1½¢ per ounce. Real orange juice costs 8/10¢ per ounce and contains twice the vitamin C

We would all help to stop the soaring prices, if we got a lot of unnecessary items off the shelves, by refusing to buy them

I hope that my letter will be printed and that it will encourage people to fight, not only high prices, but for the most important issues of all, quality and purity of foods

Many "big names" will run for region seats says DeHart

Ald John DeHart

City council should be able to close the doors when it doesn't want to be overheard, according to Alderman John DeHart

A closed meeting of city council last week discussed the present and future salaries of councillors, board and committee members, and that's the way it should be, he says.

"Where any change in salary is being discussed it should be behind closed doors and I don't think even the press can argue that." DeHart says "Aldermen have got to let their hair down There are certain things he should be allowed to say without being misquoted

The veteran councillor of two previous administrations admits that it is really "hard to determine" when city business should be made public and when it should not

I don't think most meetings should be held behind closed doors to be honest with you." he says after a moment's thought. "All the regional government meetings should have been opened once the guidelines were laid down

The closed council meeting was a direct result of one of DeHart's motions that called for a re-examination of the honorariums currently being paid to councillors and civilian board or committee members

"People are getting paid on some committees while some are not." DeHart explained. "I think people's time is just as important as other people's time

As a matter of fact, DeHart says the biggest problem at city hall right now is the committee system

'There's been a lack of liaison between the various departments – not just this year – it's been there for years," he says

He adds that instead of arguing which issue goes before which committee councillors should sit down and discuss where they are going wrong and what can be done to improve the system

The trouble is he says, each individual committee thinks only of its problems instead of thinking about the overall betterment of Oshawa

DeHart says he can see no real improvement at city hall since he was a councillor three years ago. Citizens, he claims are still experiencing a lack of communications at the city level, and sometimes so is he

If I can't get an answer from city hall, how can the average guy?" DeHart asks "There has to be a better way to funnel complaints to the city."

The alderman, who says he is considering running for a regional government seat but won't make a decision until the regional legislation is handed down, says council's priority this year should be getting a twin pad arena in the east end and getting an overpass built at the Park Road crossing

"All council members have been bogged down from regional government and we've worked hard on it," he says "We haven't had time to discuss what are Oshawa's priorities but I think you'll see some good soul searching going to be done."

DeHart predicts this will be an exciting year in the council chambers because a lot of politicking will be done as a result of the closeness of the next election.

He claims there will be a lot of "big names" running for Oshawa regional government seats, and the rookie politicians are going to be saying a lot to get their names before the public

He predicts that from the 17 members already on council plus a few of the defeated candidates and former councillors there will be 15 in the regional ring playing musical chairs with the voters for 11 seats

"I suspect big names are coming for regional council so this is the time some of the unknowns have to make their mark " DeHart says

DeHart sees an end to wars including cold one

Alderman John DeHart wants to go to Mars

Unlike previous aldermen who have been interviewed and would like to go back in time, DeHart says he doesn't want to go back, he wants to go ahead into the future

What has gone on in the past has gone," he says. "I'm an optimist."

DeHart predicts that in the next 20 to 30 years we are all going to see a great change in the world and its outlook

The first innovation he foresees is a North American common market, not unlike the one currently in operation in Europe

'We have got to have good relations with the United States and Mexico." he says. "The west is going to become a real power block in the world —more than it is now

His next observation is that because China is becoming more sophisticated, the cold war between communist and democratic countries will die

And his third and final gaze into the future says it all: "Everyone realizes that in the next war if we use atomic bombs everyone is gone", and so, he says, war will die too

Although he says he is quite happy being himself, if he had the chance to be avone else in the world, he would have liked to have been Harry Truman

You always knew where he stood." DeHart says of the former U.S president. "He was not a phony man and not a politician. He was truly one of the greatest statesmen the U.S will ever know "

The alderman claims there is a great difference between a statesman and a politician, and that is the difference between telling the truth and saving maybe

'I think people would rather have other people tell them the truth than maybes, and this distinguishes the politician from the statesman " he says. "Many may not like what you say, but at least they'll respect it

DeHart says when he tells a person where he stands, that person knows he'll have to move and stand somewhere else if he doesn't like being told the truth

The alderman says he first became interested in politics when in 1964 he helped form the Lake Vista Ratepayers Association and was elected president of the group

He first ran for public office in 1966 but was defeated. During his second time around in 1967, he was elected to a seat on city council

In 1968 I ran for mayor but I lost in a three-way race," he recalls

The next time I got on and in the next one I ran for board of control and it turned into a cliff hanger I lost that one too

Since 1964 he has become quite active in all forms of politics until now his rec room wall is covered with Robert Stanfield posters and Charlie McIlveen stickers—but he still won't tell you which party he supports!

It has nothing to do with municipal politics anyway," he says "I mainly feel with politics you can do good for many people and many areas

Ald. John DeHart won't say who his political heroes are but the walls of his den are plastered with Robert Stanfield posters and Charlie McIlveen stickers.

A lot of people think because you belong to the 'Big Blue Machine' you don't care It's not true "

Being a councillor this year has changed some of his views. DeHart was initially a proponent of the city having a ward system

Now I think we should forego the ward system this time around until we have about three years of region government under our belt." he says. "Then we can always go back and look at it. I think with the population then we'll need it

WHAT IS A PRESCRIPTION

That small scrap of paper with writing on it that you sometimes do not understand can sometimes be the difference between a fast recovery and a lingering illness

Actually, a prescription is a valuable document Doctors study over ten years to be able to write them, pharmacies, five or more years to learn about them and how to dispense them and drug companies sometimes spend millions of dollars to discover and perfect the drugs in them. The amount all this knowledge costs can save you sickness time and even your life

"A great many people have chosen us to be their personal family pharmacy. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty, and will do all we ethically can to live up to it. We welcome requests for delivery service".

Elizabeth panics every time phone rings

By Jane Milne
Staff Writer

The ring of the telephone used to be a welcoming sound to Elizabeth who is alone a great deal of the time and has no close neighbors

Now, the ringing has become one of fear

Elizabeth is one of the more than 50 Oshawa area residents who receive annoying phone calls each month.

"There are three types of annoying phone calls, "says G. R. Robertson, district manager of Central Ontario District, Bell Canada. "They are the sales or survy type of calls, nuisance calls such as the ones made by children and the more serious threatening or obscene calls."

He says that once the telephone customer calls the business office, the service representative tries to evaluate what type of call has been annoying the person and then goes about having the calls stopped

"With the more serious types of calls, we recommend that the customer get involved with the police immediately," says Robertson. "Once in the area of threatening and abusive type calls, it becomes more than we can handle on our own without law enforcement."

He says that Bell has representatives who are trained to investigate such complaints but that quite often the customer has limited information in helping the investigator

"Some annoyance calls might only be an isolated incident, therefore we ask the customer to try and document the calls which will give their times and regularity," he says.

Averaging 50 to 60 complaints from Oshawa and area per month, the calls, says Robertson, will generally increase when children are out of school during holidays

"The calls we are required to take action on number about 20 in a month and we do have equipment that will allow us to trace the call to the source where it originated."

by jane milne

In his experience of 25 years with the telephone company, Robertson says that the sources of calls cover a variety of people from unsupervised children, to misguided or frustrated people to the mentally ill.

In the more sophisticated offices, computers can be programmed to watch for certain calls and give the sources within minutes.

"The repeat type of calls can give the company a chance to put equipment right on the customer's phone and the trace can be made even after the caller has hung up by the victim leaving his phone off the hook," he says

A fair number of nuisance calls can come from people known to the victim and can include close acquaintances, neighbors or fellow employees.

"These calls are a fairly expensive proposition for our company," he says. "Equipment and manpower is costly and often results in bringing trained personnel to other areas on an over-time basis."

As far as the prosecution of people who use the telephone to irritate or harass others, Robertson says that the more serious ones are left up to the victim and the police and that in the case of nuisance calls made for example by children, it is merely a matter of bringing the problem to the parents' attention

Bell Canada gives the following suggestions to customers who receive annoying calls

- Always use the telephone on your terms; not those of the caller Don't talk to anybody unless you want to
- Ask the caller to identify himself. When a voice asks, "Who is this?" don't tell him, instead ask, "What number did you call?" or "Who do you want?" If the call isn't legitimate, that very likely will end it
- Instruct your children and their baby-sitter never to talk on the phone to anybody they don't positively recognize. An innocent comment like "Daddy's out of town" could be helpful to a burglar. Teach them to ask for the number so somebody can call back later
- If it's the kind of caller who remains silent after you answer, hang up! Some want to listen, just to see what you'll do, particularly to see if you'll be angry. It isn't much fun listening to a dead line.

For the more serious types of calls, Bell recommends:

- As with the milder nuisance calls, this caller might remain silent for a little while. Don't give him a chance to get started Hang up!
- If a caller makes any obscene or suggestive remark, hang up! He'd like nothing better than for you to demand to know who he is, or to ask repeatedly what he wants.

"These calls are certainly an ongoing problem," syas Robertson. "I think the fact that we have been able to help our customers has tended to curb the problem and I hope minimize it."

Obscene callers enjoy the shock value of calling in the dead of night.

Blood clinic Thursday

In only 15 minutes, you can save the life of a new-born baby, a husband and father who has been injured on the job or a little girl who has waited for an operation which will allow her to run and play with other children.

In only 15 minutes, you can give your blood Thursday at St. Gregory's Auditorium, Simcoe Street North where the Oshawa blood donor service will be in operation.

"It is certainly easy to give blood," says Leslie Kehoe, a regular donor since the age of 18. "It takes less time to give blood than to wait to see your doctor in his office."

Kehoe has worked in hospitals and has seen his mother receive blood during illnesses so that he knows the importance of having a good supply of the life-giving fluid on hand.

Now 25 and married with three children, the 25-year-old Gen-Auto Shippers employee says "Giving blood is so simple, if you just take the time out"

Arnold Goose, chief of the Mississaugas, mourns dying out of his culture

By Jane Milne
Staff Writer

"The term person means an individual other than an Indian."—Indian Act of 1880, Section 12.

Although this phrase is not found in subsequent Indian Acts, the attitude which produced it is still subtly in evidence today

Arnold Goose, Chief of the Mississauga of Scugog, has been working with other Indians to change and up-date the act

"I am a member of the Union of Ontario Indians and we are working on the Indian Act right now," he says. "There are no definite conclusions yet but I believe we will be meeting in Ottawa in August."

There are now 43 Indians on the Scugog Reserve with some families having moved recently to Oshawa, Whitby, Peterborough, Toronto and as far away as Yellowknife

"They come down once in a while but we're getting smaller all the time," he says.

He attributes the small number of his band, which at its peak reached 73, to the desire of the younger members to go out on their own

Once an Indian leaves the reservation, he requests an enfranchisement which requires the consent of the band council before being forwarded to the local superintendent and then on to Ottawa.

Recently a young boy came to Chief Goose with such a request. "I tried to get him to stay because once he is out on his own he can never come back. He is classed as white It is foolish to become enfranchised because if he loses his job, he will have no place to go," he says.

An Indian who becomes enfranchised loses his treaty status. An Indian woman who marries a white man or an enfranchised Indian loses her Indian status and is also removed from the "list."

Chief Arnold Goose and his grandson, Chuckie

The list, which contains the names and numbers of all the Indians in Canada, is referred to officially as the Register. Any Indian whose name does not appear on the Register is not considered a "pure-blood Indian."

"It's all right for an Indian girl to enfranchise," he says. "She can get married to a member of another band and regain status as a member of his band."

One of the areas of the Indian Act which Chief Goose and other Indian leaders are working on is the right of Indian women to retain their status, regardless of who they marry.

"In the Leval case, a woman married off the reserve to a non-Indian and then her husband left her," he says She put in a claim to get back because she has no place to go. When she married a non-Indian she was automatically enfranchised."

Chief Goose says he is in favor of letting her back on the reserve but that many Indians argue that they would have so many women coming back to reserves, it would create problems.

"If one gets back in, all the others will get back in"

The Scugog reserve contains 600 acres, much of which is leased to area farmers. The Indians on the reserve work at repairing fences and have gained the right to budget their own money

"We used to have to wait for three months to be paid when we dealt directly with Ottawa," he says. "Now all the money comes to a bank in Orillia and I take the time sheets in on Fridays to collect the money.

He says that he and the band find this very different than in the past and that they can also contract outside help such as bulldozing and pay for that.

"In the future I can see us having Indians as superintendents and now in the head-office at Orillia, there are many Indians working"

A not so optimistic view of the future is taken by Chief Goose as far as his reserve is concerned

"I don't believe it will exist in 50 or 60 years," he says. "I think in time we will find that we do not have a reserve. Our heritage is going to die. The young ones don't seem to care."

Chief Goose and his mother started basket making on the reserve two years ago and he also made some rustic chairs.

"We were doing good, worked with the museum and travelled all over demonstrating baskets," he says. "We wanted the younger kids to come over on a weekend to learn the craft and my mother was quite interested in showing them but we couldn't get anyone interested."

There is only one man who lives on the reserve that still hunts and traps for food and Chief Goose says that no one speaks the Mississauga language.

"At the reserve on Parry Island they are starting to teach the Indian language but here we speak English to the children," he says

"I had a lot of trouble at school because nobody ever spoke English to me. Now we teach English to children for school but we are getting away from our own language."

Chief Goose says that his band and the others he meets with haven't really gotten involved in the Wounded Knee conflict in the United States nor did he watch the Oscars last week when the best actor award was refused by actor Marlon Brando because of the way Indians had been depicted in Hollywood films

As far as the "John Wayne" type of westerns are concerned, he says, "I don't go for that stuff I don't think it is good for my granddaughter and grandson to watch it."

Chief Goose's grandchildren live with him in the small bungalow which he built on the Scugog Reserve

A veteran of World War II, he spent 48 months overseas with the artillery in communications. He can remember instances of discrimination at that time

"There were times when I would go into a hotel and wouldn't be served," he says. "These things still happen now but since people like Dan George and since the Union of Ontario Indians and other things like it, I have seen a change"

Doc's Queen's Park Diagnosis

By Dr. Charlie McIlveen
M.P.P. Oshawa

Regarding the open letter that Peter Franklin directed to myself and the Honorable Gordon Carton, Minister of Transportation and Communications, concerning the motor vehicle registration records in the Province of Ontario. I clipped the newspaper article out of the paper and sent it to Gordon Carton, and I now have his reply

Dear Charles:

To your letter of March 23rd covering the newspaper article by Peter Franklin, I direct the following comments

The vehicle registration records are public records and that is the very basis for their creation. They are public so that the owner of every motor vehicle can be identified with respect to his responsibilities and liabilities in the operation of the vehicle. This is the case in every province of Canada and every state of the union

For many years Ontario, together with a preponderant number of other North American jurisdictions, has made a copy of the registration records available to R. L. Polk and Company Ltd

Polk uses the information to prepare automotive statistics, to mail certified letters under motor vehicle safety recall programs, to assist law enforcement agencies and to perform many other services for government and business, quite apart from its direct mail marketing services.

Until recently, most jurisdictions maintained their files manually and it was extremely difficult if not impossible to extract statistics in a usable form Polk has been in a position to provide detailed, competitive information on registered vehicles and owners where government has not been able to do so

Turning to direct mail, there are an infinite number of mailing lists available quite apart from the lists generated from motor vehicle records The amount of direct mail emanating from the Ministry's sale of this information is relatively small and generally consists of information related to vehicle operation.

It is the policy of the R. L. Polk and Company Ltd not to make any type of mailing which is in any way offensive or in conflict with a respect for good taste.

The direct mail industry is a legitimate business and a sizeable one in terms of persons employed, gross national product, etc. Selling and advertising by direct mail have become an integral and important part of the nation's economy.

Allow me to add that the Ministry is automating the motor vehicle registration records in 1975. During the planning for the conversion, every phase of this Ministry's policy towards the dissemination of information from these records will be brought under critical examination.

I trust, Charles, that this information will be useful to you. Should you require any further comment, please do not hesitate to call on me

Yours very truly,
Gordon Carton, Q.C.,
Minister.

Public meeting on region was like "blowing bubbles and watching them burst" says former controller

Former controller Margaret Shaw says her defeat as a mayoralty candidate was good for her.

"After 14 years (as an elected representative) perhaps I was a little too close to things," she says. "Now, like many other people, I'm able to sit back and observe."

Mrs. Shaw told This Week she will definitely be in the running for a regional government seat

"It's a little too early to say for what position yet," she says with a mysterious smile

Since her defeat last December, the former deputy mayor says she has been doing a few things that she never had the time for before, including needle work and volunteer work with children

"I'm not worried about votes," she says referring to her volunteer work. "The children can't vote for me yet."

She says she misses politics very much and even though she is not a councillor, part of her is still in the council chambers

"I still get people calling me when they need help," she says. "But I have to tell them I'm not in a position to do any more than the normal taxpayer. I couldn't get on a single council committee because I was too outspoken and didn't fit in"

Mrs. Shaw admits that she was "hurt" when she lost the election because she thought she could offer a lot with the years of experience she had.

"The people saw fit not to elect me, but I'm still more than proud of the vote I did get," she says "Of course, if you don't win you're disappointed, but you must be able to take defeat as well as victory."

Although she has no excuses for her defeat, Mrs. Shaw says one of the reasons could have been the small voter turn out caused by the wintery weather Oshawa experienced election day.

"I was also running against two other men, which also split the vote," she says. "But I don't believe for one moment that it was Mr. Potticary's suave character and image. That's an insult to the voter."

She says she hasn't been too vocal about recent political issues because "if I were to come out and say something about everything, people would just think it was sour grapes".

However, she says, things have just gone "too far"

She termed the first public meeting with city council discussing regional government an "insult to the public". The second one, she says, was "degrading"

"I think the way in which the regional brief was prepared was sad," she says. "The taxpayer was really unable to participate. The first meeting was a complete washout."

She says the first public meeting had a good turnout of people very interested who wanted to dig deep into the issues When they asked questions, she says, not one alderman spoke and the public was told to address their questions to city department heads.

"I want my elected officials to answer my questions, not any department head," she says. "I don't blame the people for not coming back to the second meeting."

She claims that aldermen decided before the meeting not to say anything, and when the public asked questions it was like "blowing bubbles up in the air and watching them burst"

"I am appalled at closed meetings," she says. "And yet I have never seen as many as I have in the past few months There were only three things we closed our doors to while I was on council, contract negotiations, reprimanding employees and land development."

Mrs. Shaw claims it will only be a matter of time before the public realizes what's happening at city hall. She says that old adage that a new broom sweeps clean is not necessarily so

"Progress is only made by conversation and disagreement that proves to other people the value of something," she says. "I don't like solidarity in elected people. There's no room for it

She says there are 17 people who sit on council, and because they are not all alike, there is bound to be differences of opinion—" and thank heavens there are".

"Solidarity will never work out," she says. "Now that is a beautiful bubble; but it will burst."

She says when she runs for regional government, it won't be for the pay, a new car or the prestige, it will be because she likes Oshawa and its people and she wants to help

"I never made any campaign promises to the senior citizens, labor or businessmen during the last election," she recalls. "I wanted to be my own man. I wanted to be able to make decisions on the way I and council assessed matters

"But now I wonder afterwards if that is where I didn't make my mistakes."

Margaret Shaw spends her spare time doing volunteer work with children. Defeated in the Oshawa mayoralty race last December, she says she will definitely be running for a seat on regional council.

Walkathon cancelled

These boots weren't made for walking

There will not be a Miles for Millions Walk-a-thon in Oshawa and District this year.

"There are a number of reasons why there will not be a walk this year," says Elizabeth Peacock, co-chairman of the 1972 walk. "The primary reason when first looking at the problems of last year, was not enough volunteers and at this point, with the summer Games coming to Oshawa, volunteers will be interested in that."

Mrs. Peacock says that collections have also been a problem and that it is a nine-month job for volunteers to plan the walk and stress to the walkers that when the walk is over, it is still a very important part of the job to collect the pledges.

"I have talked with other groups all over Canada and collection seems to be a nation-wide problem," she says. "Once the walk is over, it is an anti-climax for the children to collect the money and also people are away at their cottages a great deal at that time of year."

She says that some of the walkers didn't send in their collections immediately after receiving the money and that the planning with volunteers must cover this area

"The young people, by and large, did a good job though and we might be able to pick up again in the fall and in subsequent years."

'keeping a step ahead of the times'

Water levels drop

In the television ratings game, the Peacock survey is a straight flush

There are two ways of assessing a television program's popularity the Neilson method and the Peacock method

Neilson spends thousands of dollars having a vast cross-section of people canvassed by telephone to get comments on television programs

Peacock, Oshawa Public Utilities Commission water works superintendent, says the city water pressure and consumption is affected by weather, fire, industry—and yes, television

For instance, he figures that 20,000 Oshawanians or more watched the Academy Awards program last week

How can he tell?

Well, around 12:45 a.m., just about the time the awards program went off the air, a chart at the city's pumping station registered "a very unusual drop" in water pressure

"Every man and woman in the city must have hit the washrooms," Peacock explained

A toilet uses about three to five gallons of water each time it is flushed. During a ten-minute period immediately following the academy awards, approximately 75,000 gallons of water was drained from the city storage tank

As Peacock suggests, that means about 20,000 people "hit the washrooms"

This same pressure chart is also reliable in monitoring commercial breaks during a good movie. During a hockey game, especially the Canada-Russia series, it will show the end of each period as city residents consume vast amounts of water in a surge of a few minutes

The city draws its water supply from Lake Ontario and it is purified at the PUC's lakeshore pumping station. The station pumped and purified 368.4 million galloson of water last month

During that same month, residential, commercial and industrial customers used an average of 13.1 million gallons of water a day and a maximum of 14.6 million gallons a day

Conservative figures show the city consumes about 4.5 billion gallons of water a year! Taking into account the amount of water used by Oshawa's industries and commerce, PUC officials estimate that each resident uses about 140 gallons a month

The system Oshawa uses for purifying its water is not unique, but it is fascinating.

The lake water is drawn into the pumping station through intake pipes located about 3,000 feet out into the lake and submerged about 32 feet to 35 feet below the lake's surface, and about seven feet above bottom, depending on lake conditions

The purification process is a continuous one, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year

Water comes into the station through two intake pipes about 30 inches wide As soon as it enters the station it is screened to remove the larger debris, fish and ice Then chlorine is added to kill any bacteria and possibly, although scientist are still not sure, virus

The water is then pumped through to mixing points where fluoride is added—for one reason only. Fluoride is a chemical proven to help improve children's teeth in their formative years

Scientists still haven't figured out if it's helpful to adults

Water is then pumped to settling tanks where, PUC officials say, about 90 per cent of the suspended material is eliminated as particles in the water settle. This process takes about three hours

If the water is exceptionally murky, aluminum sulfate (alum) is added to the water to coagulate smaller particles which later drift to the bottom of the tanks

Activated carbon, or charcoal is added to the water maybe once about every two or three months to counteract any disagreeable taste and odors

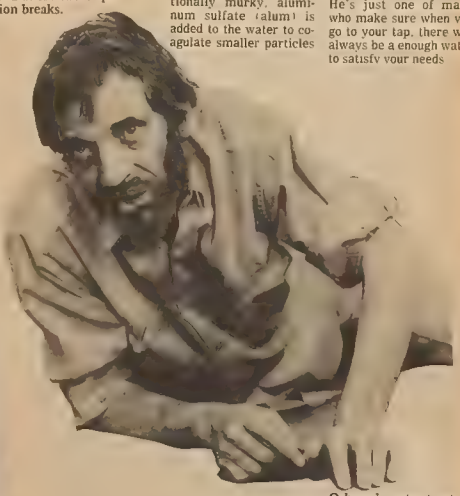
Then the water goes through a carbon, sand and rock filter and the result is drinkable. It is then pumped by huge, 600 horsepower electric pumps to storage tanks where it awaits consumption

In case of power failure, there are four motorized pumps ready to meet the demand, not so much for domestic consumption, but in case the power failure is ever accompanied by an outbreak of fire

PUC officials are proud of their water. It is checked three or four times every eight hours to ensure its purity

Peacock perhaps could be in the television rating business, but he's not He's just one of many who make sure when you go to your tap, there will always be a enough water to satisfy your needs

This complex equipment not only keeps Oshawa's water purified, but also enables Bob Peacock to estimate how many residents are watching television. During commercials and at the end of programs, the water level dials drop dramatically as viewers take their own station breaks.



Oshawa's water treatment plant prevents a crises from occurring like the one depicted on Channel 19 Monday in which Jack Van Evra (above) refuses to drink unsafe water.

Garbage collection By—Law 222-68

Guide To Householders

To keep garbage collection services as effective and as economical as possible it is necessary that the by-law requirements be observed. The co-operation of all house-holders is requested.

Following are answers to questions which arise most frequently in this regard. For further information please call Refuse Handling Section at the Sanitary Landfill Site, 725-1435.

1. Q - When are the Clean-up Weeks?
   A- The "Spring" Clean-up Week will commence the week of May 28th and the "Fall" Clean-up Week, October 15th
2. Q - How many plastic bags or receptacles will be collected on normal weekly collection?
   A - A combined total of eight (8) receptacles or plastic bags per residence will be picked up, once per week.
3. Q - What will be picked up?
   A - Garbage, which includes all household waste except such things as discarded furniture and appliances, building materials, liquid waste and manure.
4. Q - Must garbage be in receptacles or containers?
   A - Garbage must be drained (if necessary) put into either plastic bags or wrapped in paper and placed in proper garbage containers with handles and covers that fit. Containers must weigh no more than fifty (50) pounds when loaded and be kept clean and disinfected. Brush etc. that will not fit into containers will be collected if securely tied in bundles not larger than 2' x 2' x 2' and weighing not more than fifty (50) pounds.
5. Q - Will garbage be carried out?
   A - Receptacles and bundles must be carried out to the curb by the householder before 7.30 a.m. on the morning of collection. Receptacles will be returned to the curb by the collector. Unacceptable containers and contents, as well as material refused by the collector, must be carried back by the householder
6. Q - How often will garbage be picked up?
   A - Garbage will be picked up once a week and on the same day each week (except for occasional disruption of schedules by holidays).
7. Q - How do I dispose of articles not classed as garbage or not picked up under normal collections?
   A - Such articles may be disposed of, free of charge, in private automobiles ONLY at the City disposal site on Ritson Road North, and unloaded at locations as directed by the staff

The hours of operation of the Sanitary Landfill Site are as follows:

	April to October	November to March
Weekdays	8 00 A.M. to 9:00 P M	8:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M.
Saturday	8:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M	8.00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M.
Sunday and Statutory Holidays	Closed	Closed

Special "Clean-up Periods" for private residences will be provided during the spring and fall. Such periods will be advertised in advance in the local press.

8. Q - Is it permissible to burn garbage?
   A - No.
9. Q - Is it acceptable to use 5 gallon paint cans, lard pails or like containers for garbage setout?
   A- No. Containers such as these are considered as garbage and will be disposed of with contents
10. Q - Are bushel baskets acceptable?
    A - Only for grass, hedge clippings or like material. Not for household waste

Euthanasia -- is it an act of mercy or murder?

By Garnet Cowsill
Staff Writer

Euthanasia—a doctor says it's humane, some clergy say it's wrong, but the courts say it's murder

It is certainly an age-old problem that divides doctors, the church and the courts.

Euthanasia is a pretty-sounding word that means to end suffering through an easy and painless death, and one area doctor says it is a humane act that should be condoned by society

Mercy killing, the most common term for euthanasia, is the term that turns society off, the doctor says, because the emphasis is on "killing"

It is a humane end to suffering—something we extend to animals—and I cannot see the justification for not extending it to humans," he says.

The church takes a different view

Rev. John Morris says it is a difficult issue to find answers for

"Society should not condone it," he says "We said this when the Nazis were experimenting with it in the 1930s."

He maintains the final decision cannot be a medical one. "It is a moral and religious decision after a medical prognosis."

Rev. Bill Piercy, however, says the issue evolves around who makes the final decision

"The medical society and clergy are not able to make the decision," he says. "If any decision is to be made at all it must be a combined decision based on the medical,

by garnet cowsill

moral and legal implications."

Father Gary Harrison says that life is the greatest gift we have and we should not take it upon ourselves to end any life

"In a way, suffering is a part of life and we can learn from it," he says "There is a danger of misusing something like euthanasia."

The doctor contacted, however, says that anyone who disagrees with euthanasia should go through a chronic psychiatric ward "and see if you don't change your mind"

While he was working in one, he says he did not know of one case where a patient died and the family weren't happy to see their next of kin out of misery

The doctor says the decision should not be just a medical one, but he says the courts should not enter into it in any way

"It should be up to the patient—if he is competent—the doctor and the family," he says "They're all involved."

Once a decision is made by this group, a recommendation should be forwarded to a special committee of three doctors who would be responsible for the final decision, he says.

Rev Morris and Father Harrison do agree that where "extraordinary or heroic measures" such as life-sustaining drugs or machines are being used just to prolong life, then the patient has the right to die in dignity and peace

"There should be a certain point where the patient or the family should have the right to tell the doctors that no heroic measures be taken to sustain life." Rev Morris says. "The emphasis must not be on 'killing', but on refraining from keeping someone alive unduly."

'I don't think old people should seek out the biggest hospitals and biggest machines because if you consider the many people in the world who are too poor to have reasonable existence, maybe the money spent on big machines keeping (older) people alive could possibly be spent in aiding the poor," Father Harrison says. "Not that we shouldn't help our older people. I'm just kind of weighing the balance."

Ontario County Crown Attorney Bruce Affleck says no matter which way you look at the issue, legally, the act is murder

"It's murder, there's no doubt about it," he says. "It is defined as a means to kill or cause bodily harm which will result in death."

In the years that he has been in the courts, Affleck admits that he has never heard of a doctor being tried for the crime in the area. On top of that, he says, if it did come up, it would be a very difficult thing to get a conviction for.

"A doctor means to kill in these circumstances," he says, "but for a benevolent purpose. The first thing the Crown must do is determine if the death was a direct result of the doctor's actions. It is unlikely that a jury would convict in this situation, even if there wasn't a defence."

According to the doctor interviewed, euthanasia will become an accepted practice within the next 10 years

"Look at abortion, a few years ago it was not a common thing," the doctor says. "This is no problem now at all; nobody gets upset. The doctor decides and the government pays him.'

According to Ontario MP Norm Cafik, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Marc Lalonde, one in every 11 pregnancies in Canada was terminated by an abortion in the first six months of 1972

In that period there were 174,176 live births Government figures show about 17,500 abortions were performed in the same period

The force of the waves along Oshawa's lakefront over the weekend can be seen in this view from Lakeview Park. Residents worked frantically to protect their lakeshore properties with sandbags, concrete blocks, coarse gravel and any other material available. Several homes were flooded and at least one boathouse was washed away.

Contact this week

Sir:

I do not know whether I have been misled or whether I am plain stupid and so I ask you to be the judge.

On March 28, I went to the Gulf Gas Bar and Car Wash here in Oshawa. After gassing up at the side pumps, I paid $4.50 and handed over a free car wash coupon that I had received from a previous gas up. When I asked for my free car wash coupon for the gas I had just purchased (a sign reads: Free wash coupons with gas purchases) I was told that coupons are only given out at the front pumps

When I questioned the man in charge at the time and told him that I was not aware of this policy or system I was still refused my car wash coupon

It appears to me that the sign does not really mean what it apparently conveys to the public

Misled, or stupid?

John A Konarowski
Oshawa.

* * * * *

*This Week contacted car wash manager, Allan Douglas, who said he was not aware of Konarowski's complaint. Admitting that the station's car wash coupon system is complicated and the public may not understand it completely, Douglas said free car wash coupons are given out with a gas purchase of 12 gallons or more. He said that at the side gas pumps where Konarowski gassed up, customers are not given coupons but are asked to pay the difference. A purchase of $4.50 would allow a car wash for an additional payment of 39 cents and so no coupon would be awarded the customer. Instead of using the free car wash coupon, which Douglas said is worth $1 20, the car wash staff probably tried to persuade Konarowski to pay the 39 cents and save the more valuable free coupon. Douglas said he would try to contact Konarowski and explain the system to him personally

Do you feel you have reached a dead end in your attempts to make a business, government department or other organization see your side of a problem? Why not contact This Week and let us look into the matter for you?

Daffodils are in bloom early this year

Daffodils will be in bloom this weekend in southern Ontario County

No, a sudden heat wave isn't expected but young men from the Oshawa Generals hockey team and high school girls are

They will be selling bunches of fresh daffodils in aid of the Canadian Cancer Society

"Last year, these young people made $1,000 for the society," says Ellen Ashton, campaign secretary and organizer of the residential canvas

This year the society will also provide audio-visual aids at the Oshawa Shopping Centre and give literature to the public free of charge in their campaign not only to raise money, but to educate people about cancer —its causes, treatment and cures

From the society's Ontario County headquarters on Richmond Street in Oshawa, education kits have been sent to all public and high schools in the city as well as dressings to the many cancer patients of Pickering, Ajax Whitby and generally anyone in the southern part of the county

"Many of these patients have been receiving dressings for 10 to 15 years," says Thelma Yourkevitch, unit secretary

"There are 15 zones in the city of Oshawa which our canvassers go out to during campaign month (April) and the zones are broken down into areas so the canvassers have about 10 houses each says Mrs. Ashton. "We have about 1,000 canvassers in Oshawa and 2,500 for the whole unit of southern Ontario County.'

"We really don't have a problem getting volunteers to go door-to-door The response has been great."

In Redd's opinion

Mountain man movie is worth seeing

If you are tired of the sex and contrived violence of the current movie fare about town you owe it to yourself to see "Jeremiah Johnson" at Oshawa Centre Cinema II

The star, Robert Redford, is a very believable mountain man of the Rockies. By this I do not mean the "hillbilly" but the "Gut Guy" who made a living and a way of life from trapping and doing his own thing

Like most people seeking to get away from it all, Jeremiah had his reasons, but these are not even mentioned in the story

The beautiful photo shots of the Rockie Mountains can take your breath away if mountain rocks and valleys are your button

A striking part of the film is the lack of the spoken word in places and this is beautifully done It would appear that someone has heard the phrase that one picture is worth a thousand words, and used it

Don't get the impression that there is no violence at all in the film because there is, but it's natural violence and it did not upset me in the slightest

Mind you, the wolf lovers association will be upset to hear that wolves did and do attack humans. Mind you only when said human, "Jeremiah", interrupts them attacking his horses

All the above plus a little love, comedy and hate well mixed make "JEREMIAH JOHNSON" a very unusual and worthwhile film

Around the local drinking spots this past weekend, the best that can be said for those where we were was that the music is rock and loud and the loud is spelled with a double cap "LL"

Also as I get older, the bar crowds seem to get younger and younger The crowd was so jammed at the Goldrush that it seemed a shame to waste the small dance floor space

Cute young things and their bearded beaus were hip to hip and jowl to jowl but the only open space, said dance floor, was empty

Country music nuts (me included) are in for a good show at the "aud" May 13, when Hank Williams Jr. comes in with a show that should be a smash . . . included are Donna Fargo of (Funny Face) and (Superman) fame plus Jan Howard

I think this is Jan's first trip through the area since leaving the Bill Anderson Road Show. In addition to the above, Lamar Morris (Hank Jrs brother-in-law) the Myers Brothers and the Jubilaires fill out the show

While we are on the country kick . . . George Petralia stopped by the office to tell me that he is running a regular every other week Jamboree at the Legion hall on Simcoe Street South

This coming Sunday night the show features Mayor Jim Potticary . . . presenting an award to that young Oshawa singer, Marvlou Del Gatto, and of course there is always the chance that with the crowd and the music His Honor might just break into song with something like Don't get around much anymore

Coming to the Red Barn April 14 is Dianne Leigh and her group, The Shades of Blue. Someone also to watch for at the Red Barn is Jack Bailey—in the writers opinion, Canada's most underrated country performer

Word comes from Long Beach, Calif. that "Long lost" Billy Charne has been found alive and well on Sussex records with his first ever album titled simply "Billy Charne

I have played it through a few times and personally, I feel that it is not up to the standards of his singles when he was with RCA. Mind you, I don't dig "The Folk Bag" that much and this seems to be where he is leaning these days

Local DJ's are playing a cut from this album titled Ida Red . . . Starting this week at Jim's Stage Door, Whitby . . Maple Street, a good versatile country band

If you missed fast rising star—Shirley Eikhart, Sunday night on the tube (Channel 79—Music City) you missed "our Shirley" doing her thing as a true pro

LE CHALET WHITBY

In an area where really good eating spots are few and far between, it is indeed a treat to find Le Chalet, from the very nice touch provided by the log fireplace to the comfortable atmosphere of the new large room

The food from our sampling was very good, the service attentive if lacking in polish There was no shortage of waitresses all looking very well turned out in red and white

There are a few things that the management should look into though. The chairs at the tables are not overly comfortable The low wide design is fine for lounging but hard on the back when sitting up to eat

The second is that the shrimp cocktails were served on a china plate atop a salad base of lettuce and finally shredded red cabbage with a very tasty sauce

Although the shrimp were cold and crisp the lack of the traditional ice bowl service was very noticeable

Also, the serving to a Scotch drinker his drink in a glass with one lonely ice cube was again part of the lack of polish in the service I mentioned above

But the filets were done to perfection and melted in the mouth

You may retire to the chesterfield by the fire for coffee if you wish, but we chose to remain at our table—and the coffee was good

Total bill for two including two drinks each was just $22.50 and a good solid value. Le Chalet is well worth your drive to Whitby

It's unanimous: Fanfare and games are great

The residents of Oshawa, Whitby and Ajax-Pickering may not see eye to eye on regional government or the need for the Pickering airport, but they're unanimous about one thing

The Ontario Summer Games and the lead-up Fanfare for Oshawa celebrations will inject a lot of good things into the area.

"These events will bring tourists to the area, which is good for business and will show the area's hospitality," is the way one area resident put it

His was one of hundreds of comments recorded in an in-depth survey commissioned by This Week and carried out by the Toronto-based Institute of Opinion and Market Research

The survey, which took the form of 527 personal, in-home interviews (304 in Oshawa, 111 in Whitby and 112 in Ajax-Pickering), revealed that 87 per cent of those polled felt that the summer games were a good thing

Those opposed to the games totalled a mere three per cent and the remaining 10 per cent held no opinion one way or the other

More business and thus more money for the area was the main reason given for enthusiasm about the games, followed closely by a belief that they would stimulate an interest in sports

Others contacted said the games would create favorable publicity for Oshawa, would promote friendship and goodwill and would give young people something to do on their holidays

The main negative comment was that the games would increase taxes since residents would have to pick up the tab

Other unfavorable statements revolved around the increased traffic in the area and the belief that facilities to hold the games were inadequate

"There will be a lot of out-of-town people and accommodation will be booming," said one games supporter. "People may see something in Oshawa that may bring them back to start a business that we don't have now"

"It's about time Oshawa started doing something like this," said another They lose a lot of talent."

One pessimist felt that not only would taxes increase, but so would crime: "Also, our children pay exorbitant fees for any sports they're in while these athletes can get free publicity."

However, most comments resembled the following: "It puts Oshawa on the map; it will give more business to the city and advertise the region; should give visitors an insight into our city; there will be more events to go to which will keep up our spirits."

Muriel Budkowski, president of the Oshawa Folk Arts Council, plans a gala festival during Fanfare Week.

Frauleins, colleens and geishas on hand

Oompahpahs, tiny cymbals, fiddles and kotos

That's the kind of ethnic musical mixture that will be heard in the Oshawa Folk Arts Council's part of Fanfare Week at the end of June

German music, Tibetan dancers, Irish jigs and Japanese dancers will all be part of the folkfestival concert staged by the council, according to council President Muriel Budkowski

"We always hold our parade and festival July 1," says Mrs. Budkowski. "But this year the date was the same time as the Ontario Summer Games, so we just joined in with them (Fanfare committee) and made our deal part of the week."

Although the council's program is still tentative, Mrs. Budkowski says she and a committee of 15 are working hard to get it all lined up.

The first item on the proposed schedule is a parade Sunday, a week before the July 1 games.

"We're just sending out forms now," she says. "We really don't know how many floats or bands will be in the parade."

Later on in the evening after the parade, ethnic groups will present a stage show of dancing and singing at the Civic Auditorium with an afternoon program for the younger people. The concert will run from 5 p.m to 9 p.m. with one hour performances between 15-minute breaks

Following the concert there will be dancing, ethnic food buffets and a bar.

But that's not all

Mrs. Budkowski says she knows of 36 different ethnic groups in the city and there are probably more than that. During Fanfare Week, various ethnic groups will open up their halls as pavilions to the public during the evening.

Mrs. Budkowski says there will be dancing, music, food and drink The council is in the process of working out arrangements with the Public Utilities Commission to provide a bus shuttle service between the various halls

All these various activities will have free admittance if you have a Fanfare Week Passport which will be on sale for $1

The only part of the program where the passports won't be valid will be at the gala council dance at the Civic Auditorium the Saturday before the games start

An admission price will be publicized for this event on a later date

Mrs. Budkowski says some ethnic groups may also participate in the grand march of athletes that will open the games and will be dressed in traditional national clothes.

"Our budget is $6,000 but we havn't got any money yet," she says "We're hoping for a grant from the city and (Terry) Kelly (games chairman) says the money will be provided and not to worry."

Mrs. Budkowski says the aim of Fanfare Week is to bring people together, and that is also a goal of the council

"It's something that's going to be good for Oshawa," she says. "It will give us the limelight in a way."

She says many people are becoming more and more aware and interested in the games and Fanfare events and she thinks the whole thing will be a great success.

"There's going to be something for everyone even if you're not sports-minded," she says. "I can see the whole thing as a success if everyone co-operates—why shouldn't it be?"

How to solve our lakeshore woes? Polder

Poldering could save our lakeshore and solve our garbage problem

Inadvertantly, the Dutch may have solved these two serious problems facing the lakeshore area by their method of land re-clamation called "poldering"

The Dutch, fighting a constant battle against the sea and a shortage of land, developed this concept which basically involves building dykes to shut out the sea, then draining the water from the enclosed area.

The land made available by this procedure can be used for any number of things, but in Holland it's usually converted into agricultural lands. One of the larger polders, or areas of reclaimed land, called Markerwaard, has an area of 192,000 acres; approximately 14 times the size of the city of Oshawa.

Smaller polders created along the lakeshore between Pickering and Oshawa would serve a dual purpose. The dykes containing the polder would serve as protection against further erosion of the shoreline, while the drained areas could serve as landfill sites.

As each polder is filled to dyke level it could be topped off with fill and landscaped, creating a recreational park for public use.

In Holland, dykes are complicated and expensive projects, but here, fill from construction sites could be used to build the breakwaters. Although not a polder in the true sense of the word, the island proposed for Toronto's harbour is an example of what can be done

This island, designed for recreational use, could be left hollow and used as a landfill site, instead of being built entirely of fill from construction sites

This use could help solve Metro's waste disposal problem, but would not solve the problem of erosion along the lakeshore, especially in the Pickering area

Here, dykes could be built out from the shoreline, looping back forming a half-moon shaped breakwater. This alone would solve the flooding problem since the water within this area could be controlled.

If drained, the area could then serve as a landfillsite or be topped up with fill from construction sites depending on the immediacy of the situation or the nearness of homes

Ultimately, a series of polders along the lakefront could form a chain of recreational parks, which could be controlled and maintained by the area conservation authorities.

Oshawa youth wins award

Rob Oaker, 17, of 520 Rossland Rd., has received an honorable mention certificate for an outstanding entry in the Canada Permanent Trust sixth annual student writing contest

Oaker's entry, Acid Armageddon, is about an "acid freak" who goes on a drug binge for a week and has a confrontation with God, "a short little fellow with a big head."

God tells the drug user that a team of scientists had created the planets as "life forms", and the earth has developed a cancerous growth of human beings that is spreading to other planets and therefore the earth must be destroyed

The acid freak wakes up from his trip and hears air raid alarms going off as the radio announcer says that several countries have launched nuclear weapons. The story ends with the news announcer being cut off in mid-sentence as the atomic holocaust begins.

Oaker, who has been writing creative material ever since he was eight years old, says he wants to be a professional writer and has already started submitting articles to magazines and publications

Among his ambitions is to get something published in Playboy Magazine, which he says, has a high quality of literature

RELIGION

'Yes, I do mind if you smoke'

Yes I mind if you smoke! Especially if you blow it in my face or stand too close and breathe stale smoke odor at me

The organization in the United States responsible for having cigarette ads removed from T.V. is now pushing a new campaign entitled: "Yes, I do mind if you smoke."

On the news this week it displayed some of the slogans such as, "Thank you for not smoking." You say it's your own business if you smoke but it becomes my business if you abuse the privilege at my expense

The "GO" train has coaches for smoking and they are enforcing the rules because non-smokers are harmed by smoke from cigarettes when they are constantly exposed to it

Nerve, rudeness, ignorance, selfishness, lack of manners, call it what you like but we should not have to stand for smokers who display these characteristics in their smoking habits

If you have to suck those ugly things, then have a little consideration for those around you If you only knew how you turn people off when you blow or breathe tobacco smell at them

Salesmen get right up in your face—think they have you ready to buy when all the time you just want to get away and you have no thoughts of supporting their habits by purchasing their product. Yes I do mind if you smoke!

Someone once said to me: "It's no sin to smoke." The reason he said this was because he went to some church regularly and thought he was all right and tried to ease his conscience by declaring his reason for indulging in the old coffin-nails.

I reminded him of the verse in I Corinthians 3:16 that says our bodies were formed for the purpose of being a dwelling place for the Holy Spirit and anything that defiles the body, God will curse. The man never mentioned it again.

Overeating, overwork, alcohol, drugs, and on and on we could go with things that abuse your body but this still doesn't give you reason to indulge in any because one is less severe than others

When you smoke, you are being very stupid. Why? You are endangering your health and you quickly say: "It's my health-it's my lung-I'll do what I want with it!"

But you are wrong! As a father or mother or husband or wife or child you are part of some family and you are obligated to them so don't kill yourself with throat or lung cancer by smoking If you love them you won't hurt them by dying slowly but surely before their very eyes. Kick the habit before it kicks you

You also have an obligation to God who created you and the Bible says that every oen of us will have to stand in front of Him some day and give an account of all the deeds doen in the body.

You also have an obligation to yourself to live life at its best and this you cannot do with poison in your system.

Before I was converted I smoked but Christ removed the desire and I'm glad He did and He can remove any habit you have.

If we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

I do mind if you smoke-others do too, and it's time you started to mind.

Rev. Oscar Simpson

Reformed addict turns young people away from drugs

By REV. W. LEE TRUMAN

"The drug-wise cat will know when you are on speed. You just can't eat. My mom does not know anything.

"I came home home Thanksgiving and I had been using some, and I was really wired. My mother grabbed me and said, 'Sit, you have to eat dinner.' I said, 'Thanks,' and just looked at her."

This was John C. talking to a group of high school youths, and he has just been asked a question by a girl about 13 "Why is speed (methadrine) used in diet pills?"

John is 19, tall, and has rather dark wavy hair and a curly beard. He had what he calls his graduate degree in drugs.

He kicked the habit through a religious conversion in my office. And his way to stay off of the drug scene has been to become a one-man crusade to keep kids away from the slippery downhill road he took.

He knows he is the exception because he is clean and wants to stay clean

Before John went into the service he had been smoking "grass" around school just to be a big man on campus.

He well remembers his state of mind at that time "Miserable"

"Grass, and then other drugs became my escape hatch," he told me He liked the Navy and did not use drugs for a year

Then John was in an accident which crushed his arm. During the months he was hospitalized he received shots of morphine to ease his pain.

"I got so I liked the trip," he recalled. "When I could, I got myself assigned to the hospital. The morphine was available, and I soon learned how to shoot it clean." (Leave no marks.)

When John left the service he got two jobs to support his habit, but he found it hard to keep the jobs.

His biggest goal in life had become regulating his "highs" with "downers" and his "downs" with the "uppers."

He fell into the frantic life that only users and addicts know until he and a friend were "busted" by the police.

He was put on one-year probation and underwent treatment. He said he was using drugs as soon as he hit the street again.

Why do kis listen to John? He is not a phony, knows what the drug scene is really about, and has found his way out through a deep religious experience.

John answered this question by also adding that he was not so much older and that he does not condemn them.

"I lay the question on them that is the heavy one," he said. "I ask what makes them want to take drugs and what are they hiding from.

I get sick when I see kids taking drugs and I don't want them to go through what I did, I talk to their paretns and try to get them to understand that something is wrong.

I feel like I am right in the middle trying to get them to listen to each other "

HONEST WITH GOD
George Feldmann

Providing for honest things, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men 2Co 8 21

Just about everyone, at one time or another, has heard about the ancient Greek philosopher Diogenes He was the originator of the sect known as the Cynics This was reflected in many of his antics The one that is best known was that of walking around in broad daylight with a lamp looking for an honest man!

If Diogenes were living today the search would be just as discouraging

It seems that when many people think of honesty they hold to a restricted idea usually referring to honesty in business or money matters But honesty may also be defined as integrity and truthfulness in conduct and speech The teaching of the Bible would lead us to believe that honesty ought to characterize one's entire way of life

Honesty is the most important factor when approaching the Word of God No true spiritual insight is ever realized by the individual if honesty is lacking, because God knows our hearts

Believers can fail to be honest in handling the Word of Truth when they succumb to compromise on Bible doctrine This is especially true when an individual tries to practice right division and remain in good standing with some denominational group The Lord expects personal faithfulness to His Word regardless of what the so-called majority of Christendom believes

It is virtually impossible to be honest with God and ourselves unless right division is given top priority. Right division in 2Ti 2 15 is not recommended, it is commanded

And it is safe to say there are numerous folks who have been delivered from the stifling trap of denominationalism and are really rejoicing in God's Word for the first time in their Christian experience because they have tried to be obedient to the Lord in applying right division in Bible study They will gladly testify that the practice of right division does not shrink the Bible, so to speak, but rather expands one's understanding and insight as to what the Bible really teaches

In Proverbs 23 23 we have a commandment that is applicable to every dispensation and calling Buy the truth and sell it not This is honesty

Oshawa shelter beginning for big project

The cats, guinea pigs gerbils and rabbits of Oshawa have a friend

Her name is Carole Lang and she is the supervisor of the animal shelter on John Street, the newly-opened Oshawa branch of the Ontario Humane Society

Mrs. Lang works at the shelter each week from Tuesday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with a part-time worker coming in on Monday and volunteer teenagers and school children helping after school and on Saturdays

Our junior league, the children from E.A. Lovell School, come in after classes but only with the understanding that they have their parents' permission," she says

She says that the senior animal warden from Whitby picks up animals that are abandoned and for adoption

"We also run a pet ambulance service taking pets to the vet of the owner's choice for a small fee," she says. "We do not pick up strays and we do require people to sign for animals in their care who have been abandoned.

Cats are held at the shelter for five days after which they may be adopted. Dogs can only be held for a day and are then taken to the shelter in Whitby

Mrs. Lang says that the small shelter on John Street has coped with up to 15 small animals at one time but that a large number of animals poses a problem especially at cleaning time

"It is a beginning and we feel we are filling a need within the community. Hopefully, we will eventually expand with facilities such as the one in Whitby on Thicksons Road," she says. "This small shelter will indicate through public response, the need for a larger shelter."

Since the opening of the John Street shelter on Feb. 6, Elizabeth Wolfe, president of the Oshawa Branch, says that both Dr. Clayton McKay and Dr. Brent Hoff, local veterinarians, have donated their time in maintaining the health of the animals

"Right now, we are existing on donations from the public and the articles for sale in the shelter which have all been donated by interested people," says Mrs. Wolfe.

She says that people who drop or mail in their Dominion Store tapes to the shelter will enable the branch to receive a percentage of the total which is refunded to the shelter by the grocery chain

"We will also have lottery tickets this year with a first prize of $10,000 The tickets are 50 cents each or can be purchased in books of 15

The lottery is in recognition of the Ontario Humane Society's centennial year—1873 to 1973

Mrs Wolfe says that she would like to see the neutering and spaying of all animals since cats reproduce from the age of five months and have a short gestation period

Financial assistance gained through lotteries and rummage sales, which the shelter will hold at the Simcoe Hall on May 9, will hopefully help the shelter reach their many goals in the care of animals in the area

Stray cats like the one above have found a friend in Carole Lang, supervisor of the Oshawa branch of the Ontario Humane Society.

Min Earhart of 261 Gibbon Street in Oshawa wins $10 this week for correctly identifying our Guess Where photo as the Ritson Road cut-off to Highway 401 at Toronto, Drew and Jackson Streets. More than 300 entries were received

Airport rumors confirmed by Potticary

The Oshawa airport will be relocated, according to a statement by Mayor Jim Potticary released Monday

"I am making this statement at this time to alleviate the fears of some of our citizens who hear through the grapevine that our airport is to expand," the mayor said.

It is not the city's intention to expand present facilities, he added but to "initiate and foster the expansion of our facilities in an area of less citizen involvement"

The relocation is currently being studied by city and government officials as well as Oshawa and Whitby MP Ed Broadbent, the mayor said in the statement

"The Oshawa airport is part of that network of secondary airfields that dot the province and are used not only by industry but also by recreation people as well," Potticary said. "We feel that with the advent of industrial expansion in this area and the increased demand for airport facilities, an in-depth look has to be taken of our local facilities"

Have you claimed your credit?
Even if you don't pay income taxes you may benefit from the Ontario Government's new Property Tax Credit Plan, but you must apply by filing in a 1972 Income Tax Return.
You'll find a special mauve claim form just for that purpose in the 1972 income tax kit. An explanation of the plan is right on the form.
The new Property Tax Credit Plan provides greater benefits for more—the elderly, roomers, boarders, and low income families
If you paid property taxes or rent last year, you may be eligible.
Pick up a tax return kit at any post office, if you haven't already got one. And send in both the tax return and the mauve claim form. But do it quickly—remember returns and claims are to be filed by April 30th.
Your federal District Taxation Office will be glad to answer any questions you might have.
The Ontario Property Tax Credit Plan: we thought of it, but we'd like you to get the credit.

Eyes give new life after death when you leave them to the eye bank as a gift of sight through a cornea transplant

A cornea transplant can restore the sight of a cataract victim but in order for this near-miracle to take place, people have to donate their eyes. There is a long waiting list of the blind and partially-blind waiting for such an operation.

by john bell

Eyes don't grow old.

But to those 52 people on the waiting list at the Canada Eye Bank in Toronto time is the most important thing there is

Age, sex and race make no difference to the eye surgeon, or to the individual waiting for surgery to restore his or her sight Eyes are eyes, but even with 65,000 names on the donors' list at the Eye bank there is still a constant shortage.

Meeting the demands wouldn't take much according to the staff at the Eye Bank, but it's still a big order

The greatest thing that could happen to the Eye Bank says Mrs. Anne Wolf executive secretary at the Bank, would be acquiring "one pair of eyes a day".

Just one pair of eyes a day, she says, would make it possible for the bank to meet any emergency although she admits there are not that great a number But to meet the ones that do come up "would be a wonderful thing"

Mrs Wolf shoves aside the beliefs held by many people on what kind of eyes can be used by the Bank, putting most of these down to misinformation.

There are very few cases in which the eyes donated are of no use medically she says, and "truthfully, all eyes are useful" The eyes of a 90-year-old man are just as good as those of a young child, she says since it's only the cornea, the lens of the eye, which is used in most cases

Those eyes which have been damaged as result of an accident for example, can be used for research which is an important and ongoing thing at the Eye Bank centre.

In some cases time can cheat the donor of his good deed, because it's not enough that the eyes get to the Eye Bank, they have to get there between eight to 10 hours after death

Fortunately, says Mrs Wolf, this doesn't happen too often One of the main reasons for getting eyes to the Bank or to a hospital operating room with all possible speed is the magnificent co-operation from the provincial police the RCMP and in some cases local police

She says the police act quickly in notifying the Bank when they find the donor card on an accident victim, or in the matter of getting eyes to a waiting surgeon

"We've never been turned down by either the provincial police or the Mounties . she says It's not unusual for a police officer to drive 80 miles to pick up the donation and back another 80 miles to a hospital and a waiting patient

Becoming an eye donor is a simple procedure It's just a matter of picking up the donor form at an office of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, filling it in mailing it and the name is automatically put on the donors list

In the past donors had to have a relative sign the form too, but under new legislation this is no longer the case

Mrs Wolf says donating their eyes can be a very comforting thing for many people because they know that by donating their eyes a part of them lives on

This is especially true in the case of older people, she says since they can feel something positive has come of their lives by contributing to another person's well being

Even the good intentions of donors is not enough to meet the demand for eyes she says The function of the Eye Bank is directly affected by publicity

"Eye donations and the Eye Bank are not new stories" she says so publicity is hard to get

There is generally a lull in donations until an other article appears in a newspaper or a magazine. Then there is a surge of donors for a two-week period followed by another lull

No matter how many donations are received Mrs Wolf says every new one is welcomed

Oshawa makes a bid to host OASA convention

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Phase number one will be going into effect this weekend in Windsor when the Oshawa City & District Softball league will attempt to host the 1974 Ontario Amateur Softball Association convention.

Windsor is the site of the '73 convention and city alderman Bruce McArthur, who is also the president of the Oshawa Minor Softball Association, will act as spokesman for Oshawa in the bid.

McArthur calls this Block One as Oshawa will be the softball city in 1974. Oshawa will mark its 50th year as a city next year and he plans to use this as a pitch towards landing the convention.

Besides this endeavor McArthur is attempting to secure the 1974 Canadian Softball Championships scheduled for the last week of August next summer.

Joining McArthur from the minor ball group in his stickhandling attempt will be Gerry Brooks, Dean Henley, Chuck Mehring and Don Tandy representing the minor softball association, City & District president Spike Yourkevich, Tom Murphy, Tommy Lodge, Charlie Russell and ex-president Rich March.

Mr. Softball himself, John Brady, a former president of the O.A.S.A., will again be the chairman, a post which he has held for more than 20 years now.

Local members bidding for positions on the O.A.S.A. executive are Gerry Brooks and Spike Yourkevich as director while Vinny Walker originally from Oshawa and now from Port Perry should be elected as first vice-president.

It is expected that Oshawa should receive the 1974 convention. McArthur has the backing from the city and for years now Oshawa has been known as the softball capital of Canada.

Nick Ryschkow reaped a harvest of trophies in the A.B.C. tournament at the Eastway Lanes last week. He hopes to add to his collection at a bowling tournament in Kingston next week.

Swimming trio records triple

Heather Messent, Julie Pascoe and veteran Steve Smart all recorded three firsts apiece in pacing Oshawa Aquatic club to an easy first place finish in the Age Group Development meet held on the weekend at the Centennial Pool.

Messent, competing in the girls 11-12 age bracket, was tops in the 100-yard butterfly and backstroke and in the 50-yard freestyle.

Pascoe, entered in the girls 13-14 grouping, came first in the 100-yard butterfly, 200-yard breaststroke and backstroke.

Smart, one of Ontario's premier swimmers, placed first in the open class 200 yard backstroke, 100 yard butterfly and freestyle.

Oshawa captured the tri-level meet collecting 323 points compared to 196 points for Etobicoke and 55 for Lakeshore.

Other first place victories for OAC were claimed by Chris Brooks, boys under 10 in the 100 yard individual medley and 50 yard freestyle, Judy Vickers in the 200 yard freestyle. (She had seconds in the 100 yard butterfly, 200 yard breaststroke and backstroke) and Joanne Bathe, a pair of firsts in 100 yard freestyle and butterfly events.

Other OAC swimmers in the money were John Stafford with a pair of seconds and a third, Pauline Saunders a second, Nicole Saunders posted three thirds, Ginny Jackson two thirds, John Owen a third and Susan Beckett two thirds.

OAC swimmers are now looking for sponsors for their annual swim-a-thon to be held this weekend.

In Toronto on the weekend, in the preliminary meet of the Ontario age group championships at York University 11 teams took part.

Heather Messent had a first in the 100 meter butterfly, a second in 100 meter backstroke and another second in 200 yard individual medley.

Sharon Williams, taking part in the girls under 10 bracket; collected two thirds—100 meter individual medley and backstroke—while John Stafford had a first in the 50 meter freestyle and 100 meter individual medley.

This weekend at Scarboro OAC will be taking part in another meet.

Little NHL to host Yanks

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Last season, Fred Whalley called on his old lacrosse buddy, Jim Bishop, now executive director of the Detroit Red Wings to help form an exhibition series of games with Michigan teams.

As a result, the Canadian-American friendship proved successful as Whalley, now an executive member of the Little NHL, one of Oshawa's aggressive hockey setups, has expanded the tournament to include teams from Buffalo, NY.

This weekend the Little NHL will be hosting the American teams on Saturday and Sunday in a series of exhibition games.

Teams from the little NHL will be playing the Buffalo Regals, Oak Park Michigan Bruins, Southfield Michigan Scouts, Southfield Choctaws and Dearborn Michigan Mancinelli in a series of games.

Games will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. ea Saturday at the Aud and Sunday games will be played there in the morning with more games scheduled for the Harman Park Twin Pad Arena also on Sunday morning.

It is interesting to watch the improvement of the American developed players during recent years. In Little NHL play-offs Major Novice AA semi-finals, the series are all tied at a win apiece with Ruddy Electric Red Wings blanking Valeo Clothing North Stars 3-0 behind two goals by Joel Melnick and Eric Bosco.

All-Season Flyers squared their series with a 2-1 victory over Huzar Realty Blues. Mills Bruins lead the "AAA" semi-finals winning over Western Oil Rangers 4-1 on Jeff Welsh's two goals.

Major Novice "AAA" semi-finals are deadlocked at a win each as State Farm claimed a 4-1 victory only to have the Gaben Investment Leafs rebound with a 2-1 win.

A part of you lives on if you donate your eyes says Eye Bank

Those who will their eyes to the Eye Bank are giving the gift of sight to a cataract victim. In the photo at left, an eye specialist begins a cornea transplant operation with the aid of a special microscope. The operation is so delicate that he doesn't even wear surgical gloves which would cut down on the sensitivity of his fingers. In the bottom photo, a patient is examined for cataracts.

Habitat Foundation

Co-op housing takes teeth out of prices

Co-op housing has come to Oshawa

Last fall, a group of Oshawa citizens interested in some form of low-cost housing, other than public housing approached the Ontario Habitat Foundation for assistance in designing financing and building a co-operative housing project in the city

Co-op housing, unlike public or private housing, is unique in that it's owned and operated entirely by the residents and rents on the units are lower than other forms of housing

According to Hugh Coutts, president of the newly-formed board of directors of the co-op, there was a real need for this type of housing in Oshawa and information on other projects convinced him of the benefits

An example, he says is a co-op project on Manhatten Island in New York, where rents on co-op units are $189 a month, compared with $500 a month in units under the free enterprise system

Further advantages to a co-op development are that the only increase in costs are the result of tax increases or service costs, he says. On all other costs incurred, Coutts says the residents decide, even to the point of lowering the rents

These are some of the Oshawa residents waiting for their co-op housing units to be built on this property.

The Oshawa project on which construction will start this spring, will be located in the Cordova Road/Oxford Street area and is one of eight projects undertaken in conjunction with the Ontario Habitat Foundation in the province

According to Julie Case of the Habitat, any interested group can make use of the foundation's services in initiating a co-op project

The foundation assists the group in planning the project arranging Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation financing and giving any additional advice the group requires, even after the project is completed

In the case of Oshawa people wanting into the project provide a loan to the co-op which makes up the last five per cent of financing since CMHC will only finance 95 per cent of the total cost

This loan depends on the size of unit and can be anywhere from $700 to $1,000. Units in the project range from one bedroom to four bedrooms at monthly rentals from $142 to $218

The complex includes 97 units, a community centre with recreational facilities and a swimming pool. It is expected to be completed in early 1974

Ontario Habitat although co-ordinating construction of developments, also involves itself in re-constructing scheme or any other non profit co-operative venture

One project called 'Forward 9' involves the purchase and renovation of existing single family housing in London, Ont This project, the first of its kind in the province is being carried out in an area of that city which is run down

The project was initiated because a group of area residents wanted to preserve the character of the homes and community and at the same time prevent it from becoming a "slum area

Although just in the purchasing stage, when complete the homes will be let back to the members of the co-op The only cost the residents will face will be operating costs

The Oshawa project, says Miss Case, has had positive response with 14 members joining the co-op before anything was actually done. This, she says, shows the need for this type of housing in Oshawa

Scouts will blaze a trail to Eastdale

The Boy Scouts of Canada, Provincial Council for Ontario, will be holding its 62nd annual meeting on Saturday at 3:30 p.m. at Eastdale Collegiate Vocational Institute in Oshawa

Stan Lovell, provincial president for Ontario will preside over the meeting and the Annual Banquet to be held at the Holiday Inn

Scouters, Council and Committee personnel throughout Ontario will participate in the conference starting Friday evening at Camp Samac and continuing Saturday morning, 9:30 a.m. at Eastdale Collegiate

Theme speaker for the conference will be Dr. J E Anderson, Professor and Head of Department of Anatomy, McMaster Medical School

Dinner Speaker is Brigadier A. MacCorquodale Administrator Salvation Army House of Concord

Mammoth job of preparing city parks for summer begins

Because of the lack of snow and the constant thawing and freezing, you will have to roll your lawn this year

This is the expert opinion of Pat Kennedy, parks commissioner of the City of Oshawa, who has not just one lawn to be concerned about, but green space included in the many parks of the city numbering hundreds of acres

"People will find that their lawns require more rolling this spring," says Kennedy "Because of the lack of snow and thawing and freezing the grass has been pulled out by the roots"

"I would suggest that when the lawn becomes dry, that it should be rolled with a roller that isn't too heavy to ease the roots back into the soil, to just push them back down gently, he says

In preparing the gardens and lawns for which his department is responsible Kennedy says that first of all the ground has to be dry enough for men to walk on it before they can rake it and generally clean it up

This is followed up by fertilization and rolling of most of the grass in the parks and he says that the preparation varies as to the actual date of year because some springs are earlier than others and in some years there is more rain than others

Kennedy's department is responsible for the operation and maintenance of three outdoor swimming pools during the summer months, 58 parks, 60 baseball diamonds two outdoor lacrosse bowls four tennis courts 11 soccer fields, the grounds at the Civic Auditorium complex the police station, Hillsdale Manor City Hall and approximately 90 cul de-sacs (islands of grass contained in a court).

"We also operate a forestry branch and main-

Summer preparations

tain the planting and removal of all trees on city owned property and streets" he says

The Parks Department greenhouse on Farewell Avenue produces about 100,000 plants per year and is part of the department's horticultural section.

Kennedy says that the department is basically broken down into four sections: administration, gardening and horticultural, forestry and general maintenance

An added responsibility comes to the department this year in the form of the Ontario Summer Games

"There are two fields which have to be resodded for the summer games at the civic fields and a drainage system to be installed at the main field," says Kennedy

He says that the department will also be responsible for the construction of a press box as well as the general maintenance which must be kept up to date for the last week of June and first of July

"The preparation of the fields and resodding must be completed no later than May 25 to give the sod a chance to knit and be ready for play."

The extra work involved in the preparation of the fields for the summer games and the building of the press box will be contracted outside rather than hiring more workers for the Parks Department

"We have 40 people on staff permanently and temporary staff in the summer of about 22," says Kennedy. "It is an inter-woven type of operation in that the staff at certain times of year coordinate by doing different jobs"

Another major part of getting the parks into shape for use during the warmer months, is the installation of playground equipment in the parks throught the city

This involves painting and repairing of slides, swings, back stops for baseball diamonds and making sure the bases are all located properly and ready for play

"A very large area of the department's work is in keeping the grass cut," he says. "It has been quite a job in the last few years because of the warmer weather in the fall. We have been cutting grass from early May right through to November"

Kennedy, who was with the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests for 17 years, graduated from the Ontario Forest Rangers School in 1952 and was superintendent of Presquile Provincial Park at Brighton for six years before his position with the City of Oshawa

"I like to see all the parks enjoyed—used but not damaged," he says.

The loneliness of the long-distance swimmer

By John Bell
Staff Writer

Everybody into the pool!

At 6 a.m. four mornings a week, 23 young people between nine and 17 years of age take the plunge into the Centennial Pool at the Civic Auditorium, for one and a half hours of rigorous swim training

These 23 youths, along with another 66, make up the Oshawa Aquatics Club, and each has the potential for representing Oshawa in a variety of competitions from regional to national. Many already have.

Julie Pascoe, a shy, 13-year-old blonde from Pickering Village, has been involved in the training program for the past seven years, part of that time spent at the Simcoe Hall Boy's Club pool.

Despite the fact she's small for her age, Julie is one of the top swimmers in her age group, breaking a few records in the province, and accumulating some 50 ribbons, six trophies and 12 medals, including bronze and silver

When she's not in the water, she is doing exercises at home to keep in shape. Asked what her ambition would be if anything were possible, she says quietly: "I'd like to go the Olympics, but I doubt it

Julie has no idea what standards she'd ever have to meet to qualify for the Olympics, and her mother is quick to point out that since time records are continuously being broken, it would be hard to tell what the qualifications would be

Training for the Olympics would mean an increase in training time for Julie, from the present four hours a week to 16 hours, and would mean professional coaching which unfortunately is not available in this area, yet

All coaching at the club is done on a strictly volunteer basis, says Jim Smart, Julie's coach since she began training and assistant director of aquatics at the Centennial Pool

Likes to swim

Julie says she swims because she likes it. Her parents say as long as this is the case, that's fine with them and they would never force her to compete against her wishes. Smart sees the training as part of a broad experience, and the competition a lesson in life

While he's pleased with the effort put into the training by Julie and her team-mates, Smart says he also likes to see the kids allowed to go in for other things too

This he says, gives the youth a "well rounded experience, so he or she is not limited to one sport

"When you concentrate on one thing, it deprives the child of other sports and the social aspect of being with other people, and these experiences are important in the development of that child"

Smart says that every child should be involved in some form of sport or another mainly because of the challenge

By this, he says he means that when the child loses in a competition, he or she learns to accept their inadequacies and feel that even if they didn't win this time, there's always the next.

"Basically", he says, "it's life in a nutshell You don't always win."

The greatest difficulty for the competitive swimmer, he says, is putting up with the hours of training day after day. To swim laps of the pool again and again, hammer away at themselves until they get where they want to be

Mouthful of water

They're literally all on their own, he says; there's no other sport where a person is so alone. In other sports you can always talk to your team-mates to get encouragement, but in swimming, he says smiling, if you open your mouth, you get a mouthful of water

The critical period for the swimmer comes at age 15, says Smart. At this age, the youth is in high school and is exposed to the school environment

Everything conflicts, he says, and there can be pressure on the youth to turn to school-oriented sports and give up swimming. There is also the social atmosphere to be considered

Julie's parents are well aware of this Her father says it's not worth it for her to spend 16 hours a week training until she's 15-years-old

If she doesn't get "boy crazy", says her father, then it shows that her drive and interest in swimming competitively is an important part of her life

The other problem faced by 15-year-olds Smart says, is that the youth no longer competes in his or her own age class. They then swim in

Well, there's always next year for Gens

By Jim Shaw
Sports editor

Perhaps General Manager and Coach Gus Bodnar of the Oshawa Generals can write off the 1972-3 O H A Major Junior "A" season

Certainly the Gens where a complete disappointment to their fans during the season and in the play-offs against the pesky Memorial Cup finalists Peterboro TPT Petes

Last year the Gens were the talk of the league with their exciting rookies and fancy style of play which had them leading the pack nearly to the half-way mark of the season before finishing a strong second behind the Toronto Marlboros

A bright future was predicted with 14 players returning to the roster Injuries played a major role against the Gens as it seemed all season that some player or other was out of action with various ailments and for the most part the team had players still playing with minor hurts.

As a result, Bodnar was forced to make changes for almost every game As it turned out, Gens finished a disappointing sixth and played less than 500 hockey games during the 63 game schedule

Looking at the future it doesn't look too bright unless Bodnar's scouts can come up with a handful of top rookies. Gens lost five players to overage including Don Selling, Rick Middleton, Walt Johnson and Nels Pyatt, all forwards, and rearguard Guido Tenisi

Unlike the year earlier, where rookies like Johnson, Middleton and Bill Lochead all fired over 30 goals during the year, Gens number one draft pick Andy Whitby, a pepperpot rightwinger managed only seven this past term

Other freshmen Paul Heaver, Peter Vandemark, Pat Ribble and Scott Mabley just didn't have good rookie years

Defenceman Lee Fogolin who has seen limited action against Peterboro due to an injury and Bill Lochead and Brian Kinsella are the players the Gens have to build around

Rick St. Croix should be the best goalie in the league next year

This fall the O.H.A. Major Junior "A" League will welcome in a new club from Kingston making it an 11-team league and the schedule will probably be increased to 70 games

Belleville Bob Cats are seeking a Provincial Junior "A" franchise replacing Kingston in that league

Ladies curling

OCC gals finish season

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Looking at the female curlers on the ice lanes at the Oshawa Curling Club, you won't recognize the skills that were performed during the regular schedule of play during the past winter

It was the closing banquet for the gals at OCC and wild costumes were the order of the day Theme of the windup was the "Good old Days" and most the gals outdid themselves with interesting and much talked about outfits

Highlight of the wrap-up was the auction sale conducted by Lorraine Goodman

Trophies were awarded at the banquet including the McIntosh trophy presented by first vice-president Joan Bryce to a rink skipped by Ede Gearing with her teammates Marg Cox, Millie Olynyk and Barb Lawlor

The ladies of the Oshawa Curling Club dressed in period costume to round out the season

The McBrien Picture trophy was presented by life member Mayme Taylor who has attended every closing for past 30 years to skip Belva Cain and her team comprised of June Moore, Helen Patti and Betty Watson

June Moore, second vice president of OCC, awarded the Jamieson trophy for junior curlers to skip Ev Tunnicliffe and her crew of Pat Bilenduke, Marilyn Kellar and Elsie Richards.

OCC ladies president Eileen Goulding presented the McLaughlin trophy to skip Mary Pollard, who had Mable Gibbie, Nancy Smith and Eve Sanford as members

Skip Ruth Clemens won the Thompson trophy and she happily accepted the trophy from Mary McLean. Members of the Clemens foursome were Audrey Shreve, Betty Campbell and Lorraine Worden

The Club trophy went to skip Irene Gunn with Orma Lean, Millie Olynyk and Sheila Kerr. A new trophy this season, the Matthews award, donated by Ken and Betty Mathews for leads and seconds, went to Marion McKay skip, Helen Piatti, Grace Suddard and Greta Tutton

The annual election of officers for the 1973-4 season with will be next Tuesday at OCC

Up at the Golf and Curling club, the ladies season finished up with two eight-end games. Winning foursomes included Helen Broadbent, Marg Baldwin, Lorraine Goodman and Ann Wardlaw. Second were Elsie Chambers, Betty Roughly, Shirley Gelette and Barb Ellis, third Babs Henry, Donna Dickerson, Helen Arbuckle and Zena Austin, and fourth Ollwen Rolsen, Jayne Kirkaldy, Eleanor Heney and Helen Hayball.

Baker Park pad is a success

A splash pad, a 40-foot concrete pad with water jets, installed in Baker Park on a trial basis has passed the test according to Pat Kennedy, commissioner of parks and property for Oshawa

The pad had been installed in the park as a type of substitute to a swimming pool, and was specially designed to be totally safe for younger children

When this original pad was installed, no allowance was made for immediately extending the idea to other parks until a one-year trial period had ended

With the time up, Kennedy says "I'm proud to say we've had no problem with the pad and no vandalism."

He says there are now plans to extend the idea to other parks, but that no word can be given until after the city's capital budget is in, as to how many of the pads are to be installed if the nod is given by council and board of control

by jim shaw

Saginaw, Mich. and Oshawa have a lot in common. Both are about the same size. Both are highly industrial areas controlled by the automobile giant, General Motors

Up until a year ago, this is all the two towns had in common. However from a sports end of it, similarity ended right there

Wren Blair, the old Oshawa milkman who is the bossman of the Minnesota North Stars in the National Hockey League, took a liking to Saginaw and the upstate city began to look like another Oshawa hockey town

Blair figured that hockey could be successful in Saginaw. The city was just erecting a new Civic Centre similiar to our Civic Auditor ium in Oshawa Actually the Civic Centre in Saginaw is a little bit bigger in seating capacity

Blair had a couple of strikes against him before he started a minor pro club in Saginaw. The location of the arena, which is the eastern poorer section of the city had no parking

Somehow in the redevelopment program, Blair arranged to have a new parking area set up across the street from the new arena, home of the new International franchise club to be nicknamed the Gears

A town located just 20 miles down the super highway, Flint had already established itself as a hockey hotbed, having sellout crowds of over 4,000 per game

It would almost seem that the "Bird" was turning back the clock a few years when the "Aud" was built. He was following the same script

The hockey season is now finished for the Gears; they were successful at the gate, averaging over 3,000 for a last-place team in the Northern division

Gears won their share of games but lost twice as many. Actually the calibre of hockey in the International league is about the same as the Provincial Junior "A" loop

It's exciting, crowd pleasing with plenty of fights, goal scoring and poor defencive work

This is what the American patrons like. To us when we witnessed a game in Saginaw, they just didn't seem to understand the finer points of the shinny sport

You've got to give Blair credit, he sold the game of hockey in Saginaw and the future looks bright

Ten pin bowlers at Eastway Lanes climaxed another successful winter season with the annual awards night on the weekend

Fred May owner of the Eastway house presented the annual pins to bowlers with the top triple scores over the past season

In the men's division bowlers must have had a 700 plus and accepting pins were Rick Bagg (718) Johnny Lawrence (738) Alex Ross (739), Don McLaughlin (744), Ron Poulton (705), Walt Vervynck (720), Fred May (709), Red Hardie (701), Bill Warburton, (700) and Rick Burtch (705)

Girls have to have had a 600 plus and accepting pins were Carol Judd (678) Carol Gibbs (609) Josie Reid (618) Carolynn Poulton (603) Joan Ross (606) Marg Cole (657) Doris Vann (638), Onda Gunn (601), Muriele Guay (600), Donna Carter (600) and Bev Doran (600).

Other awards presented included the Men's singles trophy to Walt Vervynck (703) and doubles Nick Ryshkow and Herm Prakken with a combined total of 1407

The team championship was captured by Don's Shell with a pin fall of 3361 Team members were Ed Klam, Nick Ryschkow, Don Mason, and Herm Prakken.

Nick Ryschkow took the All Events with a 2036; singles 'B winner was Dave "Tiny" Fatham (715), doubles were Randy Stewart and Fred Hunter with a 1365 total and the Mission Impossible team won the team award with a 3204

Members were Bill Raderford, Russ Cavel Ian Denholm, Bob Pellerin and Bobb Woodward Woodward took down the All Event "B" laurels with a 2015

Ladies section team winners were the Pacers with a 3314 with Carol Judd, Betty Thomson Linda March, Judy Guay and Murielle Guay as team members

Doubles champs were Phyllis Watt and Marg Holly with a 1372; Carol Gibbs was top triple winner 696 and all-event winner was Carol Judd with a 1633 Bev Madigan, rolling with handicap, had a 2047

In five-pin bowling, only one week remains before the play-offs in the Motor City Mens Major League with hot scores being rolled.

Eight men rolled over 800 and another 37 topped the 700 mark

Over the 800 circle were Jack "Red" MacDermaid (889), Don Duncan (864), Al Tarantu (847), Andy Vanderende (837), Ernie McIlwraith (821) John Trott (814) Bob Bomhof (803) and Dave Conboy 802

In the Toronto District League, Whitby's Jim's Stage door were whitewashed at Plaza Bowl by April Lanes For the first time in six weeks the Doormen had more than five bowlers, but did nothing to improve the scoring. Out of a possible 30 points during this period the Doormen have copped only seven

Best for the Hotelmen were Mickey McMaster (1214), Tony Desjardines (1177), Bob Gallagher (1050), Harry Gullard (1000), Andy Vanderande (815) and Ron Jay in relief for 454

Ringette finally catches public

For years now, girls ringette enthusiasts have been trying to sell the game to the public without much success.

Hockey has always been number one for the Oshawa sporting fraternity during the winter months.

But hard work and a never-say-die attitude has finally prevailed as the first annual tri-provincial ringette championship held at Harmon Park proved to be a major success.

Don Cullen, president of the Ringette Association in Oshawa, welcomed teams from Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. A total of 32 teams took part in the two-day event and capacity crowds were on hand to witness the championships

In all, nearly 600 players took part and Cullen reported that his championship should grow into an annual event and he would like Oshawa to host the championship again next season.

"It's very encouraging," said Cullen. "This year we were forced to turn away 15 clubs. However next year the Ringette championship will be bigger and that's a guarantee." A perfect example of enthusiasm for the games was that 32 parents flew in from Winnipeg to witness them.

Roxboro defeated Pierre Fonds 8-6 to take the Petites title for girls from ages 8 to 10. In the "B" division of the Petites, Oshawa was forced into overtime before claiming a 10-8 decision over Sudbury Ridgecrest

Sandra Burgess scored five goals with Marg Ekker adding a pair of goals and Diane Muller, Heather Cullen and Cathy Clapp scoring singles

Oshawa Astros took the Tweens crown in "A" division for girls 11 to 13 defeating Pierre Fonds 11-2. Kelly Scero scored five goals with her sister Linda, Dawn Davis, Ruth Neal, Cindy MacGuire and Karen Greentree sharing the others

Kitchener took the "B" title winning over Winnipeg 13-4 Montreal Mount Royal took the Belles "A" division for girls 14-16 taking Sudbury 16-3 while Roxboro defeated Oshawa Belairs 7-2 in the "B" finals. Debbie Scero and Marg Brill scored for Oshawa

Cullen had a lot of praise for his executive including his wife Greta Cullen, Don and Cathy Davis, Betty Skinner, Bill and Laura Watson and the Hostess Maureen Lynch for an outstanding job during the tournament

Baseball registration set for weekend

Jim Lutton, president of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No. 43 baseball program, has announced that baseball registration will take place twice on the weekend at the Legion Hall on Simcoe Street South.

Friday night signing takes place between 6 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and Saturday's from 9 a.m to 12 noon. Players interested in playing minor baseball in Oshawa are requested to be on hand.

Lutton is also looking for volunteer help in running teams in all divisions this year and interested parties should call 725-4888

HOW WE SEE IT

By Don Seiling
Of the Oshawa Generals

After a disheartening slam-blasting going into the Peterboro Memorial Gardens from our GM-Coach Gus Bodnar, we should have least gained a tie in the opening game of the O.H.A. Major Junior "A" quarter finals

We should have learned a lot from that 6-4 first game defeat. The defeat was costly as Rick St. Croix, our goalie, was just brillant, and Lee Fogolin captain suffered costly injuries.

Both of them had to be helped to the bus on the return trip back to Oshawa. This defeat and the loss of Rick and Lee along with Nels Pyatt who is out for the season has made our task almost impossible.

I know that I haven't played that well and most of our guys were guilty of giveaway play. It's funny when you have to keep coming back in a game or a series

I've never played on a club that was blessed with so many different kinds of hurts than ours Injuries cut a big hole in the line-up and forces us to make countless changes in the line-up

Our club is a proud one, and playing against the Petes who have a full line-up and three strong scoring lines it makes our task sometimes described as Mission Impossible

Our club doesn't give up; we've got a lot of pride inside

We'll go out fighting. After all you get only a couple of chances of capturing a Memorial Cup and this is my last

Ray Rankin (left), manager of the McDonalds Restaurant in Oshawa, and Wayne Dempster his counterpart in Whitby, are locked in mock combat to represent the competition the two outlets have set up. Whichever restaurant sells the most passports for the Ontario Summer Games wins the trophy in the background.

the open category, meaning they are often competing against top swimmers from across the province and the country who are two or three years older

To help overcome this, Smart says what he wants now is another age class, from 15 to 17-years-old, to give these kids a chance

Smart stresses the difference between swimming and training to swim. On the one hand, he says, when you learn the basics it's enjoyable just to swim, but on the other, you practise these basics towards developing the physical stamina for endurance and hopefully to cut down the time to complete laps of the pool.

Actually, in competition, the swimmer is not out to beat another swimmer, but to beat time, and that, he says, is really a battle they can never win because as soon as they beat their own time, they have to try to better that and so on.

Smart had hoped to put Julie in the 11 and 12-year-old backstroke competition in the Ontario Championships this year, but she turned 13 in October, which meant she had to begin again to qualify for the next age group

She did qualify, he says, but in a longer distance event. If any swimmer on the team deserves to do well, he says, it's her and she's achieved quite a lot of results this year

Paradise is.....

Rossland Park's fireside lounge

The most common complaint about apartment living is that you never get to know any of your neighbors. In Rossland Park, this just isn't so

The fireside lounge at Rossland Park's Country Club is the gathering place of residents from the townhouses, apartment homes and tower apartments in the complex. And as of July 1, they will be joined by residents in the new garden apartments

The Country Club's recreation director arranges frequent parties in the lounge where dancing and sing-alongs are the order of the day

There are also Bridge nights art classes and many informal gatherings where groups get together for instant parties and card games

The decor of the fireside lounge is elegant enough for you to be proud to bring your guests in for a visit, yet warm and comfortable enough for you to feel relaxed after a busy day

On a warm summer evening, the glass wall of the lounge slides back to allow you to enjoy a cool breeze on the terrace while you watch your neighbors relaxing in the outdoor pool In winter, the huge fireplace in the lounge is a great spot to ward off those sub-zero chills

With piped-in stereo music and a fully-equipped kitchen, the fireside lounge offers the ultimate in relaxation Many Rossland Park residents have compared it to the type of recreational area found in some of the finer resorts

And the nice thing about it is that membership in The Country Club is yours automatically when you become a member of Rossland Park

Why not join us in Paradise?

Paradise is also a Rossland Park garden apartment because it gives you the best of both worlds — carefree apartment living and the privacy of your own home

Garden apartments will be ready for occupancy July 1. They'll go fast, so drop in and reserve yours today.

Once upon a time .....

There once was a man called Clegg,
"Where's a nice home" he would beg
Tell me where can I see
A place for my family,
That won't cost me an arm and a leg?"

A good friend said to him cheerfully,
"The spot where I live you should see
It's brand-new in town
But the best place aroun'
It's to Summit Place that you should journee" (sorry about that)

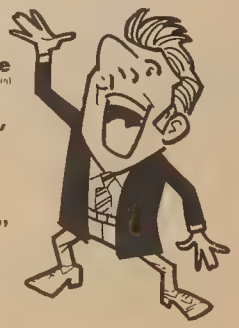
To Summit Place he ran in great haste
To find suites that were perfect in taste
Party Rooms and two Saunas
And a pool that's enormous
And he said to himself "I'm amazste
(sorry again)



"It's just perfect" he said to his wife,
" peaceful and friendly, no strife
And the price is just right
We'll move in tonight
And live happily the rest of our life"

The moral of our little tale is that if you're thinking of moving home.drop in and see what Summit Place has to offer. Talk to one of our Rental staff and see what luxury can come your way at a price that'll simply amaze you

McTeer brings American knowhow

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Oshawa Hawkeyes have again reached into the coaches bag and have come of with another American-developed mentor

Bill McTeer, 25, comes to the Hawkeyes as the new field boss replacing Mike Kirkpatrick who resigned his post a few months back

Like Kirkpatrick McTeer had his football knowledge fathered below the border in the States

Kirkpatrick is rumored to be taking over the head coaching job with the York Yeoman in the Inter-collegiate football league.

McTeer a Canadian is a native of London and just recently moved to Oshawa He and Green Gaels coach Ron Pithers are bachelor roommates in Oshawa

McTeer has quite an impressive background in football and comes to the Hawkeyes highly recommended by Argo's million dollar quarterback Greg Barton who now acts as Toronto's Canadian scout and developer of local talent for the Canadian Football League Club

He played highschool football at London Catholic High and toiled as a running back. Later in college he played with Western Universits and worked the defensive back slot.

He then moved to the Universits of Montana and served as freshman coach He coached Bob O'Billovich and Willie Polster, now members in the CFL

A teacher at Centennial College in Scarborough, McTeer played last season with the London Lords of the Ontario Senior Football League.

Questioned about the type of offence he intends to use McTeer said he wants to assess the type of talent he has before he actually maps out the strategy

He would like to operate the Wishbone type of offence which has been so successful for Darryl Royal, head coach with Texas in college ball and a former coach of his. Jack Swarthout.

Naturally to operate this type of offence employing a full house backfield, the large aggressive type line-men is needed

In regards to defence he would like to operate with a 4-3-5 setup but again this again depends on the talent available

Hawkeyes seem to have an abundance of talent around losing only a few However with a new man at the helm McTeer claims every position will be wide open

Some of the mainstays returning to the Hawkeyes include Terry Clements, Paul Nelson, Ralph Stay Brian and Roger Barrage, Bruce Williams, Charlie MacDermaid Kevin Colin Danny Stokes, Paul Harper, Doug Lowrey, Ron Dancy, Joe Szimanski, Randy Church and Jerry Turner

Hawkeyes expect to begin training camp in about eight weeks with league play scheduled to start in early July

They expect to improve on last years 7 7 record and are counting on the year s experience to be a major factor in producing a winner

President Rick Askew of the Oshawa Hawkeyes (left) and Eddie Aru, Hawkeyes' general manager (right), have signed Bill McTeer, (centre) as the new coach of the football club.

By Peter Brouwer

It won't be a long lakeshore strip region

Four eastern townships, including Port Hope and Cobourg will be left out

Instead, a number of northern municipalities will join Ontariopolis

That's how the future of the area is shaping up, now that Queen's Park has received a number of submissions from the city towns and townships involved in a proposal for an Oshawa-centred region

Why the change in provincial government plans?

Political pressure, that's what

Cobourg and Port Hope according to a number of Queen's Park sources have brought "tremendous pressure to bear on the Davis Government to "leave them alone"

And while it is becoming obvious from a number of private sources and even public hints from top government brass that Port Hope and Cobourg will be out the question of the eastern boundary of Ontariopolis is still up in the air and subject to negotiation

Cobourg and Port Hope want Clarke Township to stay with their area, while Queen's Park officials see the line of demarcation between Clarke and Hope townships

The latest indication of a change under pressure by Queen's Park came last week in a speech by Provincial Treasurer John White

Speaking to the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario, White never used the names "Port Hope" or "Cobourg" in his references, but he continued to stress "flexibility of attitude towards municipal proposals which would be viewed very carefully and sympathetically"

Queen's Park has received one municipal blast after another from

Closed door raise has hurt council 's image

If there is such a thing as a public relations course specifically for members of city council, then Oshawa's 17 municipal representatives had better enroll right away

Even if they had tried, they couldn't have come up with a faster way to get the taxpayers all riled up than they did last week by voting themselves a substantial raise behind closed doors

All of this could have been avoided by a sane and rational discussion of the reasons why a raise was justified—a discussion at a public meeting where residents and the press could hear what individual council members had to say

But no. As on other occasions in the short life of this particular body, council decided to draw a veil of secrecy around their deliberations, thus making the taxpayer wonder what they have to hide

Few people would argue that council members deserve the raises. A $23,000-plus salary isn't out of line for the head of a corporation the size of Oshawa And $5,500 isn't too much for aldermen

But to vote themselves this increase behind closed doors is an insult to the people who put these individuals where they are today

One council member has tried to explain away the closed session by saying that the salary issue could have been used as a political football by other members not named

This might well be. But since the taxpayers are the ones who are paying for this particular "football game", they have every right to watch it

Reaction to the pay raise has been highly vocal. Our Readers Write pages contain only a representative sample of the many letters we received on the issue —all of them opposed to the raise

One citizen's group has threatened to take the matter to the Ontario Municipal Board but a spokesman in the city solicitor's office says the pay raise bylaw does not require OMB approval

Furthermore, the spokesman says, the bylaw may not even require a two-thirds majority vote of approval, depending on how it is worded

No matter what council decides to do, its members have done themselves quite a bit of harm by hiding behind closed doors on this matter. It's an expensive lesson to learn, but hopefully it HAS been learned.

Tempo, clean up your act

Every once in awhile, an incident arises which causes editorial writers a lot of consternation.

The issue is one that cries out for editorial comment and yet is of such a nature that the writer is damned if he does and damned if he doesn't.

Such an event took place in the Ontariopolis region last week with the distribution of a tabloid publication called Tempo to homes in the area.

The publication is a monthly supplement put out by the Ajax News-Advertiser and therein lies the problem for This Week's editorial writer.

To criticize the publication lays us open to the charge of attempting to discredit a possible competitor for our own gain. But there are a number of reasons why Tempo has to be criticized.

The April issue contains several photographs of nude women that if not obscene are at least outside the realm of good taste. One of them accompanies an article on a topless "masseuse" in Toronto and shows a girl stripped to the waist bent over a reclining male.

A number of stories and headlines in the publication also leave a lot to be desired.

The publication first came to our attention when a number of irate readers of This Week called to complain, thinking that since it was delivered on Wednesday and in tabloid format we were responsible for it.

If nothing else, we would like to point out emphatically that we have absolutely no connection with the publication nor any desire to.

While we realize that we are living in a fairly sophisticated society, we feel that the News-Advertiser has greatly erred in publishing some of the material in Tempo.

It's one thing for a person to go out and buy Flash or Hush or the National Enquirer. That's his right and we wouldn't want to see it taken away.

But to have publications of that nature delivered unsolicited to one's door is another thing and it's disturbing to think that fellow journalists could make such a mistake in judgment.

Sunday's warm weather provided a perfect opportunity for youngsters in the Ontariopolis region to wheel out their 10-speeds and race with the wind. Gordon Stone, 13, (left) and his brother Sean, 12, obviously don't have a care in the world as they speed along an Oshawa street.

Obstetricians, Alice and lunchpail

by peter brouwer

I'll bet quite a few readers let out a soft curse or two last week when they ripped the front page because the darn paper wouldn't open up. . . . Just give us all a few weeks and we'll get used to it, right? And don't forget you can still take the paper's second section into the bathtub with you and read at leisure without getting the ends all wet. (Although, one reader reports he can do that even with the big section, because of his long arms.)

At any rate, for all of us at the paper the production of last week's first part-tabloid, part-broadsheet paper was a little bit like delivering a brand new baby. A combination pressman-typographer-editor-reporter actually does add up to representing the closest thing to an obstetrician if you know what I mean And while we'll all do our best to help the new baby grow and prosper, I hope this will be the last mention of an obstetrician for a while. I don't know what it is about the staff at This Week, but every week one of them is handing out cigars, only to come back a few days later to ask old dad Brouwer for some advice which, as a father of six, I hand out liberally and freely. Biggest problem these days it would appear, is that the new moms and dads have read so many special pocket books about exactly how, what, where and when with the new baby, that by the time junior does arrive on the scene, they are thoroughly confused. Confucius say: "Throw out Dr. Spock and all the rest and do what comes naturally." Just because baby cries a little doesn't mean she hates her parents

It's great though, to see all these little carrier boys and girls sprout up all over the Ontariopolis Region

All of which reminds me

In Saturday's Oshawa Times I found yet another entry in that paper's presentation of "watchacallit", which appears to stand for something in connection with finding a nme for the Region

This Week ran a contest a few months ago, received a half page full of entires from which "Ontariopolis" was picked as the winner We've used the name ever since. It's beginning to have a nice ring to it, we think. And even the Tymes of Osh—as the chronicler calls it—is using it. That in itself is an accomplishment. Although, let me add, the Times doesn't think much of the name. It is asking its readers under the "watchacallit" heading how terrible they find the name Ontariopolis Why, Saturday's Tymes quoted former Alderwoman Reardon (remember Alice?) as saying "Ontariopolis' is ugly Why "ugly", Alice dear? Alice says it shouldn't be McLaughlin Region either, but something completely different, like the sound of Thunder Bay. Nothing definite though

But both Alice and the Tymes and all others who don't like Ontariopolis can rest assured Even Charlie McIlveen, MPP, doesn't like it. And you can bet that Big Bill Davis will call him aside before too long, to ask, "what the hell ARE we going to call it Charles?" And Charles will say

Well, what will you say, Charles?

East Lunchpail?

the mainliner

One store in Oshawa's downtown area has a funny way of attracting customers. After a recent heavy rain, a customer was walking into the store and was doused with a considerable quantity of rainwater that had accumulated in the store's awning Needless to say, she diecided to shop elsewhere.

There was a rather ironic situation occurred at an Oshawa movie theatre recently where the marquee advertised the movie "Love Under 17" and a sign below it stated: Restricted to persons 18 years of age and over.

Our condolences go out to the editor of Durham Report, a Durham College publication. The gremlins that sooner or later botch things up in publications large and small caused one letter to be dropped in a story about a lawyer in the current edition of the magazine, turning him form a lawyer into something less socially acceptable.

And speaking of those gremlins, they managed to foul up a story in last week's edition of This Week as well. So for those of you who noticed, aldermen's salaries were raised by $2,500, not $3,000.

It's getting so bad these days that you can't even judge a book by its cover. On a recent visit to Reid's bookstore in Oshawa, a staff member eagerly bought two books by his favorite author, only to find when he got home, settled in his favorite chair and put his feet up for a few hours of reading that both books were ones he had read recently under different titles.

This Week's telephones began to ring madly a few days ago with callers announcing that the Third World War must have started because the air raid siren was sounding. A check with Emergency Measures revealed that it was actually Oshawa's gigantic outdoor vancuum cleaner which cleans debris away for sewage outlets. But it brought up a good point. Where would everyone have run to anyway to escape the holocaust?

People calling in alarms brought a story from one staff member who recalled that just before an eclipse of the sun, the radio station he was working for at the time ran announcements warning parents to prevent their children from staring directly into the sun during the eclipse. This prompted one irate mother to phone in and ask: "If these eclipses are so unsafe, why do they hold them in the first place?"

To prove a point, one Oshawa housewife actually dragged her bathroom scales outside Monday and weighed her garbage! It seems the sanitary engineers on her street collected her bagged garbage but left two cans untouched. She complained to city officials who retorted that her garbage was over the 50-pound-per-can limit. The housewife, who says she's five foot five and weighs 110 pounds, told the officials that the cans couldn't weigh that much because she carried them out herself. When she called them back to tell them she had weighed the cans and found them under the limit by 10 pounds in one case and two pounds in the other, the city threw in the towel and made a special trip to collect the garbage.

Muhammed Ali -- silenced but still admired

by tom douglas

At the risk of having our sports editor, Jim Shaw, stuff my typewriter with stale cigar butts (and nobody's are staler), I feel I should start this column by stating that I know next to nothing about sports

I have no idea how many points you get for a field goal in hockey or how many strikes it takes to get you out in basketball.

I have never been able to understand how people, our own Peter Franklin for one, can waste a whole afternnon watching grown men like Jack Palmer and Arnold Nicklaus swatting a little white ball around a big field.

And this is rather strange considering that my two brothers were hockey and baseball crazy when we were all growing up back home in the Soo.

Nevertheless, there are certain sports events that spill over into other areas of life, attracting the attention of even we unathletic weirdos. (In Sault Ste. Marie—home of Phil and Tony Esposito, Chico and Wayne Maki, Louis Nanne, Marty and Matt Pavelich, Matt Ravelich and other hockey stars—anyone who takes a dim view of sports is considered weird).

One such event took place last week; the boxing match in which Cassius Clay or Muhammed Ali, whichever you prefer, went more than 11 rounds with a previous nobody, Ken Norton, while suffering a broken jaw

To say boxing is a brutal sport would be like saying Spiro Agnew is a loudmouth; everybody knows that.

And yet all of us in this flabby, luxury-oriented society have to admire a man who shows the kind of guts and determination it takes to stick with something under the cruelest of adversities.

I'm not just talking about Clay staying in the ring with a broken jaw. That was just an allegorical end to a career that has been filled with wicked blows

The wickedest of all perhaps were the cute phrases the jackals of journalism, the boxing writers, used in describing the fight. The Toronto Star's account was fairly typical: Muhammed Ali is finally left without words, said the headline

"No longer loquacious" was the title on the caption showing the former champion wincing at a blow thrown by Norton.

Sure, Cassius Clay was cocky and loud. But that was all part of an act that brought the big purses back to a sport that was rapidly replacing Parcheesi as the world's least-popular spectator event

But when it came to standing up for one's beliefs, Cassius Clay was willing to allow them to strip him of his title and to face a possible jail term rather than fight in a war he didn't believe in.

He was a man doing the best he could at the only job he has ever known. I'd rather have a man like that backing me up in a tight spot than all the Richard Nixons and General Westmorelands and John Waynes in the world.

This Week's offer of a trip to any of Air Canada's overseas destinations for participants in Fanfare For Oshawa Week has Joe Mullin of Oshawa tooting his tuba in anticipation of a flight to Moscow or Vienna or Shannon or. . . See page 5 for details

Oshawa lawyer wins highest civil damage suit in County history

What is believed to be the largest award in a civil suit in Ontario County was handed down in Supreme Court last week.

Michael Shuttleworth of Bowmanville was awarded $176,000 in general and special damages for injuries suffered in a car accident in May 1970

Shuttleworth's lawer, John Humphreys of Oshawa, called as witnesses two prominent Toronto medical men to testify that the 25-year-old father of two had suffered permanent mental and physical damage in the accident

The mishap took place on County Road 57 north of Bowmanville when Shuttleworth was attempting to pass a large house trailer being towed by Lloyd Graham Johnston of Bowmanville

As Shuttleworth's vehicle drew alongside the Johnston car, the defendant attempted to turn left into a sideroad, striking the Shuttleworth vehicle and causing it to flip over a number of times.

Dr. William L. Lougheed, a brain surgeon, and Dr. John P Kostuik, an orthopedic surgeon, both on the staff of Toronto General Hospital, testified as to Shuttleworth's injuries.

Under questioning from Humphreys, they said that Shuttleworth suffered a permanent loss of memory, loss of co-ordination, a fractured collarbone, pelvis, left thighbone and right elbow, a torn bladder and a collapsed lung

As a result of brain damage, Shuttleworth's speech is slurred and he staggers when he walks giving him the appearance of a man under the influence of alcohol

The medical men testified that pins in the thigh bone and elbow could eventually lead to arthritis and that as a result of the broken thigh, Shuttleworth's left leg is 1½ inches shorter than his right.

Humphreys was able to prove that the defendant was on the road with defective signal lights and with only one small rear-view mirror mounted on the dender of his vehicle even though he was towing a trailer.

This prompted the jury to find Johnston 75 per cent responsible for the accident. Since there was evidence that Shuttleworth had probably been speeding at the time he was found 25 per cent responsible, reducing the settlement to about $132 000

Part of the reason for the large settlement was that while Shuttleworth is employed at a body shop at $3 an hour, a witness called by Humphreys said that the man who replaced Shuttleworth after his accident was now making $14 000 annually

In addition, the proprietor of the body shop indicated that the only reason he kept Shuttleworth on was that he had been a personal friend before the accident and that Shuttleworth's performance had to be supervised continually and often corrected

Don't give them raise until next term says reader

Sir

Regarding City Council's decision to vote themselves a considerable raise in pay, I should like to state that while I have no objection to any man being paid what he is worth, it is my considered opinion that if that rule was strictly adhered to some of our esteemed aldermen might starve to death.

Ald McArthur has stated that as he spends 35 hours a week on the job it doesn't amount to the minimum wage Quite true. But I would venture to suggest that members of the public did not exactly beat the doors of his house down to persuade him to run for office.

No, as Ed Kolodzie has stated, he, in company with everyone else on Council knew exactly what the score was in that direction before running for office

The same applies to Ald Dewar who feels that perhaps councillors need a union. As a strong union man I wouldn't argue with that, just as long as the union negotiates with his employers, the public, you and me.

What's good enough for the members of the U A W ought to be good enough for him

Ald DeHart, in an interview with your paper, has stated that he believes meetings concerning raises in salaries should be behind closed doors and apparently is afraid of being misquoted

Judging by some of the errors I have seen in both our local papers, I can sympathize with him up to a point

However, I feel his main objection really is that if these meetings were held in public, people would see just who exactly voted for what.

I firmly believe that the public has every right to sit in on these discussions as they after all are paying the bills and if any alderman lacks the courage to stand up and be counted on a motion such as this, then he does not deserve to be in public office

I must emphasize again that I am not against members of council getting a raise in salary; it's the methods they employ to obtain it which I criticize

Mayor Potticary complains of the unfortunate system in Canada whereby members of Council have to set their own salaries

I think I may just be able to assist him in his dilemma Until such time that a better means has been devised, perhaps in the not too distant future when regional government comes into effect I would suggest to him and to Council that no pay raise shall come into effect during the life of the council which voted on it.

Rather it should be the rule that such a raise shall only become effective upon the assumption of office by the next duly-elected council.

I believe that this is a very fair and very reasonable proposal in view of the fact that at no time during the election campaign do I personally recall any of the present members of Council or Board of Control advocating such a raise in salaries.

Therefore I feel that if Mayor Potticary and his council really wish to serve the best interests of the people of this community and maintain their credibility in the eyes of the public in the process, they should do as I have suggested and forego this raise until after the next elections at which time the public will have had the opportunity to vote yea or nay to the proposed raise by either electing or rejecting the members of the present council who voted for the motion

Polder story praised

Sir:

Thank you again for this week's issue of "This Week."

I read the article on Page 13 of your paper about the erection of Polders along our lakefront

I don't know who the writer is but it is an excellent suggestion It could be the ultimate solution to the erosion problem now facing us which has now got out of hand

I'm all for it. It has worked for the Dutch, why not us?

Now it's up to either Queen's Park or Ottawa to set the wheels in motion without further delay

Or are our Politicians going to come up with the same excuse a farmer once did

This farmer had a hole in the roof of his house. He always complained about the rain coming in Someone asked him why he hadn't repaired his roof

His answer "When it is raining it is too wet to get up on the roof When it is not raining there is no need to fix it No water comes in

Soon the flood danger will be over Then we will see how many politicians of ours have the same mentality as the farmer.

Paradise is.....

The luxury of a Rossland Park suite

Mention that you live at Rossland Park and people will almost automatically comment on the quality and luxury of the apartments.

In the few short years that Rossland Park has been in existence, the people of Oshawa and the surrounding area have come to associate the name with the ultimate in apartment living.

Little wonder, since quality was all but stamped on every item of building material that went into each unit Superior soundproofing attractive public areas and tasteful yet practical suites are the watchword of Rossland Park

Perhaps understandably, the next thing people will say when you mention Rossland Park is that you must have to pay a great deal in order to enjoy all the luxuries at hand

But this just isn't so

Tower apartments start as low as $170—a price that is surprisingly comparable to other apartment buildings with far less to offer

Even if your rent merely included the excellent service provided by Rossland Park's caretaking staff and the knowledge that you were living in the finest apartment building anywhere you would still be getting your money's worth

But there's more

Your rent is also your membership in the Rossland Park Country Club and Equestrian Centre Right at hand you have a swimming pool, saunas, tennis courts, gymnasium, fireside lounge and a host of other extras

Why not join us today in Paradise

Paradise is also a Rossland Park garden apartment because it gives you the best of both worlds —carefree apartment living and the privacy of your own home

Tower apartments from $170 — Garden apartments from $200 — Townhouses from $255
And all of these give you membership in

The Country Club

with these features:

- Fireside lounge
- Swimming pool
- Saunas

Union label

Cliff Pilkey, Oshawa alderman and international representative for the United Autoworkers, believes in letting the people know where his sentiments lie. His licence plate tells of his union affiliation.

See Ottawa about auto pact

Automotive industry is the single most important industry not only to Oshawa but to the entire Province of Ontario,' says Dr. McIlveen, M P P Oshawa

In his reply to the Throne Speech last week he stressed that the Ontario Government should make a strong representation to Ottawa with respect to the Canada-U.S Auto Pact

Dr. McIlveen said safeguards in the Auto Pact which assure a certain level of production in terms of dollar value in Canada MUST be maintained and also that the level of production should be raised to meet the number of cars sold in this country. This would create approximately 30,000 jobs, said Dr. McIlveen

Dr. McIlveen also called for bigger and better conservation areas for a provincial land purchase scheme, but, he added, municipalities should have fairer representation on the Conservation Authority. Oshawa represents 65% of the population of the municipality, yet is only represented by three of the 15-man Authority

McIlveen congratulated the Government on its proposal for legislation to make funds available for the restoration of historic structures. As an example he suggested the McLaughlin Estate "Parkwood" might be considered as it is in dire need of funds for renovation and restoration

Hike is understandable

Sir

What's all the fuss and commotion about the recent fact of our City Council voting themselves better than an 80% pay hike anyhow?

Too many people still persist in naive acceptance of certain campaign slogans and promises as basis of fact or meaning

Such popularly expressed "eagerness to donate time and energy towards public service, responsible attention to the public purse, holding the tax-line, etc., etc." has been a successful formula sold by civic politicians since democracy was a pup

But they shouldn't be taken seriously. At least not in any respect or application to themselves

After all, true dedication worth any salt or sacrifice rates the ultimate in appreciation

And what better way to insure tangible appreciation than by substantially raising your pay

Beats all the non-negotiable handshakes, smiles and thank you's all to blazes

Some criticisms have been uttered by narrow-minded people to the effect that the public was not forewarned

Surely we can't expect anyone running for office to be so stupid or lacking in savoir-faire as to boast about any intention of whopping pay boosts before they're even elected

Some of the electorate would surely become suspect and turned off by such unprecedented honesty

Certainly it is both wiser and advantageous to campaign on an old reliable non inflationary and tax-reducing platform, and to wait until elected before any mention of personal enhancement

It then becomes a very simple matter to convince like thinking fellow council members of the many benefits of double premium payment for services offered

This Week will print all letters to our Readers Write section provided they contain fair comment and bear the signature of the writer. Should the writer not wish his name to be printed, he should indicate this in a postscript and suggest a pen name. Unsigned letters will not be published. This Week reserves the right to edit any letter to conserve space, but every effort will be made to retain in the edited letter the intended message of the original

There are no bothersome or awkward membership meetings, nerve-wracking negotiations, strikes or other such frustrating hindrances to contend with

It's a simple matter of "caucusing" behind closed doors towards agreement according to self-estimated worth, then coming out in fine mettle and basic unity to effect such motion

The public hue and cry doesn't really hurt much or last very long. It's all generally forgotten long before the next election rolls around

I hope, Mr. Editor, that this amateur attempt at satire will not confuse anyone into believing that it represents any kind of endorsement for the action taken by Council

I frankly feel that the public has been painfully shafted by a combination of supposed friends and foes alike

Treatment for addicts

Sir

In response to the letter signed "An Addict's Mother", there is a place in Oshawa where addicts can get help if they want it

Sharing the lady's concern for "downers" we specify that no resident can be on any medication for emotional stability and allow no pills in the house, with the exception of vitamins

It is unfortunate that even after good newspaper coverage (specifically in an article by John Bell) we are still not as widely known as we should be

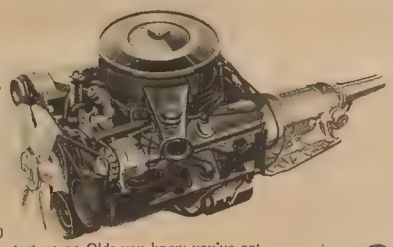
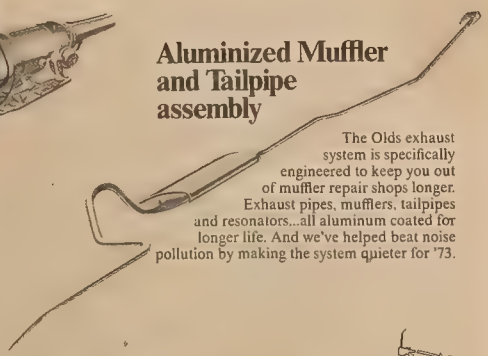
Rocket V8 350 Engine



Dependability is engineered into every inch of a Rocket V8 350 engine. When you start up an Olds you know you've got all the power you want and more...with either low-lead, no-lead or regular gasoline. Each '73 standard Rocket V8 350 has a 2-barrel carburetor...and we've improved emission controls to reduce pollutants in the air around you.

Aluminized Muffler and Tailpipe assembly

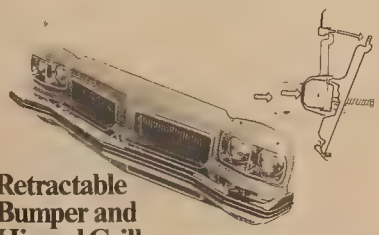


The Olds exhaust system is specifically engineered to keep you out of muffler repair shops longer. Exhaust pipes, mufflers, tailpipes and resonators...all aluminum coated for longer life. And we've helped beat noise pollution by making the system quieter for '73.

Six solid inches of foam in the seats

You won't really know comfort until you lean back in an Olds. Front and rear seats are constructed of resilient foam. And under the foam...a rigid steel frame for further support. As if that's not enough, we contour mold each seat so you fit into it like it was made especially for you. Seat illustrated is standard in Delta 88 Royale hardtops.

Retractable Bumper and Hinged Grille



Oldsmobile bumpers are built to take the bumps. Hydraulic mounts let the new Olds front bumper retract on minor impact. And the grille is hinged at the bottom to let it move out of harm's way, too. We've even made the front end panel of fiberglass to further prevent minor scratches and dents.

Rustproof Inner Front Fender

An Olds is engineered to last, too. Hidden under the front fenders are inner panels of molded plastic. So natural enemies like rust and corrosion get less chance to eat away at an Olds.

the Port Hope-Cobourg area since its Dec 18 proposal to include that area in Ontariopolis

White said that with the proposals made for regions east and west of Metro Toronto, "our program of local government reform reached a plateau."

He said those areas had high priority, but there are no "secret studies in the works" which would push more regional government

He said municipal government reform would continue, but the characteristics of areas vary greatly, and he suggested that there might be consolidations of municipalities. He also said there could be cases of rejoining separated county towns and cities from county administrations

"But if there is only one point that sticks clearly in your mind, let it be the point I made earlier—that in looking at the possibilities of local government reform, we are flexible. We recognize that the answers for Metro Toronto or Oshawa or Niagara or Waterloo are not going to be the best answers for other parts of Ontario."

It now remains to be seen whether the new region will indeed include all of Clarke Township or whether Port Hope and Cobourg will get their way completely and have Clarke remain with the eastern area

Captain Maurice Adams of the coalcarrier Ferndale was presented with the traditional top hat for bringing the first ship into Oshawa Harbor. The Ferndale was carrying 9,000 tons of soft coal for offloading in Oshawa. Harbor Manager Wilf Gilberry was on hand to present Captain Adams with the traditional gift – and a little something to ward off chill winds of Lake Ontario.

Good old days made running easy

If you think Oshawa's last municipal election was a prime example of apathy, you should have lived in the "good old days."

A report to the social and recreation services committee from the archives of the clerk's department shows the results of the first election after Oshawa officially became a city, March 8, 1924

At that time, Oshawa had 15,545 people with an assessment of more than $10 million dollars. On March 22 of the same year, a municipal election was held to elect 12 aldermen and the mayor

Everyone, including the mayor was elected by acclamation, except for three aldermen in the southeast end of the city, then Ward Two—and only because four candidates decided to run for three positions.

The total vote count in the ward was 1,479. Ald John Stacey of that ward got the highest vote, 496. Ald. Nelson S. Baird lost that one, getting only 210 votes. The mayor at the time was William John Trick

Perhaps this is why some councillors are always yearning for those good old days—when you could run and have no on run against you!

Wells on Education Week

Sir

Each spring for the past 10 years, Ontario has celebrated Education Week to promote closer co-operation between the schools and the communities that support them, and to encourage parents to see for themselves the kind of education their children receive

This year Education Week began on April 8

Although many schools in Ontario now have programs that involve parents in a variety of activities on a regular, year-round basis, this is traditionally a time when special events are offered for parents and the general public

These activities deserve strong support

Our children spend close to 1,000 hours a year in school, but sometimes parents don't know enough about the schools they attend

Many aspects of education have changed since we were students, and while proven principles of teaching still prevail, parents naturally have questions about the kind of education provided for their children

How are my children learning to read and write? How does the training they receive help prepare them for the adult world? Are they progressing quickly enough? Most important, what can I do, as a parent, to help my children progress?

These are serious and important questions. The place to find the answers is in school

As Minister of Education, I know that our school system is among the best in North America, a fact that is readily acknowledged by educators all across the continent

But as good as our schools are, they can only improve with the active and informed interest of parents and the general public Education Week may offer a special opportunity to visit your child's school and to talk to the dedicated men and women who teach there.

I will be visiting the school my children attend and I urge parents across the province to do the same

Thomas L. Wells,
Minister of Education

Cameron rides again

Sir

Congratulations on your talent, for writing captions to letters

To Mr. Charles Viner, peace be with you. And to all the people that read this letter, I hope you try to understand

In this modern age, we have prophets just as we did in Biblical times, e.g Shakespeare, Homer, Walt Disney, or anyone else who tells the gospel (or truth which means the same) about what is happening in their time

Some of these prophets had the ability to see things other people refused to believe

But they told their story in a way that would be accepted. Not everyone understood and it's still that way today

The Ontario Educational Communications Authority have had several programs explaining this theory (Channel 19) which is fast, becoming fact

A good newspaperman who reports the truth is a prophet, and if he has the ability to foresee a story, by the signs around him, he will prophisy the future

But a reporter cannot always tell the truth, because people don't want to hear the truth

Newspapers are in business to make money, so he becomes a false prophet telling people things they want to hear

In this day and age, our true prophets are—poets, writers and singers

Don McLean is a prophet, through his songs he tells of America dying

Our universities, economy, and our natural resources, are controlled or partly controlled by the United States

If America is dying what is happening to Canada

United States became a great nation, because they built it on this, "In God we trust."

You can still see it on their coins but it doesn't mean much anymore

They stopped believing because they thought they were invincible. Now their God consists of tanks, fighter planes, guns, and money

Isn't the United States of America the strongest nation in the world? Wasn't Rome considered invincible by the Romans?

And what about that great city Babylon? Or is that considered a myth in these modern times?

I agree with you, Mr. Viner, people are the problem

NO CURE FOR
"TAX BITE FEVER"

A very common ailment that almost everybody suffers from at this time of year is "TAX BITE FEVER". It seems to reach its peak in mid-April and then gradually subside. Some people are able to avoid acute symptoms of this chronic disease by making estimated payments, taking out extra withholding and by asking their physicians for something to keep them calm.

At present there is no cure for "TAX BITE FEVER" and there is none foreseen in the near future. Fortunately it is relatively short in duration and has no real lasting effect. Also there are many everyday medicines that can help with relieving symptoms, such as aspirin for headaches, antacids for upset stomachs and eyedrops for redness and eyestrain

Cloud of suspicion threat to council

by garnet cowsill

Okay, so city council voted itself a raise. They deserve it

But that's not the point

The crux of the issue is the way in which council went about giving itself that raise—in secret!

In the main, our municipal representatives have but three months of political experience. I don't know whose advice they took in deciding how to go about granting themselves that raise, but as far as I am concerned, it was faulty

By meeting twice in closed caucus sessions to discuss how much they are worth, they ensured that the issue was not used as a "political football" as one council member put it. But, was it worth it?

As it stands now, a cloud of suspicion has descended upon each and every one of our 17 councillors—including the three who voted against the motion. There is a feeling of mistrust settling between the citizens and council And that is no way to run a city

A politician could say that it is the unfortunate predicament elected representatives are placed in. They are the ones who decide what they make I couldn't agree more

The politician might also say that every time a group of elected people grant themselves a raise whether it is at the federal, provincial, or municipal level, there is a hue and cry from the people

Most of the people I have spoken to on the matter, including the ones who have phoned our offices to offer their unsolicited opinion, are not so much upset about the amount that councillors now get; they are more concerned about the procedure council used. And rightly so

Besides the honorarium a councillor gets, he also receives other little fringe benefits, like free meals, prestige and tax deductions!

For instance, did you know that under Section 392 of the Ontario Municipal Act, councillors are entitled to deduct one-third of the salary paid them by the city for "expenses incident to the discharge of duties"?

This means that an alderman has to declare only $3,667 of his new $5,500 salary, the controllers only $5,667 of their $8,500, while the mayor, for his combined efforts as an ex-officio member of the PUC and police commission, has to declare only $18,153 of his $25,820 salary

What is even more ironic is that our mayor has a $2,000 annual expense account This money is used at his discretion to entertain, attend conventions and take whom he pleases, send flowers, etc., etc., etc

He submits a voucher for this money but no one has a say whether the money should be used as it is or not. It's all up to him

Breaking down the mayor's income then, we find he receives $1,200 from the police commission, $1,500 from the PUC, $120 from the Central Ontario Joint Planning Board, a $23,000 salary and a $2,000 expense account . . . or $27,820 altogether

If you break that down, he's making about $535 a week If he works 14 hours a day, six days a week, he's only making about $6.30 an hour Hell, that's all a plumber makes, isn't it?

Equality of the sexes occurs at Oshawa police department

by jane milne

One instance where women receive the same treatment as their male counterparts occurs on the average of once a week in Oshawa

"Where?" you ask Germaine In jail

With one exception that of being searched only by a female police officer or matron, women receive the same treatment upon arrest as men do

"There are less arrests of females than males," says police-woman Anne Crawford of the Oshawa Police Department, "but we do average about one per week, the majority being juveniles around the age of 14 for shoplifting"

It is Miss Crawford's job to search females who have been taken into custody and to help process them through the booking procedure

As male officers, we do not have the authority to search a female," says Inspector John Powell "This is where Policewoman Crawford is invaluable to us We do have other matrons who can search but Anne has received all the regular police training at the college in Aylmer

As with males who are arrested, females stay in the cells of the station which are the same as those for the men but in another area

"Since the Bail Reform Act of Jan. 3, 1972, previous to which the length of incarceration was left up to the discretion of the officers in charge of the case, it is now mandatory to release that person the next day unless the circumstances of the case involve more than that person and it would be detrimental to release her, says Powell

He says that in such a case, the prisoner might contact other people involved and therefore hamper the investigation

Immediately on the morning following an arrest, a bail bond hearing is arranged," he says 'An officer must at that time show cause as to why that person should be detained, to a justice of the peace or judge. Depending if the offence is indictable, there may be a motion to appear."

Miss Crawford says in the case of juveniles who may have just run away from home, they are often only held overnight in orde to insure their safety

"If these girls are to be held longer, they are taken to the juvenile detention centre at 311 Jarvis St. in Toronto," she says "When they are held here overnight they stay in holding rooms that have sheets and pillows

Upon arrest, women go through the same identification procedure involving fingerprinting and photographs

"They are then brought into the interrogation room and their person is searched by me or one of the matrons," she says. "In cases of shoplifting, we must search for any articles hidden under their clothing"

'Their personal belongings are held in lockers for their own protection in case they try to injure themselves with a nail file or something."

Miss Crawford has personally observed that many offenders, particularly juveniles both male and female, come from broken homes

Inspector Powell agrees with this observation and says that females can be a tough type of person

"We see hard types of people who use rough language, have no scruples, who don't live by any moral code and have lost their sense of decency

One type of offence involving women, especially the young, as well as males is the non-medical use of drugs

Powell says, for example, females who are arrested for sexual offences do not necessarily fall under what society would normally consider prostitution

"In the drug scene, girls are not committing the sexual act for money but rather they may do it in exchange for drugs"

In his view, drugs are not just a problem in the Oshawa community but a problem of national and international proportion

"The drug scene involves females just as well as males"

With almost every day involving the arrest of at least one adult male for impaired driving, he says that alcohol has posed an increasing problem for the police department

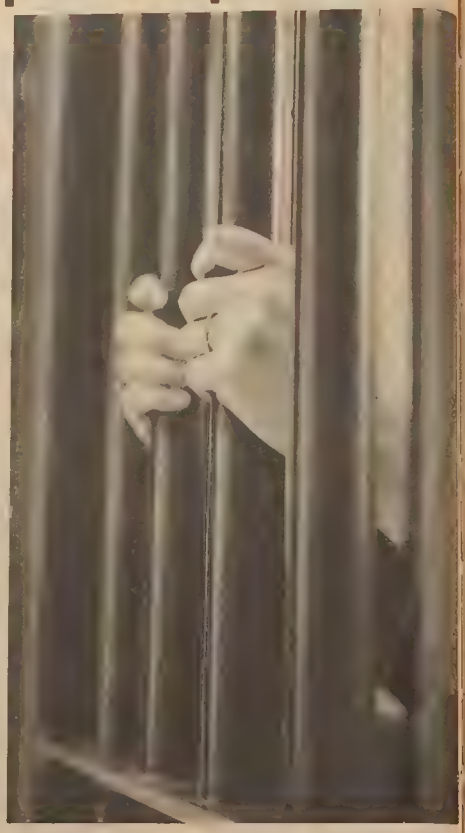
"We're finding since the lowering of the age of drinking, both males and females ages 15, 16 and 17 are frequenting our bars."

"These are predominantly girls who go into the bars with false identification," he says

The department is aware of this and Powell says certain steps have been taken by the force to curb the problem.

"We are visiting the bars and every liquor outlet and we have cautioned the officers to check cars for under-age drinkers," he says.

"This type of offence cannot be settled out of court."



Ed Broadbent— our man in Washington

Uncle Sam will be getting a visit from Ed Broadbent

The Oshawa-Whitby MP announced today that he will be visiting Washington April 24 and 25 to talk about energy resources (as trade spokesman for the New Democrats) as well as the auto pact

"I want to learn first hand the views of U S politicians and presidential administrative officials on the auto trade and particularly the auto pact," Broadbent says

I also want to get then response to my suggestions of improving the safeguards and bringing them to 1972 levels to ensure that we get our fair share

Broadbent says the auto pact discussions will include the point of production as it is related to Canadian consumption and the removal of the 15 per cent duty to the consumer when he buys an American car and brings it across the border

"I think this point will be very tempting to Americans who have objected for years that Canadians are charging too much (compared with U.S. prices) for North American made cars he says. "They say this forces North Americans to buy foreign cars

He says he will be making the suggestion of removing the duty on U S cars, not so every Canadian will rush across the border to buy, but so manufacturers in Canada will allow dealers to reduce the prices of their cars in order to compete better with U.S. prices

Although the appointments and itinerary for his trip are still being finalized by the Canadian Embassy in Washington, Broadbent says he hopes to be talking to Indiana Senator Vance Hartke who opposes the auto pact

"He says Canada has not lived up to the commitments in the auto act." Broadbent says I'm hoping to have a frank discussion with him"

He says he will also be talking with officials of the U.S. commerce department

Broadbent will return to Oshawa April 27 when he will hold a press conference to release details

Former news director on the bus

Ross Gibson, currently news director for Radio Station CKLB has been appointed director of marketing, public relations and promotions for the Oshawa Transit Commission

The announcement was made today by Public Utilities Commission Chairman Dr. Brian Doherty

Gibson will leave his duties at CKLB and become director of the new transit division May 1

He has been at the station for 10 years and was formerly a city controller

In making the announcement; Doherty said

We have a product and services in our buses and the commission feels we've got to sell it Part of Mr Gibson's responsibilities will be selling this product."

RAPE spokesman

Council pay raise termed suicide

RAPE, a ratepyaers committee (Reaction Against Political Extras) is gearing up to stop Oshawa city council from getting its combined $45,000 annual raise in salaries

Ed Kolodzie, Oshawa Council of Ratepayers' Associations president, says when council granted itself a raise it made its third "major goof" in three months.

The first goof was the first closed caucus meeting it held in January to appoint board and committee members. he says. The second was the secret meetings on regional government

"I hope the fourth goof won't be the way they handle the budget," Kolodzie says

He says the way in which council decided on the raise, in two secret caucus meetings that accepted recommendations from the city internal auditor, "widened council's credibility gap and was hypocritical" because most aldermen and controllers campaigned for holding the tax line.

"In 25 months, aldermen have raised their salaries from $2,000 a year to $5,500 a year, or $106 a week," Kolodzie says. "That's a 175 per cent increase in that time. Board of control got almost a 100 per cent increase, and the mayor got a 130 per cent increase in 24 months."

This type of increase is a bad example to city employees, Kolodzie claims, because they only got a six or seven per cent increase in September for the same period of time.

Kolodzie claims the original intent of the initial salary increase motion brought in Feb 19 was lost

"The motion had nothing to do with council getting a raise," he says "The motion was to review the honorarium paid to civilian and elected board and committee members to see if it was equitable

He says the committee is not going to come up with a big petition, because "they don't work

"We've got to work in an intelligent manner and try to change aldermen's minds so when the bylaw (which makes the salary increase legal and final) comes up for approval it won't get a two-thirds majority vote," he says

He adds that he does not agree with a spokesman in the city solicitor's office who claims depending on how the bylaw is worded, it will not need a two-thirds vote, but only a majority vote

"I don't buy that," he says. "The Ontario Supreme Court just ruled in the North York increase that 'any bylaw concerning money matters not included in the budget estimates' needs a two-thirds majority vote of standing council members"

Kolodzie says he will ask to speak to council on the matter April 16, or when the bylaw is being presented

"I'm sure they'll let me speak because they've been getting too much flak," he says "They'll look real bad if they don't

In the meantime, he says the committee is urging the people to write to city council opposing the increase, phone their aldermen, or contact them personally

"I will personally appeal to each councillor on an individual basis," he says

Asked why he thought the matter was dealt with by council in secret instead of in an open meeting, Kolodzie says

"I put the finger on Mayor Jim Potticary because he's the one who calls the meetings and says what kind of meeting it will be The issue would have definitely become a political football and so he was afraid to allow open debate in public This shows weak leadership"

Kolodzie says the fairest way to award salary increases to municipal representatives would be to have the province set up some sort of guidelines on amount of money paid perhaps on a per capita basis

"That $45,000 raise got through in 45 seconds," he says. "That's a thousand dollars a second. It's political suicide. It's really going to hurt them."

In 1921, General Motors of Canada introduced the first brake light... a Canadian invention that made night driving a lot safer.

The 1973 Chevelle.

Chevrolet has built in safety so you and the family ride in confidence.

Chevelle is the safety-designed family car

The outstanding list of features includes protective side-guard door beams, a cargo-guard luggage barrier, an improved suspension system and new front disc brakes

And on top of it all there's a double-panel steel acoustical roof to keep things quiet and comfortable on the inside.

And like a good family car Chevelle has room to fit a family on a family sized budget Unlike most family cars, Chevelle is stylishly designed, so you can ride with pride

Chevelle It's a lot of Chevrolet for the money

The gang who couldn't shoot straight--bankers

Those traditional guns in bank teller drawers are fast becoming nothing more than ornaments

Although most bank managers will tell you they keep a weapon on the premises, they will also tell you it is kept for insurance purposes only

Bill Hart, Oshawa's Simcoe North Bank of Commerce branch manager, says he keeps a .38 cal pistol in his office 'for protection of banks funds'', but he really doesn't know how to use it

"It's a must for insurance purposes when we're picking up cash," Hart says "But I've had no instruction in how to use the weapon."

In the 21 years that Hart has been in banking he's been lucky—he's never been involved in a hold-up and he's never seen a gun used

Hart has a special police permit to carry the pistol whenever the occasion merits his going out to pick up cash when his branch runs short

"It's supposed to be brought in by Brinks," he says, "but on the odd occasion we run out and I have to get some.'

He says at first, the weapon was checked by head office personnel but not in the past few years Most of the time it lies around in his office drawer

As far as he knows, the same policy applies to all seven Oshawa Commerce branches. In the case of a hold-up, he says he would call the police and, as soon as the robber had left, lock the doors

Asked if he would ever use the gun, or attempt to stop a would-be robber, Hart says: "You never know what you will do on the spur of the moment.'

Bob Smith, King Street East Bank of Nova Scotia branch accountant, says his bank keeps two .38 cal pistols on the premises for the same purpose

Asked if the weapon was kept specifically for insurance purposes, he says: "There has been no real insurance policy direction like that, but I think that is normally the reason. The weapon is not to deter a hold-up "

Smith, unlike Hart, knows how to use the weapon only because he is interested in hand guns. At one time, he says, staff from other Scotia banks organized themselves and went down to target ranges with a few police officers to shoot the weapons, but this was their own undertaking and not a head office direction

"It is kept for protection of bank funds, basically when we are transporting money."

In the 11 years that Smith has been in banking he has never seen a gun used during a hold-up although he was involved in one

He says the hold-up procedure for his bank is to try to identify the robber and "hand over the money without any trouble "

John Tunnicliffe, Bank of Montreal Ajax branch manager, says the policy of his bank regarding guns has changed

"We don't have guns anymore in our office,' he says. "Our policy now is to keep the guns unloaded and under lock and key in the vault

He says if bank personnel are ever transporting bank funds they are supposed to carry weapons, but Brinks does it all now for his branch

He says when they did have the guns they were in such bad shape "you couldn't fire them straight anyway."

A Whitby bank manager who didn't want his name used says his bank maintains a .32 cal. pistol on the premises for protection of bank funds as well

"I've seen it used to transport funds, but never as a defensive weapon." he says

Although he admits his staff has no training in the use of the weapon "we can receive training on application to the police station "

Oshawa Police Detective Trevor McCagherty says the permits that are issued to banks are special. The weapons themselves are registered to bank head offices

"The general procedure is that the bank's head office authorizes an individual in a supervisory capacity to have a weapon within the branch," McCagherty says. "Once that person has been appointed he comes to the police station and applies for a permit to carry a weapon for protection of bank funds only.'

Following a police investigation of the man's background "to determine his suitability for a permit," McCagherty says Toronto OPP, acting for the RCMP, issue the permit to the bank's head office and it is forwarded to the person involved.

McCagherty says police procedure in bank hold-ups is to first ensure the safety of the victims and second, apprehend suspects and recover the money

McCagherty declined comment on whether bank personnel should be instructed in the use of weapons, but says that police officers undergo monthly compulsory weapons training

Ontario shovels out money in tax credits

TORONTO — Money from the Ontario government is flowing out at a rapidly growing rate to early filers of income tax returns, says Revenue Minister Allan Grossman

Payments under the new Ontario Property Tax Credit Plan had gone to 100,000 Ontario residents by mid-March, Mr. Grossman says. A high proportion of these were to persons who were not required to pay income taxes and who filed returns only in order to claim their benefit under the new plan

The revenue minister who along with Treasurer John White is involved in the plan's administration, said that many thousands of additional claims are in various stages of processing

"We are doing our best to bring the Property Tax Credit Plan to the attention of all who are eligible—and that could include anyone who paid property taxes or rent in 1972," Mr. Grossman says

Advertisements and postal delivery of a Tax Credit notice to all households in Ontario are being used to bring the plan to the attention of those who are eligible

"We are especially anxious to reach all low-income families, pensioners, farmers and roomers," he says

Special Ontario forms are included with the federal income tax form and the Ontario payments are processed through the federal tax system

While many Canadians automatically receive tax forms, most people who normally do not pay federal income tax must obtain their own forms which are available from all post offices

In addition to filling in the mauve Ontario Tax Credit form, claimants must fill in pages one, two, and four of the federal tax form and forward them to Ottawa

Tax Credit payments can reach up to $250 depending upon such factors as taxable income and amount of property taxes or rent paid. Total projected cost of the program is $160 million

What this symbol means to you!

It means, very simply, that the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association verify that our circulation figures are accurate

It means that This Week asked the association to verify this circulation by means of an independent audit, and that this audit confirmed the number of homes that This Week reaches, each and every week

It means, Mr. Retailer, that This Week gives you the largest possible number of readers in the area

That's the number of papers blanketing your immediate area each and every Wednesday Some 20,000 papers more than any other paper in this area can give you, or 65,000 more readers a week

Can you afford to miss that many customers? We think not. This Week suggests that you should 'put your money where your market is'. Like we said it's very simple. When you think about it, it's as simple as ABC.

Sir:

Here is an advertisement (see enclosure) taken from The Oshawa Times of March 31, 1973 in which Cadet Cleaners ran a "valuable" coupon stating that ANY coat would be cleaned for 98 cents

This same "come on" was published before in their paper and when I complained to them about fraudulent advertising, they said this certainly wouldn't happen again, but here it is

It states that any coat will be cleaned for 98 cents, but just try taking a suede, fur or leather coat there and Cadet Cleaners will tell you "Oh, we don't clean that kind"

Also, the ad asks you to telephone Zenith 98630 to find out the nearest outlet. Who in the hell is going to pay for a long-distance call to see what coat they will clean?

Carl Milheron

This Week contacted Cadet Cleaners in Toronto and was told that the company serves 700,000 people a week and one complaint (they said yours was the first they had received in two years of running the ad) is insufficient to warrant changing it.

They said they would clean a suede, fur or leather coat if the customer insisted, but it would most certainly return damaged. They said the cleaning of such materials is an involved operation and expressed surprise at hearing that anyone would think it could be done for 98 cents, ad or no ad. They advised taking such a coat to a cleaner who specilizes in the costly (about $15 to $20) procedure.

As for the Zenith telephone number, all you do is dial operator and ask for Zenith 98630 and Cadet picks up the tab.

If you are not satisfied with Cadet's answer, and quite frankly we feel you are correct in thinking you have been misled by the advertisement, the Canadian Advertising Standards Council would like to hear from you. We are forwarding you one of their complaint forms.

Sir:

Last summer I took a heavy equipment course at Sheridan College which was sponsored through Manpower. I made about $200 during the course, but I have still not received my T-4 slips from Manpower for my income tax returns. I wrote to Manpower in Ottawa about three weeks ago and I phoned them to see what the delay was about a week ago. I also contacted Manpower officials here in Oshawa . . . but still no results. Can you find out what the delay is and what can be done?"

Art Munson,

This Week took Munson's problem to Oshawa-Whitby MP Ed Broadbent, who in turn contacted Manpower officials in Ottawa. According to Broadbent, officials mailed Munson's T-4 slips to his old address, RR 1, Bailieboro, weeks ago.

Since time is running out for Munson to file his returns, Manpower spokesmen told Broadbent all Munson has to do is fill out his return noting the amount he made while on the course ($219.30) and explain that copies of the specific T-4s can be obtained through Manpower, Ottawa.

Broadbent says this will not hamper Munson getting any return he deserves. Perhaps the delay in the matter could be attributed to an unfortunate phone call between Munson and a Manpower official. According to Broadbent, Munson was "extremely abusive" while speaking with the official, and that official says he intends to lodge a complaint.

Sir:

May I, through the medium of your newspaper, appeal for news or information about some relatives I am trying to trace?

I had three aunts who emigrated to Canada about 1926

There names were Mrs. Annie Ives, Miss Ella Walton and Mrs. Mona Walton.

The last time they were heard from was in 1932, when they were living at apartment number 7, Bradly Block, Oshawa.

I would love to hear from anyone who can give me some clue as to their present whereabouts

Miss J. Walton,
Lancashire, England

After This Week telephoned every Ives in the Oshawa phone book without luck, we contacted Vernon Directories here in Oshawa. The company is responsible for compiling the city directory and enumerations are currently in progress.

A spokesman there checked their files and drew a blank as well. We also took Miss Walton's problem to the senior citizens centre hoping some of our seniors might remember her relatives, but to no avail. If anyone has information that could be helpful, please contact This Week. More on this later.

Do you feel you have reached a dead end in your attempts to make a business, government department or other organization see your side of a problem? Why not contact This Week and let us look into the matter for you?

Prisoners of all kinds set free

RELIGION

God and Christ—are they still relevant today?

As some of the P.O.W's from Indochina

No recent event has aroused the deep emotions of the publice as the release of these men, separated from family and friends for so long.

There were those who had almost lost hope, but most of them dared to believe for the future

Faith in God, country, and family was evident in the first greetings uttered by the returnees.

Navy Capt. Jeremiah Denton was the first man to step out on the red carpet at Clark Air Base.

He said: "We had plenty of time to meditate on the glory of home and family."

Another POW added "Many were drawn to God."

A soldier stated with conviction: "I wouldn't have made it without being able to look up and see Jesus Christ."

"Happiness is freedom!"

"I was able to sustain life and hope through the faith I have in God

These are among many other statements verifying the fact that Christ is alive and well and He relates

Whether in prison in Vietnam or the kitchen or the office or factory or school, Christ helps us cope with life

The non-Christian drowns his sorrows in alcohol or slips into the world of make-believe with drugs or commits suicide, but the Christian looks to God through Christ

People from every walk of life have decided to accept Christ as Saviour and Lord of their life and have proven this to be not just a crutch but a reason to live

Whatever you are the prisoner of, why not let Christ bring you freedom, from fear or depression or sin or whatever it might be

Whom the Son of God sets free is free indeed

Salvation songsters in Oshawa

The St. John's Temple Songsters from St John's, Nfld. (a 48 voice choir) will be visiting Oshawa this Sunday and Monday

The Songsters will be participating in the two regular meetings on Sunday in addition to providing a typical Newfoundland program at 3 p.m in the Oshawa Citadel, 133 Simcoe Street South

Major Russell Hicks will accompany the Brigade

On Monday, at 8 p.m a festival will be presented in the College Park Seventh-day Adventist Church on King Street East by the Songsters.

This will be the only complete program the Songsters will present while visiting Ontario. Tickets are now available for $2 each and may be secured at the Salvation Army Thrift Shop, 61 King St. East, Oshawa or from Salvation Army officers in Oshawa, Bowmanville, and Whitby.

The St. John's Temple Songsters were first organized in Jan., 1912 and today represent a group of nearly 50 youthful Salvationists.

They can be listed with the youngest Songster Brigades in the Salvation Army world Members include 10 senior high school students and 16 who are attending university or are recent university graduates

Another five of the Songsters are registered nurses or are currently completing their nurses training at The Salvation Army Grace General Hospital, School of Nursing in St. John's's.

Two others hold the A.T.C.L. in music from Trinity College in London, England

All but four of the Songsters are 30 years of age or under while one of the four, though still young in heart, has been associated with the Band and Songsters of the Temple Corps for more than 40 years

It is perhaps of interest to note, also, that the Brigade includes four members of one family and three members from each of two other families. Many are third and fourth generation Salvationists

Wilson elected chairman

Rev Tom Swan, Canadian general director of the Christian Service Brigade spoke to 250 brigade men and their wives at eir annual banquet held April 7 at First Baptist Church in Oshawa

These brigade leaders and wives represented 14 churches in the Oshawa area, committed to "winning and training boys for Christ" through the Christian Service Brigade program

The election of officers was held for the Oshawa area committee. Bruce Wilson, Uxbridge Baptist Church, was elected area chairman; Fran Barton, Ferndale Bible Church, Peterborough is secretary; Mervin Bemis, Meadowcrest Baptist Church, Brooklin is treasurer; John Stredwick, Calvary Baptist Church, Oshawa is camp director and Dave Cross, Faith Baptist Church, Whitby is contact man.

Other churches in this area sponsoring the brigade program are: Ajax Baptist, Emmanuel Baptist, Harmony Rd. Baptist, Ritson Rd. Alliance, Cannington Baptist, Glad Tidings Tabernacle, Cobourg, Westmount Bible Church, Peterborough, Park St. Baptist, Peterborough, and Fenelon Falls Baptist.

Christian Service Brigade is a church-sponsored program dedicated to preparing boys for Christian service in their community.

Scriptures distributed

"Faith comes by hearing and hearing by the word of God," (Romans 10 v 17)

This is the underlying philosophy for the distribution campaign of the Oshawa Association of Evangelical Clergy involving 12 churches of several donominations in Oshawa.

Their aim is to place the Gospel of Mark in every home in the city to be personally distributed by volunteers of the churches involved

The cost of the venture which is $3,500, will be underwritten by the churches and interested individuals

A correspondence course will be contained in each Gospel for interested readers to complete and return by mail

FAITH OUR TITLE DEEDS

Without faith it is impossible to please Him for he that cometh to God must believe that He is and that He is the rewarder of them that diligently seek Him (Heb 11 6)

From the above passage we can see that the matter of faith is very important to all those who seek to please God Granting the importance of faith how is it obtained and what is faith as the Bible defines it?

There are of course many facets to faith We will confine ourselves the Biblical explanation of faith and how to obtain it

There are some who believe that faith is simply a sincere belief in something or someone While sincerity is a very desireable quality faith is not simply a sincere belief

There are others who believe that faith is what you exercise when you believe in something when you really have no proof or evidence for so doing These people will make statements such as I can't prove it but I have faith that it is true Again, is much more than this

Faith as spoken of in the Bible is neither simply a sincere belief in something (where the person s sincerity is of more importance than what or whom is believed) or is a matter of believing something without a sound reason for so doing Biblical faith is much more than either of these

In the eleventh chapter of the book of Hebrews verse 29 we read of the nation Israel as they were fleeing from the Egyptians passing through the Red Sea as a dry land We are told that they accomplished this miraculous crossing by faith We also read of the Egyptians who were pursuing Israel, drowning in the same sea as they attempted to do as Israel had done

If faith was indeed simply a matter of sincere belief it would follow that the Israelites crossed the Red Sea simply because they believed earnestly or sincerely that they could It would also follow that the Egyptians drowned because they did not believe earnestly or sincerely enough in their prospects of crossing This would lead to the conclusion that it was Israel s great faith that got them across while it was a lack of faith on the part of the Egyptians that cost them their lives Anyone at all familiar with the Old Testament account would know that Israel most certainly was not a nation of great faith and common sense would tell us that the Egyptians would never have ventured out between those two great walls of water if they had not believed that they could cross "as on dry land" just as Israel had

It was not sincere belief that secured Israel s safe passage across the Red Sea anymore than it was a lack of belief that caused the Egyptians to drown Israel crossed "as on dry land" not because of the sincerity or quality of their belief but because God had spoken to them assuring them of safe passage They crossed safely because of God's faithfulness not because of their sincerity of belief The Egyptians drowned not because they lacked belief in their ability to cross but because God never promised them safe passage They assumed that what was true for Israel would be true for them and drowned as a consequence Many people have drowned in the pool of despair for having made a similar mistake

From Hamilton to Oshawa, Lake Ontario battered shoreline homes and cottages early Tuesday morning, causing untold thousands of dollars damage. Sandbagging and trenching were to no avail as 50-mile-an-hour winds hurled devastating winds against the lakefront dwellings. Bob Stephenson (above right) of Stone Street in Oshawa was one resident who fought desperately against the onslaught of the waves, digging trenches, filling sandbags and using cement blocks, logs and anything at hand to build breakwaters to try to contain the water. He had gone three nights without sleep and was able to save his own' house but a cottage next door collapsed under the waves.

Bill McCarthy, captain of Oshawa's REACT emergency radio team, checks the damage at a collapsed cottage on Oshawa's lakefront during Tuesday morning's storm. The REACT team co-ordinated salvage operations through its home and mobile radio system.

Lake Ontario finally won over this cottage on Stone Street in Oshawa

Longhair and Hair at concert

Selections ranging from Mozart to Hair were featured recently when the Concordia Philharmonic entertained the staff and patients of the Ontario Psychiatric Hospital at Whitby

The concert is part of Concordia's program of providing public service as well as recreation for local amateur musicians

Interested players are invited to participate with the orchestra when it rehearses on Sundays at 7:30 p.m. in the Harmony United Church hall

In Redd's opinion

Despite Clompin' Clod, show was worth watching

The Oshawa country jamboree is good family entertainment This past Sunday evening we had a good time watching the slightly long three-hour show

The main fault with the show is that it is just too long for a family show on a Sunday night when the youngsters have to go to school the next day

The approximately ten acts were divided between local, amateurs and some good semi-pro and pro performers. Most noticeable of the latter was the Duo namely Wayne Mack and Jerry Wells

The feature act of the night was Canadian Zephyr a very good "folk country" group with Irish overtones Others on the show included 10-year-old Marylou Del Gatto, a little girl with a big voice Roger Duvale, who has spent a lot of time listening to old Elvis records, and a poor imitator of Stompin Tom Connors calling himself "Clompin Clod"

The hall is bright and airy and a fine place for such a show Locals spotted at the show included Mayor Jim Potticary who was there to present awards and ex-councillor Bob Moon

Several local musicians were also on hand—Cec Eikhart with wife June and Gord Grills from way over west in Ajax

The crowd was smaller than usual I am told because of the hockey game (NHL PLAYOFFS) but about 200 country music fans turned out for a family fun night

Next Jamboree April 22—Starring Larry Dee and Dottie

EZZTHEIC (two girls and two guys) appearing at the AUTO PUB (Holiday Inn) a group that gives this writer the feeling that they are quite new

The female drummer (dark glasses and all) seemed to be in another world and very heavy on the foot. The female lead singer started out the night by greeting a group of the crowd as "GM boys" and was only slightly shook when they turned out to be "FORD boys"... and from there on things went down hill

Said female lead was the only bright spot in the group and the only one to exhibit any personality at all

I got the impression that she has done some stage work musical comedy or the like: she tried both the Barbra Streisand style of delivery and then the flippant Cher style neither of which came off at all

The two male members of the group may be fine musicians, but as backup singers of harmony, forget it Things may have gotten better as the night wore on but one set was all I could take ... so I left

JOYCE SEMONE AND THE TESTERS, a good traditionl country group, playing the KARLIN (formally the Cadillac Hotel) are well worth the time it took to listen

The show is fronted by Bill Johnson a traditional country trouper who sings well and carries the show along Featured in the group is David Evans a good picker of guitar and banjo, the latter having become a lost art in local country groups

Comedy relief is supplied by a young drummer, whose name I did not get, with a mop wig the "Oil Can Harry" version of Along Came Jones

Although the dance floor is small the group on a Wednesday night were making full use of it

Rotunda Oshawa

Recommended to us as a good spot for an after-theatre snack, the Rotunda turned out to be a bit of a disappointment. Chinese food is in this writer's mind, the ideal light snack with breaded shrimp and chicken chow mein at the top of my list

However, the shrimp as served at the Rotunda were small to start with and just slightly undercooked, leaving them slightly doughy

But all was not lost for the chicken chow mein was very good, steaming hot and with lots of chicken visible. This may seem normal but my past experiences have lead me to feel that some establishments could better call there chicken chow mein ... "chicken less" chow mein

The coffee was also less than the best. Total bill for two $3 70

On stage at the Karlin Hotel, Joyce Seamone and the Testers.

Here's where.....

Our Guess Where competition last week was obviously a stumper with no correct answers reaching our office before the deadline. Readers guessed such landmarks as the Oshawa Airport, the Oshawa Shopping Centre, Camp X, the Oshawa General Hospital roof and the sewage treatment plant. The correct answer of course was the roof of the Oshawa Golf Club. There was a happy ending to it all though since the $10 prize has been donated to the This Week staff refreshment fund.

Belief that you have to tie up garbage in ribbons is rubbish

By Garnet Cowsill
Staff Writer

You don't have to tie ribbons and bows to your garbage or leave the latest edition of Playboy near your refuse to have it picked up. You just have to do it right

If garbage men have passed you by, leaving you with the garbage you put out the night before, chances are you are not complying with Oshawa's garbage collection bylaw

Garbage routes are set up to handle only a specific amount of garbage in an effort to save the taxpayer money by picking up as much as possible, as quickly as possible

Each homeowner is allowed under the bylaw to put out a combined total of eight garbage cans or plastic bags for pick up once a week

The bylaw defines garbage as all household wastes except such things as discarded furniture and appliances, building materials, liquid waste and manure

It is against city bylaws to burn garbage and the proper containers must be used or city employees manning the collection crews are not obliged to pick it up

If they do not pick it up they will attach a tag to your garbage telling you the reason, on the back of which will be more detailed instructions and partial explanation of the bylaw

Five-gallon paint cans lard pails or like containers used a garbage recepticles will be considered garbage and will be disposed of with their contents

Bushel baskets can be used, however, for grass, hedge clippings and like materials but not for household waste

Garbage must be drained if necessary and put into either sealable plastic bags or wrapped in paper and placed in a proper garbage can with handles and covers that fit

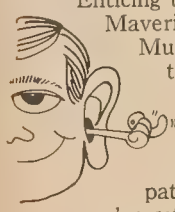
DELIVERY DAILY

SORRY ABOUT THIS, GENERAL.

Here we go again.

Throwing temptation in the paths of all those true blue, lifelong G.M. drivers right here in your own home town.

Enticing them with Pintos, Torinos, Mavericks, LTD's, Broughams, Mustangs, T-Birds and Ford trucks. (If our prices happen to be just as enticing, what can we say?)

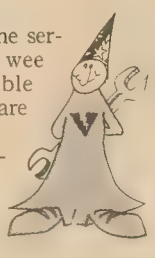


We're the only Ford petunia in a G.M. patch, General. So naturally we've got to listen better.

We decided to locate as conveniently as possible just two miles from Whitby, on Highway 2, on the west side of Oshawa at Thornton and King.

We discovered a great new service manager, Sam Dodd at one of Canada's largest Ford dealerships, and brought him to Oshawa. If something goes amiss, it's his job to find the trouble and make sure it's fixed.

Then we follow up the service with a phone call a wee while later. (Just to double check that our Ford owners are happy.)



Jack Brown, our service advisor, works alongside Sam.

Is it our fault we picked another winner?

All in all, General, we apologize for the fact that a few more G.M. customers may get lured into Ford's by this kind of price and service combination.

But if you were the only Ford dealer in Oshawa, General, wouldn't you do the same thing?

Sure you would.

Questions Christian Science

Sir:

On Oshawa's excellent Hotline to Heaven (March 26) it was stated that the discoverer of Christian Science was Mrs Mary Baker Eddy

It has however been clearly documented that to put it kindly she had borrowed copiously from various sources but mainly from a Phineas Quimby and from a manuscript on the philosopher Hegel by publisher Dr Francis Lieber

It is easy to see that Mrs Eddy's "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" redefines and spiritualizes the meanings of numerous biblical terms thereby violating the basic rules of sound exegesis

So-called Christian Science is thus found to be sharply at variance with all the major doctrines of Holy Writ In Miscellaneous Writings (p 160) Mrs E states The Scriptures cannot properly be interpreted in a literal way

In other words she conformed the Word of God to her theology not vice-versa

Since the Hotline lasts unfortunately only half an hour there is much too little time for adequate discussion To the Deity of Jesus Christ however a definite negative answer was given for Mrs E says in Science and Health (p 361) "Jesus Christ is not God"

On this crucial point alone Eddyism reveals itself categorically as a non Christian system or cult It also tries thoroughly to distinguish between Christ and Jesus for in Misc Wr (p 84) we read, "Jesus is not the Christ (but see Acts 17 3)

And re the nature and existence of hell it was unambiguously stated that the sinner makes his own hell on earth by doing evil (see Sc and H p 266)

In the "Glossary" Mrs E gives this lengthy definition Hell Mortal belief error lust remorse hatred revenge sin sickness death suffering (et al) A few other questions received rather vague answers

Someone has challenged Christian Scientists to answer this question If God is the only reality and God is good how can there be any mortal mind to think evil even an unreal evil?

Area opinion

Beefing about meat won't do any good

The rate at which meat prices rose, not the rise itself, is causing all the fuss

This is the opinion of Bert Kahn of Kahn Brothers Livestock in Brooklin

"The consumer has brought it on himself," he says. "Everyone is looking for higher wages and according to European standards, food prices here are not high

He blames the rise in cost on supply and demand and says he doesn't think the current beef boycott will last

"People have to eat don't they?"

Kahn says the cost of feed has risen 100 per cent in the last three to six months and that the operation costs of the farmer must balance to keep up with industry

"We should have been getting these prices long ago," he says

Manager of Sunnybrook grocery store in Oshawa, Bruce Richards, says his store is using the boycott for its advertisements

"The boycott hasn't affected us a bit, as a matter of fact, we're up in business" he says

Richards doesn't think the boycott will last and adds "Everything else is going up. I'd don't know why people are picking on just meat

Cecil Madill of Madill and Fossey Butchers in Pickering, says meat is not really that high in price

"Pork yes but beef is not up that much" he says

Madill says his business has never been better as far as volume sales go and that's because he specializes in home freezer orders, he thinks perhaps people have become more conscious of buying meat by the piece, making the shop's last month of business very busy

"The boycott is going to backfire," he says "Last week farmers brought 1,800 cattle to market and this week only 300

"Supply and demand is the name of the game as with anything," he says. "I don't think the price of beef will go down. Anyone who is in the position to pay top prices will go this way"

He says the boycotting can't help and no one in the meat business is making any more money

"We're making less money per pound and the packaging houses are just making what they have to, he says. "The only guy getting more is the producer"

It all boils down to supply and demand. Beef is not scarce but it is not plentiful either and more people are eating meat," he says

People don't have bacon and eggs for dinner like they used to when meat wasn't readily available

The price of beef has also affected at least one area restaurant

"We have had to raise our prices," says Don Knowlton, manager of Ponderosa Steak House in Oshawa

We didn't like doing it but it became a necessity," he says. "We had the choice of cutting quantity, quality and service or raising prices. We decided to raise prices instead of cutting in the other areas"

Knowlton says most restaurants have gone to cutting portions but that all Ponderosa's portions are still the same

"The rise in costs is simply supply and demand," he says. Japan has now become a beef eating country and is importing meat from New Zealand and Australia at $2 51 a pound This is what we're fighting—what we're competing against

He says that compared to countries like England and Germany, the Canadian is getting a better price for beef

"I have only received two complaints from steady customers about the rise in price and they just changed to a less expensive steak," he says

"Mostly, the general feeling of customers is, how did we hold our prices down for as long as we did."

A Pickering Village wife and mother of three growing boys, Janet Moffatt, says the prices of meat are "ridiculous"

"Unless you get cheaper pieces of pork, you are out of luck as far as the price of beef is concerned"

Mrs Moffatt says that she doubts if the beef boycott will help

"There are always people who will buy beef because they feel it is so important for their children's nutrition and health"

She has found that the quantity of beef her food dollar used to buy is considerably less

Art Fossey, a butcher in Pickering Village, takes a chop at a beef roast but unfortunately there will be no corresponding cut in meat prices.

And it came to pass in the first week of the fourth month of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy three that there was much murmering among the people of Osh who lived in the City of Osh which was in the Land of Ontariopolis And among the Oshites there were many who were sore at the elders of the city led by Jimpot the chief ruler of Osh for the elders had given unto themselves increasingly of the offerings of the people unto the Temple of Osh

And from among the people of Osh there arose Edward of the council of the people and having arisen, he girded his loins and spoke in a loud voice saying, behold we the people are being ripped off by Jimpot and the elders of Osh for they do not what they said unto the people late in the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy two when they presented themselves and spoke saying we shall hold the line

Thus spoke Edward for the elders of Osh much like unto other elders who were in the northern parts of the Land of Tor, had increased the wherewithall they should be remunerated by the people of the City of Osh

And among them there had arisen three who had spoken, saying nay as they were Pitcliff who spoke saying the timing was off and the woman Christina who recognized the difference between grass and hay and made the latter when there was the latter to be made, and Graham the manufacturer of Osh. And the three were the only ones among the elders who had arisen and thus spoken, and thus it was that Edward of the council of citizens of the City of Osh arose and raised merry hell

Now Jimpot and the elders of Osh thus collected much abuse that was verbal from the people of the City of Osh which was in the Land of Ontariopolis, for the adding to the wherewithall of the elders had come unto the people like a bolt of lightning out of a clear blue sky For the deliberations of the elders had been held behind doors that were closed and without the presence of the scribes of Osh and this it was that had sparked the anger of Edward and many of the men and women of Osh

And some there were who spoke saying, behold, the chief rulership of Jimpot is on the line for without his blessing the gatherings in secret of the elders would have been held publicly and before the eyes of the people of Osh and the scribes Now Jimpot who had found favor with the people of Osh over Maggie of Osh and Moonbob, in the first months of his reign had shown unto the people that he was one who believed more could be done for the people behind doors that were closed than otherwise, for the gathering of the elders in which their own wherewithall was added onto, was not the first of the gatherings of the elders of the City of Osh to be thus held in the dark

And the eyes of the men, women and yea even the eldest among the children of the City of Osh were upon Jimpot and the elders to see wherewithall they would show unto the people the why of the increasing of their own wherewithall

And also watching Jimpot and the elders of the City of Osh were the Pharaoh of Whit and his henchmen and the elders of the other cities in the Region of Ontariopolis for unto the elders of all the lands and regions it was a question of "if we don't do it ourselves, nobody will "

And unto the Chronicler the increasing of the wherewithall of the elders and Jimpot was neither here nor there when hkened unto the way in which the elders added unto the same, which was an abomination

Amen.

"Motorists planning to travel though the States needn't be intimidated by reports of localized gasoline shortages" is the word from the Ontario Motor League—Toronto Club's General Manager Neil Gaskin

He says "the affiliated American Automobile Association has notified its 14 million members that oil company spokesmen claim most company dealers will have supplies somewhat larger than they received last year

While these assurances are welcome, O.M.L still advises its members to keep the top half of the tank filled up.

USE OUR GUARANTEED HOME TRADE IN PLAN

Legal insurance is a scheme to protect lawyers from bad debts says agent

by garnet cowsill

Though lawyers claim prepaid legal insurance is inevitable, one area insurance man says it's a "joke".

Sydney L. Robins, Treasurer of the Law Society of Upper Canada, said recently that prepaid legal insurance for middle-income citizens is just around the corner, because they won't go on supporting legal aid for the poor unless their needs are met too

Although he declined to predict when the insurance plan would be introduced, he cited examples that the plan might cover, such as legal fees arising from divorce, a home purchase or a lawsuit.

In an interview with the Toronto Star, Robins added that within the next few weeks he would set up a special committee to produce a design for prepaid plans, probably along the lines of the old Physicians' Services Incorporated program that preceded medicare.

Area lawyer John Humphreys says he thinks the plan would be a benefit to the average working man who would not be eligible for legal aid.

"The day is certainly coming when we will see breaks from legal fees," Humpreys says. "I think it appropriate that they at least look into it."

He says he could not see the plan paying for legal fees in criminal cases because "90 per cent of criminal matters are paid for by the government . . . and . . . many of the people appearing in a criminal court are younger guys who would not be paying premiums in all probability."

Ontario County Crown Attorney Bruce Affleck says providing the premiums are realistic and he considers the idea an excellent one

He does see a few flaws in the plan, however

"Legal matters encompass all sorts of things, so the contractual agreements for the insurance might be endless and voluminous," he says. "There are so many little facets to law that a person may be covered for some things, but not for others"

He says to have insurance covering legal fees for drawing up a will or a land sale might be good, but then again "most people only use a lawyer twice in their lifetime"

So what good would the insurance be?

According to area insurance man John Aker the law society is "seeking to provide a public service that is not required or requested"

"I think it's a scheme so lawyers won't have to go around looking for retainers or collecting bad debts," he says

He says Robins is not saying if it will be a provincially-run plan like OHIC, or a private system like liability insurance

"If he intends it to be a public plan run by the province, I'm inclined to think it will be just another bureaucratic tax expense," Aker says

He also does not think the point made about legal aid is valid

"Just because we provide it for people without means, the answer isn't to extend the service," he says. "Just because the government subsidizes public housing, does that mean it should subsidize all housing?"

Robins also claims that such a plan would "reduce the cost of needed legal services"

Does this mean lawyers are going to reduce their fees if the plan is introduced?" asks Aker "I doubt it."

Robins also claims that the plan would ensure an adequate segment of the population would have legal services available to them

Aker says this rationale is also invalid.

"In Oshawa alone there are 50 lawyers anxious to provide their services to anyone in need," he says.

Asked if he would consider selling this type of insurance policy, he replied. "We'd sell it, but we'd probably sell as many policies like this as we do airplane policies"

Underage drinking

Demon rum, not grass, is the problem

"Boozing", not "doing dope" is becoming the major escape route for Ontario County young people

"I am personally convinced that teenagers are moving away from drugs to alcohol," said Wayne Weegie Ontario County director of the Addiction Research Foundation

Although he said the problem has not yet reached epidemic proportions, he maintains there should be social and legal forces at work to prohibit underage drinking in hotels and bars

This Week fired some questions at Weegie after receiving an unsigned letter from a parent somewhere in the Ontariopolis region

"Last week our teenager was charged for drinking under age at a local cocktail lounge" the parent wrote. "As a concerned parent I asked the policeman what happens to the hotel. His reply really startled me. It was simply...'Nothing'

The letter asked This Week why the police summons did not state the place where the offence occurred, why the hotel was not charged for filing to request proof of age; and what penalties a licensed hotel or bar could receive for such an offence?

According to Det. Trevor McCagherty of the Oshawa Police Department, the police summons should have stated the place in which the offence occurred

"In view of the fact that we don't know the author of the letter, we can't look up that particular summons," McCagherty said. "But normally it would state the premises for instance, "Men' beverage room, Joe Dokes Hotel"

McCagherty assured This Week that although the name of the hotel was omitted from the summons, if it was, it would certainly be brought out in the court evidence before the judge

In answer to the second question, the detective said it is very difficult to bring a charge of supplying liquor to a minor against a hotel or even a hotel employee

"Before a hotel or employee can be charged we have to prove that they knowingly served an alcoholic beverage to a minor" he said This can be very difficult to prove, especially when so many of our young people look older than they really are

He said hotels are very interested in not serving liquor to a minor. He also said to the best of his knowledge he cannot recall a hotel being charged for serving liquor to a minor since he became a policeman

However he said if we started to note a chronic problem of underage drinking in one hotel we would investigate it

The penalty for drinking underage he said is the same for serving liquor to a minor---a maximum of a $500 fine or six months in jail, or both A minimum penalty would be left to judicial discretion

Matthew Haensgen, 4, of Oxford Street in Oshawa says he doesn't mind posing for the photographer to illustrate a story but he prefers chocolate milk, thank you very much.

Whatever the legal implication, Weegie said underage drinking is becoming a problem

Hotels would certainly call the police if they saw a bunch of people sitting around smoking marijuana, so why shouldn t measures be taken by them to prohibit underage drinking — they re both against the law," he said

Weegie said he has found in most cases a young person is drinking "simply to get stoned or impress his peers This, he said, could create a drinking pattern and subsequent problem in later years

"I'm not against people drinking," he said "as long as they know how to and if it isn't against the law."

He said he is convinced there is an undocumented swing among the younger people to drink alcohol instead of taking drugs The only drug that has maintained its former popularity with high school age minors is marijuana

"There is a lot of evidence that it's alcohol instead of drugs," he said. "Four years ago when I was with ARF in Hamilton I used to go around to schools and discuss alcohol and its problems with students when the drug thing was just beginning Within five minutes the conversation was switched from alcohol to drugs

Now, he said, he goes to various schools to talk about drugs and within five minutes the conversation turns to the problems of alcohol

He also used as evidence the fact that there are fewer hospital emergencies dealing with "bad drug trips' About a year ago, the foundation was receiving 20 calls a year for drug treatment Now that's down to about two

Psychiatric patients are finding a new life---with a little help from friends

By John Bell
Staff Writer

WHITBY—Riding a bus, cooking a meal or going bowling may not mean much to most people. But to some, these are monumental barriers

To out-patients of the Whitby Psychiatric Hospital, now or soon-to-be living back in the community, doing these seemingly simple things can be a frightening experience

Whether the patient has been in the hospital for two months or 20 years, is 18 year old or 50, going back into a world that for them is strange and hostile is not something they can do on their own.

Thanks to a local initiatives program called DORAP, this is not the case for at least 30 patients at the hospital

DORAP, the Discharged and Out-patients Recreational and Activities Program, is run by six young people of various backgrounds at the hospital as part of the institution's volunteer services program

Johanne Kieran, one of the group, says the program is set up for the rehabilitation of these people through showing them ways to use their leisure time

People who have been patients, or are about to return to society, she says have usually gotten out of the work routine, have lost touch with society lost their initiative by having everything done for them at the hospital and so can easily become bored and depressed in the outside world.

The idea then is to introduce them back into society by showing them the basic living skills such as cooking, buying groceries, taking a bus and keeping up personal hygiene, while at the same time introducing them to all the recreational programs and events the community has to offer

The only way this can be done effectively, says Johanne, is on a person-to-person basis. Each of the six members of the group is referred five or six 'friends', patients or out-patients, and deal with these on a personal level to build up a trust and understanding.

The first step for the DORAP member is to determine what the problems of his or her "friend" are, whether it's not knowing how to use bus service, shopping or wanting to play cards with other members of the community.

He then helps to solve these for the "friend" until the time when he or she can do these without help and without depending on the companion for advice, encouragement and moral support

The program itself may be short-termed, says Johanne, but the effects on the patient have to be long-term to make him or her self-reliant in society

It's not a nine to five job for the DORAP members. Many of the "friends" may not be available during the day, or don't need help then, so the workers may have to put in the time needed at night or on weekends, especially if the problem is one of recreation

In the initial stages of help, the worker must take the initiative and in many cases, finds it hard to get the "friends" interested in outside activities or doing things for themselves.

This is usually because the person is shy about trying something new for fear of being laughed at or rejected by the community

The procedure then, says Johanne, is to encourage them to come with their own ideas, show them how to go about doing what they want to do, and let them make the first step

The workers admit that some back down at first through fear, but as in the case of one woman who had never been out of the hospital, once she did go out, she found she liked the experience

The workers praise the public for their co-operation and understanding in helping to make the program successful, especially those who work in shops

Shop clerks and restaurant people, say the workers, realize what they are trying to do and try their best to be as patient and helpful as possible.

But, it's a problem finding out what activities are going on in the community at levels the "friends" can cope with in the early stages of their new lives, and there is the problem of money.

Most out-patients have to support themselves on some form of government pension or welfare assistance and so can't afford activities which may run into a bit of money But slowly, the workers are building up a list of contacts where activities are provided at a low or no cost

Although the program is a relative success considering that it's taken six weeks to organize and

Through the auspices of a LIP grant, these young people are helping patients at the Ontario Psychiatric Hospital in Whitby readjust to the outside world upon their re-entry into society. The workers include (left to right) Gary McKay, Kay Wikholn, Helga Mayer, Johanne Kieran and Valerie Powell.

Ugandan refugees open store in Oshawa

Two Ugandan Asian refugees who fled the country in November have opened up a supermarket in Oshawa in partnership with two other men Getting ready for business are the two refugees, Sadrudin Popatia (left) and Mohamed Ali Habib (centre), and one of their partners, Sadrudin Kassam.

That Canada is a land of opportunity if you're willing to work hard has been brought home to Mohamed Ali Habib and Sadrudin Popatia

Five months ago these two men fled Uganda and the madness of President Idi Aman They came to Canada with virtually nothing

Now, they have formed a partnership in a grocery store with a third Ugandan, Sadrudin Kassam, who emigrated to Canada five years ago.

The three of them, along with a fourth man from Toronto have opened up 4 Guys Super market on Ritson Road South

For the past two weeks Habib Popatia and Kassam had been working long into the night to get the store ready for its grand opening last Saturday

They started looking for the right spot to start a business about three months ago, and so far they have sunk about $200 000 into their new venture which they got partly on credit and through financing

They know it's not going to be easy starting a new business. But they are willing to work long hours, from 9 a.m to 11 p m seven days a week

"The chain stores scare us," one admitted. "But we find this neighborhood is good It needs a store and we are convenient"

They are confident that if they work hard, their business will be successful and so they have gathered up their families and now live across the street from the store Kassam is the only bachelor.

Although the other two men were in business for themselves in Uganda, the experience of running a Canadian grocery store comes from Kassam who owned a store in Mississauga

All three men knew each other in Uganda and decided to get together when Habib and Popatia came to Canada

All three agree that they did not have any trouble adapting to North American way of life

The only thing that has really bothered them, they say is the climate

"To us, winter is serious," Habib says "I have always walked with the sun and everything was green."

If the business begins to thrive like they hope it will, these three men will be exceptions as far as Ugandan emigrants go Instead of having Canadians offer them a job, they hope to be able to return the favor shown their countrymen, and offer some Canadians jobs.

Ontariopolis recruits train to be OPP

TORONTO—Howells Ray, Oshawa. Van Hoof Josef, Whitby Greenley Dennis, Oshawa Welsh Dennis, Ajax.

So you want to be a member of the Ontario Provincial Police? Why?

Put on the spot, these four recruits to the ranks of the province's police force at the OPP College in Toronto, are quick to make it clear they want to be 'cops' because it's challenging a great career and frankly, they all are convinced they'll like it

Because of the high standards of the force these four are actually lucky to be given the chance to find out whether or not they'll like it, because of every 100 applications to become an OPP officer only six are OPP material

Last year 784 men trained at the force's college at 291 Sherbourne Street here which without its sign and flagpoles, would appear to be just any one of the hundreds of century-old homes in the downtown area of Toronto

Just getting to the college is half the battle for the potential recruit The battery of tests, applications and interviews held prior to the college stage, is intended to weed out those who would probably falter in the later stages of training, or while on the job

Outlining the procedure involved, Chief Inspector John McPherson a senior officer at the college, says 'we're proud that we can be that selective in recruiting'

Basically, the first step is simple and requires the potential recruit picking up an application at any detachment office He needs only be a Canadian citizen or British subject, 21 to 35 years old for a constable or 18 years old and under 21 years for cadet, a minimum of five foot eight inches in height, weigh from 150 to 200 lbs and be able to pass a physical

The educational requirement for constable is Grade 10 and for cadet, Grade 12 He must be willing to be posted anywhere in Ontario and must have either a chauffeur's or operator's licence

Once that's out of the way, work begins on checking into the applicant's background on such things as character, credit rating homelife or as McPherson puts it, "to get to know the man"

This done, the man takes a medical examination and then goes before a second review board which looks over all the information gathered to decide whether he is the right material

McPherson stresses that the interviews are not based on the man's education or intelligence, but just on his general knowledge and his awareness of what's going on around him in society

Having passed all these tests and interviews, and if there are vacancies in the force the recruit is invited to report for the three-week orientation course at the college

From this point on things move fast from the newcomer to the ranks. Arriving on Sunday night he's given a bed, a serial number and gets to meet his fellow recruits Monday classes begin

The same day the recruit is told what district of the province he's been assigned to This was not always the case, says McPherson

In the past, recruits were told at the end of the course, but this he says, tended to distract the man causing him to worry that, for example he might be posted to Moosonee, or some other remote area

McPherson is quite open about the fact that in the past recruits were lost because they didn't like where they had been posted, and that he feels telling them right at the start is a more sensible way of doing it

Three weeks is not really that long a time for an orientation course, he says, "and believe me, it's a heavy course"

Mainly, the course is designed to introduce the new man to what the OPP is all about, what the role of the police officer is, and touches on various aspects of police life from dealing with the public, to apprehending a suspect

The course gives the recruit the chance to iron out anything that's bothering him and gives him a taste of police life before he actually goes to his posting

The atmosphere is military from making beds and polishing the brass to drilling in the parade square for 40 minutes each morning. When the recruit leaves, he's a working member of the force, even though he still has to put in another 12 weeks training at the police college at Aylmer, Ont

The new officer must spend four months working with an experienced constable at his posting before going to Aylmer

McPherson says there is a big difference at this point between the provincial and municipal police, because while the municipal recruit is just an observer for the first part of his police life, the OPP recruit is a working policeman whether it's ticketing a violator or making an arrest

Because this is the case, he says, the recruit soon appreciates the training he's received at the college.

At the end of the four months of on-the-job work, the recruit goes to Aylmer for instruction in law, English, making out reports, firearm use and riot control—everything he needs to round out the academic and practical part of his police life

Later on during his first year on the force he returns to Aylmer for another six weeks of training. After a year of probational status, if he makes it, he's on his own as a member of the force.

institute it and considering that it may set a precedent in out-patient rehabilitation, it may not last.

The government grant only allows for the program to operate over a three-month period, ending May 31.

Application has been made to the federal government for continuation of the experimental project and the workers have hopes that the money needed will be made available

From the hospital staff's standpoint the project is regarded as an experiment, but as the workers contact more and more staff making their efforts known, the staff are beginning to see the value of this type of program and are just beginning to help all they can.

Workers have made some mistakes in the first stages of the program, but have learned from these and feel it gives them more flexibility in helping their friends

By Dr Charles McIlveen MPP, Oshawa

The Session is in full swing again Evening sittings have begun, stretching each day from 10 a.m to 10 30 p m , except Monday when the session does not start until 2 00 p m and on Friday we adjourn at 1 00 p m

The reason we have Monday morning off and Friday afternoon is to allow the members from far distances such as Thunder Bay, Windsor, Cornwall and Ottawa time to travel to and from their ridings

Toronto members and members that are close enough to Toronto can use those two half days in any way we want So far I have used them to continue my practice of medicine

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings from 10 a m to 12 noon are taken up with caucus committee meetings This year I have been fortunate or unfortunate, as the case may be, to be made a member of the Public Accounts Committee which sits from 12 30 to 2 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday

So far there have been three Public Accounts Committee Meetings, and at the present moment we are studying what happened to the $55 million that ostensibly disappeared from the Ministry of Health

Today the auditor was in to explain why he brought it to the attention of the Public Accounts Committee He feels that the Department of Health did not have the authority to say that they would not collect this money which the old health plan called O H S I P was amalgamated with a hospital plan to what we presently call O H I P

It is a most complicated problem and the Department of Health officials were in to explain their part later today, stating that they would have to have charged the participants in O H I P a double billing for the months of February and March, 1972 if the plan was to have their premiums up to date

The Department of Health chose to backlog all premiums for two months. Now all residents are paid in advance for two months Confusing isn't it?

This means that subscribers are refunded two months when they die become 65 leave the province or leave the plan of their own volition

It's a terribly complicated subject and at the moment we've asked the Attorney General to express an opinion as to whether the Department of Health officials had the authority to [illegible] this money without legislation authorizing it

I'm not sure that some of the administrative officials in the Department of Health did not step beyond their jurisdiction, but one thing I am sure of is that the only ones that profited from the transaction are all the citizens of Ontario

Regardless of this I am sure a recommendation will come from our Committee, so that this same thing cannot happen again . .

Bachelors four share household duties

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Remember a couple of years back, Bachelors Three was the talk in Boston surrounding three prominent sports figures—hockey's Derek "Turk" Sanderson baseball's Ken "Hawk" Harrileson and football's Joe "Broadway" Namoth?

Well in Oshawa we have a minor version of the Bachelors Three. Four of Oshawa's top young sports figures—Ronny Pither, Larry Lloyd, Joe Krasnaj and Bill McTeer—are four bachelors who live together tending house and looking after sports in Oshawa

Actually it all started a year ago when Pither and Krasnaj lived together in an apartment

McTeer, a graduate from Western University and a buddy of Pither's was seeking employment last summer and secured a job in Scarborough at Centennial College and decided to join the others and commute to the eastern outskirts of Toronto

"It's just a natural" said Pither "We all like sports and we've got a lot in common" McTeer said the four take a lot of kidding from their students (they're all teachers) who think they have all kinds of wild parties

However this is the furthest thing from the truth

"Sure we've a lot of fun but very seldom are we together" says McTeer

The four have a collective agreement on a cost-sharing for food and rent for the house Always somebody is coming home late for supper because of sports or school commitments

A common interest in sports brought four bachelors together to share in "pad" in Oshawa. Hamming it up for the camera are (left to right) Larry Lloyd, Bill McTeer, Joe Krasnaj and Ron Pither.

Pither is a high school teacher at Central CI in Oshawa and handles the coaching duties in basketball and rugger and is the mentor for the Junior "A" Green Gaels lacrosse club

Krasnaj and Lloyd both, Oshawa natives both attended Central CI have played pro lacrosse

Lloyd is also an excellent ski instructor at Kirby in the Blue Bird School club and a top basketball player with the Pistons. He teaches Grade 7 and 8 at Vincent Massey public school

Krasnaj teaches at Ridgeway public school and has played pro lacrosse, and this season is the Junior "C" lacrosse coach

During the past winter, Krasnaj's schol basketball club knocked off numerous high school basketball teams.

Both Lloyd and Krasnaj played for countless Green Gaels Minto Cup clubs

McTeer, the latest to join the group, has an outstanding football background Only last week it was announced by the Oshawa Hawkeyes that McTeer would be the new coach for this season

McTeer formerly coached at the University of Montana and played last year for the London Lords in the O.R.F.U. Senior League, helping London win the championship as a linebacker

Pither is the unofficial cook of the group and according to Krasnaj they have excellent meals every night

Pither enjoys cooking steaks, chili, pork chops and turkey while Lloyd sometimes steps in and makes his special treat—lasagna

In regards to washing, each household member looks after his own while the housework is left to a lady who is brought in once a week to make the household shipshape

All four are good for each other and exchange coaching techniques from their various sports

Almost every night all four are busy marking papers or mapping out practise and game strategy for their own sports

Only argument comes when the TV goes on when McTeer wants to watch Sanford and Son and the rest of the guys choose M.A.S.H

Oshawa swimmers qualify for games

Five members of the Oshawa Aquatic Club have gained a berth in the Ontario Summer Games set for Oshawa in July

Head coach Jim Smart announced that Jo-Anne Bathe Heather Mesent Juliie Pavone Pat Higgins and Steve Smart will be taking part in the provincial championships

Tree planting will honor Heber Down

A commemorative tree planting ceremony in memory of the late Heber Down is planned by the Brooklin Horticultural Society

The memorial service and tree planting will take place on Sunday April 29 at 3 p.m in front of the Brooklin Memorial Arena which the society has under taken to landscape

A brass plaque will mark the Down memorial and those wishing to make a donation can send cheques payable to the Brooklin Horticultural Society Heber Down Memorial

They may be sent to Mrs E Munns, Treasurer 308 Cochrane St, Whitby or to Mrs Wm E Davis Publicity Director Ashburn

Tilson award

Rick Middleton named top player in OHA

Rightwinger Rick Middleton, who established a new team scoring record this past season for the Oshawa Generals, has been named the Red Tilson Trophy Award winner donated annually in memory of Red Tilson, a former Oshawa General himself by the Toronto Globe & Mail.

Tilson, a super player with the Gens, died during the Second World War

During the past season, Middleton, a native of Toronto who played two seasons in Oshawa, fired 67 goals and setup another 70 markers for a season point total of 137.

He finished third overall in the individual scoring race in the O.H.A Major Junior "A" League

The announcement was made official yesterday in Toronto by Gord Walker Junior Hockey writer for the Globe Working on a line "nickednamed" the KLM unit consisting of Brian Kinsella at centre and Billy Lochead at left wing, this trio was regarded as the top attacking unit in the 10-team circuit

The threesome compiled a total of 334 scoring points including 152 goals. Lochead fired 56 markers and Kinsella 29

It is believed that Middleton is the first Oshawa General player to win the coveted trophy. However Bobby Attersley, now a business owner in Whitby, claims that he was the first Oshawa player to take the Tilson award

It seems that records in the O.H.A. office in Toronto indicate Attersley took the trophy as a member of the Guelph Biltmores rather that the Generals

Attersley however denies this stating that he won the trophy as a member of the Generals and accepted the trophy the following fall in Guelph when he was forced to play with the Biltmores after the Oshawa Arena had burned down in the fall of 1953

Rick Middleton, Oshawa Generals rightwinger, has been awarded the Red Tilson trophy.

Middleton's coach and General Manager Gus Bodnar describes him as the best rightwinger that he has ever coached in his eight years behind the bench in junior hockey

He is predicting a bright future for this classy player During this past winter Middleton has gained about 15 pounds and now weighs a solid 180 and is 5 foot 11 inches.

He has been working on weights to help build himself up for the tough battle of catching a professional position next fall

Pro scouts have been high on Middleton all season but claimed his size would hold him back as being a top flight pro

However this attitude has changed around completely since Middleton has taken up weightlifting

Come June, the NHL hold their annual draft meeting in Montreal and it is expected that Middleton will be a first round pick if not the first player

His attitude towards the game is a major plus and he has proven that he can score goals as indicated by his fine record this season

Dennis Potvin from Ottawa 67's finished runner-up behind Middleton in the Tilson Trophy stakes and another 67's skater, Blake Dunlop, was third overall

Besides losing Middleton to overage, Gens will be minus Don Seiling, Guido Tenisi, Nels Pyatt and Walt Johnson

Barrand and Stiles do it

Oshawa's two top running aces, Roy Barrand and Don Stiles, are up to their old tricks again and that's winning races

On the weekend, both Oshawa runners entered the Scarborough Masters 3000 metre cross country race at Thompson Park with Barrand and Stiles both recording first place finishes

Barrand raced in the over-60 bracket and checked in with a time of 13·47 which is 14 seconds better than the time he posted last year in the same race.

Stiles, who celebrated his 54th birthday last week, was 50 seconds better than last year with a brillant time of 11 42

John Masil from Scarborough and organizer of the event was first in the over-40 bracket

Like Stiles, Barrand had a birthday last month, his 63rd celebrated another year running 10 miles.

Gymnast Andrea Whyte, 12, of Oshawa demonstrates the form she will use in a regional gymnastics competition this weekend.

Regional gymnastics title will be awarded

The Region Gymnastics championships will be held this weekend at Eastdale Collegiate featuring six different clubs

Taking part in the championships will be the famous Scarborough Winsettes Bayview, West Scarborough, East York, Barrie and the host Oshawa club.

Action gets underway at 9 a.m. and finishes up about 4 p.m. on Saturday with the same times prevailing on Sunday

John Liston who organized the Oshawa club back in 1969 has high hopes for his gymnastics crew which totals 20 strong

"We've got a good club," said Liston, "but we are limited in practise time which runs about four to five hours a week, and we should be working out about 15 hours a week but the lack of capable coaching is a handicap with our club."

Oshawa secures OASA

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Softball 74 took a giant step forward on the weekend at Windsor when Oshawa learned it will host the 1974 O.A.S.A. Softball convention next April.

Bruce McArthur, local alderman and president of the Minor Softball program in Oshawa, made the bid on behalf of our city.

"We're very happy about the convention coming to Oshawa", said McArthur. "It's only phase one of our program. Next year is our 50th anniversary as a city and we plan to build the anniversary around softball which has been Oshawa's major sport during the last five decades."

McArthur also hopes to land the Canadian Amateur Softball Senior championships featuring provincial winners in all 10 provinces and have the games played the last week of August at Civic Fields next August.

Finalization of this project should come sometime in late August at this year's championships scheduled for Hull Quebec on Labor Day weekend

In other O.A.S.A. convention happenings chaired by John Brady of Oshawa, Tom Simms from Meaford was elected president replacing Cecil Dunn of Cambridge who was defeated

Vinny Walker of Port Perry was elected first vice president, Don Prescott of Sudbury is second Vice, E. J Thomas of Simcoe is third, George Mahler of Windsor is secretary and LeRoy Pickard treasurer.

Oshawa's City & District president Spike Yourkevich was elected as a director while Gerry Brooks, another Oshawa native, was defeated for the same position

Oshawa softball teams are currently holding indoor workouts with outdoor sessions scheduled to start within a couple of weeks

League play has been scheduled for early May

As for Oshawa's four top teams—Tony's will be playing in the new Ontario fastball league, R & H Cabinets has rejoined the Beaches League, and Falcon TV and Scugog Cleaners will be tothing in the City & District League

HOW WE SEE IT

By Don Seiling
Of the Oshawa Generals

This is my last article for Gus Brown Motors and the Oshawa Generals. Actually it seems only yesterday I was checking into the hotel for my first of three seasons in Oshawa

During my stay I have enjoyed good times as well as bad for the experience has just been great

If not for a few good friends in my rookie season I doubt if I would have been able to endure the initial season away from home. It's a major adjustment leaving your friends to play in a strange town and surroundings.

Friends invited me to their houses and provided a homelike atmosphere. These people took special interest in me and have created a lasting friendship

I would be disappointed in myself if I didn't thank the Sanders, Woods, and Edmondsons for my enjoyable Generals years

Now five of these Generals careers are finished, Guido Tenisi, Nels Pyatt, Walt Johnson and Rick Middleton are also looking forward to pro hockey

All the other four grads feel the same way I do towards Oshawa as a city

The future looks puzzling as it seems uncertain at this writing. Most of us are pondering where we'll be playing come next fall

Pro hockey has been the dream for all five of us and the realization of this dream should be coming true soon. We are all very excited

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the fans and remind them a new crop of kids will be here next fall and we hope that you treat them the way you have treated us

Our GM-Coach Gus Bodnar and all the executive have been outstanding, allowing us to play in an Oshawa Generals uniform. Our big step wouldn't be possible without good coaching and a terrific league to play in. Without you patrons it wouldn't be possible

Pro hockey is our future but we will have a warm spot in our hearts about Oshawa and the best of luck for the Gens for 1973-4 season

Thanks a lot, Oshawa

Bodnar optimistic despite sixth-place

by jim shaw

Much has been written and said about the Oshawa Generals our city's O.H.A. Major Junior "A" club.

Certainly the Gens didn't live up to their preseason press clippings last September and finished a distant sixth behind the pennant winners Toronto Marlboros who set all kind of team and league records this year

Oshawa's finest were bounced in the best of seven quarter finals in four straight games against the pesky Peterboro TPT Petes

Last week, club president Russ Humphries and his executive hosted the players, GM-Coach Gus Bodnar, his trainers, Wayne Daniels and John Newey, stats man Mike Mothersill and the media at a windup banquet

It was a sad night for the hockey club as five members of the Gens won't be back next season going overage and will all probably be skating in professional shinny next fall

Leaving Oshawa via graduation are defenceman Guido Tenisi and forwards Rick Middleton (who established a all-time record for the Oshawa Generals firing 67 goals this past season), Don "Scotter" Seiling, Walt Johnson, and Nels Pyatt who missed the major part of the season with injuries

All should go high in the pro draft next June in Montreal. Middleton and Seiling should go in the first round pick

For Bodnar, it was a disappointing season both at the boxoffice and on the ice Generals were down 70,000 fans from last season which is an average of about 1,200 per game over the 63 game schedule

Another major stat that must be pointed out was that the Generals managed only five victories on enemy ice during the year. This is a bitter pill to swallow.

However the future looks bright according to Bodnar. Despite losing the number one and number four draft picks via a trade with Hamilton when the Gens acquired captain Lee Fogolin Bodnar is still predicting a first division club come next season.

Generals will be playing a 70 game schedule with the addition of the Kingston Frontenacs who acquired the Montreal Junior Canadiens franchise during recent months

Bodnar really feels that losing only five players to overage and with a good crop of youngster who are skating with the Parkway TV midgets the future looks bright

"We've got the nucleus of talent to make us winner next season," said a confident Bodnar

Of course, Bodnar will be counting heavily on goalie Rick St. Croix and forwards Bobby Ferguson, Billy Lochead, and Brian Kinsella.

The major problem will be trying to replace Middleton and his goal scoring wizardry. Matt Leyden, described as Mr. Hockey in Oshawa, feels the Gens need more muscle both up front and back on the blueline

Leyden, who remembers the heyday of the Generals, describes Middleton as one of the best Generals ever to wear the Oshawa colors.

Bodnar and his scouts will probably draft for size and muscle in the midget overage draft this summer as only two players, Don Seiling and Walt Johnson, managed to play every game during the regular schedule

Bodnar, regarded as a great guy by the local media, praised the team and is counting heavily on next year.

"We'll be back a lot better than last season and that's a promise" said Bodnar.

Pistons end season with a loss

Oshawa Pistons closed out the Ontario Basketball schedule on a losing note losing to Mr. Submarine 70-54 to complete the play-offs in the Etobicoke Intermediate League

Scoring only 20 points in the first half, Pistons top gunners were Bill Langley with 19 and Larry Lloyd with 11

Eddie Hanewich and Charlie Marlow missed the game with injuries

Cycling begins

Spring brings out the big wheels

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

With all the excellent summer type weather lately, it seems that a great number of cyclists have come out of hibernation.

Cycling has gained in popularity in recent years and adherents are looking for another banner year

Enthusiasts in Oshawa organized a tour to Collingwood on a recent weekend. The Nomads Cycle Club of Oshawa journeyed to Collingwood on the March 31 weekend leaving on a Saturday morning for the first tour of the season.

They joined in with friends from the Hamilton Cycling club. The two clubs met at the intersection of Highway 7 and Airport Road west of Toronto.

Cycling is a great sport, testing your strength and stamina against the varying terrain over the 83 mile journey by the both clubs.

That ride proved to be enjoyable and challenging in many areas. Major plus was the last past where the terrain was flat.

The entire group passed through Hockley, Alliston and Wasaga Beach enroute to their destination. It's a great relaxer breaking up the regular weekly routine putting behind you all the hustle and bustle of city living.

One's thoughts are free to wander looking forward to future rides.

On a weekend jaunt eating a nutritious breakfast is a must and your always off again about 10 a.m.

Sometimes wind plays a major factor in your rides while cool temperatures may dampen your ambition to continue.

Major plus has to be the quiet roads, taking a slightly different route for a return journey.

On the return trip from Collingwood the Nomads Cycle Club, passed through villages of Stayner, Mansfield and Mono Mills.

Just prior to reaching Mansfield the group stopped for a quick change into dry clothes before having lunch.

The scenic countryside and quiet which surrounds you when touring by bicycle is really what makes this kind of event so rewarding, aside from the fact that it's just plain good for you.

The first cycling race is scheduled soon for the outskirts of Caledon Village. On April 28 there will be an overnight bike ride to Kendal. This event is being organized by the Oshawa Recreation department.

Tents and breakfast will be supplied and all you have to bring will be a sleeping bag and your own cups and cutlery.

Entry fee will be $2 and anyone from age 11 upwards may take part. Further information is available by calling 725-4776.

Cycling promises to be even more popular this year than in the past, with a number of cycle clubs organizing long-distance tours to get their winter-weary legs in shape for the season.

Minor hockey buffs had a lot to cheer about

by Scott Mercer
Hockey writer

Minor hockey in Oshawa is enjoying what has to be its finest season ever this year

All-star teams in Oshawa, under the leadership of Director Don Bowen, have had success at all levels of competition. Of the 10 all-star clubs assembled this year, five are still driving for championships. These boys, who range in age from 8 to 16, show a bright promise for the future of Oshawa's minor system.

The Eastview Pharmacy Mites are currently moving closer to their zone championship. They have already defeated three teams, and will now meet a fourth Oshawa's minor novice representatives are the Marianna Development All-stars. They, too, have reached the zone finals, and currently are leading Belleville in the series.

S & S Pools, a minor peewee squad, have enjoyed success this year with Bill White and Gard Campbell at the helm. Having defeated Peterborough, Belleville, and Burlington, they now face Kitchener in the finals.

Also reaching the zone finals is the Lions' Minor Bantam club. Three teams bowed to them Brantford Bantams are their next opponents

By far the biggest story of this minor hockey year, however, has been the Parkway TV Midgets. In the midget class competition does not end at the zone championship level, but continues until an all-Ontario winner is found.

That is exactly what the Parkway squad is fighting for now In a year that will long be remembered by followers of Oshawa minor hockey, they first completed a highly successful tour of Sweden

Once back in Canada, they proceeded to eliminate Peterborough, Kingston, Guelph, and Windsor in an all-Ontario bid.

As if this were not enough, the team is now battling Toronto in the semi-finals and has been impressive.

All-Ontario champions have been rare for Oshawa, as Toronto clubs usually dominate.

Oshawa's last winning teams were the Bantam and Midget clubs of 1966, which copped all-Ontario honors. Before that, one has to look to 1958, when the Oshawa Juveniles went all the way.

Much of this success has to be credited to Bowen and his assistants, John Rudka and Jack Mackness.

The work of these men is often overlooked, but it should not be. They spend long hours of their time at the rinks, coordinating the operation.

Bowen cites a definite reason for the success. By having all players "playing in their proper age bracket" he says the boys can develop best. One can certainly not dispute his theory on the basis of this year's achievements.

There is one other factor which will surely aid the teams, and that is fan support. Good crowds, such as those at the most recent Midget games, is a real inspiration to the players.

Fan support will be especially important to the Parkway team as they play a crucial game this week with the Toronto Marlies. The game, the fifth in the series, may also be the last chance Oshawa supporters will have to see the club in action

If they do get past Toronto, all of their final games will be played in a northern city. Teams still in the running are Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, and Timmins. In any event, the all-Ontario Midget championship series will begin on the Easter weekend, and will be a best-of-three affair.

Wait for Whitby is what Oshawa city council decided to do before granting its pay increases.

When the controversial pay increase bylaw came up for council approval Monday, Ald Cliff Pilkey moved that it be tabled - but not before another secret caucus meeting devised a new, less politically painful strategy in the matter, says one alderman

After councillors emerged from the mayor's chambers, where a quick and closed caucus meeting was held, Pilkey moved the bylaw be tabled No debate is allowed on such a motion

Pilkey told reporters he tabled the bylaw so it could be discussed when current budget was before council

Not so says Ald John Aker

Whitby he says is in the process of granting itself a 100 per cent increase in councillors pays and Oshawa council wants to be able to point its finger at another council and say to the people: "they're doing it too according to Aker

Aker says he could not disclose what was discussed in that secret meeting "but it's the last secret meeting I go to

In my opinion the item was tabled without debate because of political pressure brought on by various groups in the city, and the fact that it has been published that Whitby council is discussing a 100 per cent increase in honorariums that would give the mayor $18,000 and councillors $5,000, "Aker says

Aker who seconded the initial motion which granted councillors the increase and who seconded the bylaw Monday says normal procedure should have seen the bylaw passed but that Oshawa council needs another council to point the finger at

If Whitby council approves its increases Aker says the Oshawa bylaw will be lifted from the table and passed If however it is not approved in Whitby, Oshawa councillors will leave its bylaw tabled

"In my opinion council made a decision two weeks ago on our increase based on work load and the necessity to attract qualified people to run in regional government," Aker says

"The situation had not changed in the two weeks and I believe the bylaw should have been passed or defeated based on it merits I will withdraw my support of the bylaw because I refuse to follow Whitby's council in this matter

Aker says he is personally disappointed with fellow councillors who so quickly change their position because of adverse publicity

He claims the only councillor who has guts is Controller John McLaughlin who moved the bylaw in the absense of Ald John DeHart who initially proposed the salary increases

The RCMP's secret talks

BUG

Ed Broadbent to no end

Super burger for champs

Winning the Major A Little NHL peewee championship meant more than just trophies and team crests for the Dines' Steak House crew. Sponsor Louis Dines whipped up this super burger as his way of saying thanks and Paul Frayne, Vic Smith and Dave Wilson (left to right) are really glad he did

editorial

Ed Broadbent takes on Dudley Doright

Little boys are usually forgiven for being naughty on their birthdays, so perhaps the RCMP's indiscretion of last week can be overlooked

After all, Canada's national police force IS celebrating its 100th birthday this year

But let's not let it happen again or Momma Trudeau will have to spank

We're referring of course to the impetuousness of our men in scarlet in agreeing to address a group of Canadian businessmen on "subversives" in society—and refusing to let a member of Parliament in to hear what was being said!

Our own Ed Broadbent, MP for Oshawa-Whitby, is to be commended for once again refusing to let the government carry on in a manner that if left unchecked could set a dangerous precedent for this country

He was the MP who tried to get into that particular meeting and when refused, he complained in the House of Commons to Solicitor-General Warren Allmand

Broadbent's complaints elicited a feeble excuse from Allmand that the businesses represented at the hearing were involved in defence contracts and so—are you ready for this—the security of the nation would be threatened if the talk was made public.

Ho hum. Every time a politician wants to draw a veil of secrecy around something, he intones righteously that the security of the nation would be threatened if the public was apprised of the situation

The T. Eaton Company, Bell Telephone and International Harvester. Do these sound like companies involved in defence work with the government? Well, they had representatives at the meeting

Perhaps Eaton's was in the middle of delicate negotiations on supplying chintz curtains for the windows of the armed forced bunkers in Ottawa. And Bell might have been discussing the installation of Princess phones in the war room. Could International Harvester be thinking of converting tractors into tanks.?

Anyway, our man Broadbent was not going to let things go at that and he persisted until Allmand announced, again very righteously, that henceforth, the RCMP will not address private business gatherings on such topics

The Mountie may always get his man, but in this case, Ed Broadbent got the whole scarlet lot of them.

Thorny harvest for Davis

Now that most of the smoke has cleared after the bombshell dropped on Ontario by Treasurer John White, the ironic thing about it is that the most serious casualty appears to be the Davis government

Sure the increased taxes are going to hurt most of us, especially the new tax on fuel and electricity.

But when it starts getting a little drafty in our homes next fall, we can always pull on an extra set of Stanfield underwear. (We hear there is no truth to the rumor that White owns shares in the company)

Or if long johns make you itch, you can always curl up next to a big furry dog—after all, there's no sales tax on animals.

But by raising the sales tax from five to seven per cent and by including heat and light, the Davis government has sown seeds of discontent that will blossom every month—and in some cases every day.

Every time a cash register rings up that seven per cent, the customer is going to glower and think: "It's that blankety-blank Bill Davis who did that."

Is this the same government that relied so heavily on public relations such a short time ago to landslide it into office

The domino theory

Housewives who participated in the recent beef boycott were no doubt heartened by the headline in the Globe and Mail last week that stated: Ontario beef prices cut by 5 to 6 cents a pound.

The story went on to say that price cuts were started by Miracle Mart and quickly followed by Dominion Stores Ltd.

What the meat boycotters have done is kick the thin layer of dirt off the hastily-buried fact that the consumer, not the supermarket has the final say in food pricing.

This was apparent up until a year or so ago when the supermarket price war was in full swing. So competitive is the food business that if one chain drops its prices, the others have to follow suit.

The domino theory may not be valid in Indo-China, but by gosh it works in Canadian supermarkets.

Easter some 30 years later

by peter brouwer

I know a lot of people who really get caught up in the Christmas spirit, year after year, but who, when it comes to Easter, are hardly aware that it's actually happening

So what is happening?

To someone who believes in Christmas as a reminder of the birth of Christ, Easter is often a much more exciting event than Christmas My father used to call it an annual reminder of the hope of immortality Easter, in the old country, was a real celebration indeed. More so than Christmas I'd say

And even for the kids there was something much more exciting in it than in Christmas, what with the horror of the death of Christ on Good Friday and then the resurrection on Easter morning. As a child I would picture the scene of Christ walking out of his grave

To me it was a much bigger deal than men walking on the moon

It left room for an enormous amount of imagination. It still does today

The late Rev. James Hord wrote the following piece on Easter. It's part of a collection of his thoughts and writings and is published under the title 'False Gods and the Devil to Pay' by his friends and associates in the United Church of Canada. I'd like to quote from it as an Easter tribute

'In a simple affirmation of my Easter faith I would say that the most important fact of this season is the assurance that CHRIST IS RISEN.

That was the breathtaking, too-good-to-be-true news that went winging from follower to follower, friend to friend, at the first Easter 'Christ is risen! He is risen indeed!'

'The message of the Resurrection makes all the difference in the world to a believer. Christ is no longer a dead hero but a living Lord. He is no longer a historic figure, but 'our eternal Contemporary.' He is here with us to guide, strengthen and uphold us through all the decisions and battles of our daily lives. And we have not begun to understand the thrill of Easter until we can say: 'Christ is risen. He is my personal Friend and Saviour.'

'Easter also means for me the assurance that sin and evil are defeated. Jesus won a victory over sin in His own lifetime But the crucifixion seemed to mean the end of the best life that was ever lived and the triumph of the wicked men who killed Him. In the Resurrection God reversed the decision of men and proclaimed the victory of good over evil, truth over error, and love over hate

'The angel said to the despairing women on the first Easter morning: 'Why seek you the living among the dead? He is not here. He is risen!' And the risen Christ assured His disciples: 'Because I live, you shall live also.' Paul wrote: 'Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of themthat slept.' If Christ is the first fruits from the dead that means that there are more to follow. Christ's faithful followers will also be raised with Him to eternal life

'Countless sorrowing hearts have been transformed and uplifted by this triumphant Easter message, that Christ has been raised victorious from the grave. Beyond death there is eternal life. Beyond sorrow there is immortal hope.

'This is what Easter means to me!'

A new recruit for the French foreign legion

by tom douglas

The French Legionaire enters the limestone barracks, throws his rifle on his bunk and wearily sags down beside it

Wiping the sweat from his brow, he looks dejectedly around the room and spots another soldier sitting on a bunk on the other side, sewing a neckcloth onto the back of his pillbox cap

"Bonjour," says the first man. "Ca va?'

The second man looks up with a startled expression on his face: "What? Oh, that's French, isn't it? I'm fine, thank you. How are you?"

"Ah, you are English," replies the first man. "It's been a long time since we've had an Englishman here with us. Welcome to our platoon."

"Actually, I'm Canadian, says the other. "I'm from a place called Ontario. I don't suppose you've ever heard of it?"

"Ah, but of course,' is the reply. "The land of the great unwashed. Oh, excusez-moi. No offence.

The other man winces, then offers a weak smile: "Don't worry about it. I've become accustomed to hearing that expression, but I didn't think it would have gotten all the way over here so fast.

"Tell me," says the first man. "Why have you joined us? I myself ran away to escape the guillotine. I killed another man. It was an affair of honor—he was sleeping with my woman—but unfortunately the authorities did not understand."

"'I'm afraid my story isn't quite so dramatic," says the second man. "You see, I was a cabinet minister in the Ontario government—the treasurer actually—and I brought down this budget that the people didn't like. It was all I could do to escape with my life."

The other man clucks his tongue sympathetically: "Yes, we have had many politicians here Tell me, what was so terrible about this budget?"

"Quite frankly, it was a rather good one," says the Canadian. "Good grief, I took the taxes off household pets and tulip bulbs. What more would they want?"

"I can't understand why they would get so upset if you reduced taxes," says the first man 'One would think this would please the people.'

"Well, I didn't actually reduce taxes," says the second man. "I raised the sales tax from five to seven per cent and made this applicable to fuel oil and electricity, but we have to get the money somewhere, don't we?"

The Frenchman stares at his companion in a strange way: "Let me get this straight. You took the tax off household pets and flowers and put it on fuel oil and electricity. But Canada is a cold country. How did you expect them to keep warm in the winter?"

The second man jumps to his feet, a fervent look in his eye: "They were being wasteful," he says. "They wanted their homes heated to 70 degrees in winter and to read in bed until all hours They wanted hot showers EVERY week and a hot meal when they came home at night. They wanted "

With that, the first man jumps from his bunk a look of terror in his eyes, and dashes for the door: "Mon General, mon General, there is a madman in there," he shouts. "Everybody get back behind the barricades.'

Daddies in the delivery room?

More and more expectant parents have been expressing a desire to have the father present in the delivery room during the birth of his child. The Oshawa General Hospital medical and nursing staffs have indicated that they would be prepared to consider this new attitude towards childbirth, but they would like to know the feelings of the general public. What do you think? Drop us a line c/o Box 481, Oshawa and we'll pass on your comments

One landlord in the Oshawa area carried honesty to an extreme recently. A reader informs us that he heard the Oshawa police were looking for him and when he "turned himself in" he was informed that the police department had been holding a box of clothes for him for a week that he had left when he moved out of an apartment. The box actually contained a top layer of discarded clothing and underneath a pile of rotting garbage that he had hoped the landlord would dispose of. This is one case the police didn't solve by sniffing out clues.

We've heard of absent-minded professors and scientists but were surprised to find we have another forgetful type right on the premises. Photo editor Jim Sabyan was invited into the captain's cabin for a wee snort after photographing the first ship into Oshawa Harbor and left his trenchcoat there when he headed back to the office. A ship-to-shore (or is it shore-to-ship) message alerted the captain and he promised to drop it off on his return trip—leaving Oshawa's answer to Karsh without car, home or office keys for four days!

The attendants on the Pickering to Toronto GO train would do well to take a few elocution lessons. One of them mumbles so badly that it's impossible to tell what station you've arrived at and another screams into the microphone at a pitch guaranteed to rupture an eardrum.

The Oshawa Chamber of Commerce has indicated its support for the steps taken by Robert Andras, minister of manpower and immigration, to clamp down on abusers of Unemployment Insurance. In a recent telegram to the minister, they stated: "Our membership compliments you and the recent actions of your department in attempting to correct abuses in the U.I. program. We would support any firm but responsible effort your government makes to recover funds improperly claimed."

Despite the Trudeau government's ability to cling to power by its collective fingernails (with a little help from its "friends") everyone we talk to, on all sides of the House, is putting money on a June or July election.

It's a sign of the times. An official news bulletin put out by the University of Guelph carries a warning about "a bad batch of the hallucinogenic drug MDA." At one time, such publications would have contained nothing more provocative than a notice about the next goldfish-swallowing contest.

When students fall on their faces, Ross Irwin hears about it

When the weather causes ice conditions, Ross Irwin can expect about half a dozen accident reports from the schools of Ontario County.

As assistant to the superintendent of business of the Ontario County Board of Education, it is Irwin's job to oversee the accident claims resulting from students who are injured at school

"If the principal or teacher of a school think an injury is important enough to bring to the board's attention, they make up a report whether the student has an insurance policy or not," he says

"This way the board keeps up with what may result in a law suit which it is protected from by public liability insurance."

Parents also have the option to buy insurance for their children from a private company which sends forms home with students each year

"The chief coverage in this is dental," he says "It covers the child for up to a year including the summer when he is not in school and, in case of death, pays $2,000

Irwin says that most serious accidents happen outside of school and that only about 20 per cent of students in Ontario County are covered by the private insurance company

He says that he personally is in favor of the insurance the company provides because in cases where dental care is needed, a child can still receive reimbursement for treatment up to $500 and for as long as three years after the accident if he is too young to receive treatment before that time

The board's own liability insurance covers theft and damage to student or staff property which might occur during a break in and coverage of students transported on school buses as well as fire and general injuries

During 1970 and 1971, Irwin says out of 25,000 students of Ontario County his office received about 300 claims

"In all my experience with the board he has been with the board since its beginning) I haven't found anyone who has tried to take advantage."

Oh-oh...

Lloyd Oak, like generations of boys before him, is about to find out the hard way that his sense of balance isn't what he thought it was. Ross Irwin handles claims for such accidents for the Ontario County school board.

Paradise is.....

Rossland Park day-care centre

To a mother with pre-school-age children, paradise is having some place to leave her young ones for a few hours each day.

Whether she has decided to continue her career or simply wants some time to herself, she looks for a place where she knows her children will be well looked after

As a resident of Rossland Park, she doesn't have to look far. The Country Club, situated in the heart of Oshawa's finest apartment and townhouse complex, contains a day-care centre where her child receives the type of attention she herself would give

The staff of the Rossland Park day-care centre are community college graduates in the field of child care. They know how to help the youngster fit in with other children and how to stimulate the learning processes that prepare him for the coming school years

The Rossland Park day-care centre offers a half-day and a full-day program with a hot lunch at noon

It is well-equipped with early childhood education materials and now that the warmer weather is at hand, the child also gets the opportunity for plenty of fresh air and exercise in the safe surroundings of Rossland Park

And if mother wishes to pick up a few things for lunch, she can pop into the handy grocery boutique next door

When Rossland Park was first conceived, the idea was not only to give people in the area the finest in rental accommodation, but to include all the little extras that make life a lot more simple

The day-care centre and grocery boutique are only two of these extras and the list is almost endless. Why not join us in paradise?

Paradise is also a Rossland Park

New challenges

Barrand's move from store to city clerk

by garnet cowsill

Politicians come, and politicians go. But a city clerk just keeps plugging away

Since Oshawa City Clerk Roy Barrand first started in municipal work in February 1934, he has worked under more than 30 town and city councils

Barrand's first encounter with municipal work came during the depression when he was working in Kirkland Lake as a store clerk, and later as an office accountant

The township advertised the vacant combined position of bailiff, assistant tax collector and assessor It offered $27 a month more than he was getting as a clerk, so he applied and got the job

"The bailiff work became rather spotty after the backlog was caught up, and it turned out that I was going more assessing so I became assistant assessor," Barrand recalls

He began studying higher accounting and later municipal accounting during the evening, having already completed secretarial courses Then, in 1943, he was appointed deputy clerk-treasurer of the township

Four years after that he applied for and was appointed clerk-treasurer of Renfrew

"I was a secretary to the board of health, the recreation department, the assessment commissioner---I was town manager in all but name, he says

Since then he has come a long way After a two-year stay in Barrie, he moved to Oshawa to become city clerk in 1964

He attributes his continued improvement and advancement in municipal administration to the fact that he was always willing to move to a place where he could improve himself

"The challenge was learning in each municipality I moved to," he says, "I improved and faced new challenges. I took the opportunities anywhere. I wasn't willing to wait for some position to open where I was "

The problem with some municipal employees who have a lot of potential he says, is that they're unwilling to be as mobile as they should be

"I say go as far as you can in one position and then move on."

Barrand's work in Oshawa encompasses everything from handing out dog licences to administering civic elections and being chief returning officer

"This is the most diversified department in city hall," he says "We get calls on matters that aren't even related to what we do because people call us first. I encourage every member of the staff to become acquainted with every aspect of the department

He and his staff of 11 handle, for the most part, all of the city's paper work. If it wasn't for the simple, everyday modern office equipment like electric typewriters and photocopiers, he says he'd need three times the staff

He admits that he doesn't attend all the meetings that he used to now that he has a assistant and deputy clerk, but he still attends every council meeting, and many special and standing committee meetings

The department is able to handle all its duties and numerous responsibilities without any real difficulties, he says

"The only time it really gets hectic is election time," he says. "But even then we don't add staff except on election day itself."

The hard part about elections, he says, is that the staff is forever reviewing election act statutes because "we just can't make mistakes "

The first few months of a newly-elected administration is also a bit tough on the department, he says, because rookie councillors rely on his staff as a resource centre for information and advice on various municipal legalities

The most rigorous part of his duty is trying to keep up with everything happening in the various committees, boards and council, not to mention the changes in law handed down from the province

During the day he reads periodicals on municipal work, all committee, board and council minutes, and every staff report he can lay his hands on

This is so when he is called upon at a meeting to act as a source of information, he will pretty well have the background to current issues

He says the biggest political issue he can remember while in Oshawa was the Creek Valley expressway incident in the fall of 1966 which left the city with a new council and mayor the next election

City Council, under former mayor Lyman Gifford, wanted to create an expressway on the east side of the creek valley from Highway 401 to Taunton Road to take the load of traffic from Simcoe Street

The province was ready to spend vast amounts of money to subsizide the project, but the people opposed the plan, some saying the expressway would come too close to their homes, others saying the valley should be retained as parkland

In any event, Barrand recalls, the election a few months later had the greatest voter turnout in Oshawa's history with 47.7 per cent of the voting population casting ballots

More than 19,900 of the city's 41,801 voters put former mayor Ernie Marks in the lead with twice as many votes as Gifford and current Controller Christine Thomas who also ran for mayor

"I'm not saying that was the hottest issue " Barrand says. "But at least it was one with the most effect on politicians

Peering back into history

Roy Barrand, Oshawa city clerk, has taken it upon himself to set up archives for the artifacts connected with Oshawa's history as a municipality. He uses a magnifying glass to pore over some of the old minute books of former council meetings.

Linda joined staff a week

There was at least one Oshawa high school student who was glad to be back at school Monday morning

Her name is Linda Ouelette and she is a 17-year-old Grade 12 secretarial student at O'Neill Collegiate sho spent the week of April 9 working in the sometimes hectic offices of This Week

"I liked my week at the paper and found it very interesting,' she said. 'I was surprised how the ads are made up and how they're waxed and cut up with every, little bit pasted up.'

Linda is one of about 150 Grade 12 and 13 OCVI students who participated in 'work week' which has been going on each year for 20 years

'The response of the business community has been excellent,' said Glen Walmsley, commercial director at O'Neill

'They have been very cooperative, with the majority taking the attitude that it is a community effort and they have supported this educational project in a practical and worthwhile way,' he said

Linda Oueiette

Linda said she found the people at This Week 'friendly and willing to help someone who doesn't know much about newspapers.'

Smoking is suicidal and should be done in private

Sir

I heartily endorse Rev Simpson's comments in last week's edition of This Week.

We, too, are fed up with smokers abusing the rights of everyone, somehow feeling that their perverted attempt at self-gratification takes precedence over the rights of others to breathe

Surely if we are at all concerned with ecology we should first focus on self-pollution

Smokers must be either ignorant, stupid, or suicidal

Ignorance can be fought by reading the latest report on smoking from the U.S. Surgeon-General's office (e g 85% of lung cancer can be related to smoking, 15% to other air pollutants)

Stupidity seems to reflect the gullibility of the consumer Smoking must represent the absolute triumph of advertising

To convince people that it is sexy or sophisticated to systematically poison oneself and to command payment in addition is an astonishing accomplishment

Combatting attempted suicide is a legal or moral matter. What I object to is the smoker's attempt to take me with him

Restaurants, trains, airplanes, or any public place should be devoid of smoke and non-smokers who are the majority) should demand that they are

If one wants to continue this repulsive weakness, let him do it in private

Condemns pay hike

Sir

I have just read with a great deal of interest that city council members has taken it upon themselves to increase their yearly salaries

It occurred to me that not one of our elected representatives made any mention of voting a whopping big raise in pay in their election campaigns

I wonder why? Could it be that they simply did not have the courage to mention this before they were elected?

I must say their timing is excellent The feeling among council members probably being that by next election time, everyone will have forgotten that aldermen got about an 83% increase and members of board of control about 55%

It certainly must be very gratifying to be in such a fortunate position

Those of us who are employed in private industry are fortunate indeed if we can realize a 10% increase in earnings

However politicians are a very select and fortunate group who are not faced with the same financial problems as private industry

In politics, if you need more money for pay raises or whatever reason, you simply tell the good old tax payer that he must pick up the tab

I wonder how members of council who have their own business, or professional office would feel if one of their employees asked for an 83% increase in pay?

Even though council members try to justify their raise by saying they have been overworked and underpaid for the duties they perform, I suggest that they have gone too far and as a tax payer I resent it

I sincerely hope that all tax payers will let their feelings be known regarding theis matter because Mr & Mrs tax payer it is our hard-earned dollars these people are spending

Letter to the Times

Sir:

The new Times is a step backward into time, the vivid black and white contrast which is hard to read, with blurred pictures that look like the camera moved when it was snapped

The paper now reminds me of a small town rag, most of the front page filled with local happenings and headlines continually fighting City Hall on decisions made by our duly elected representatives

Your paper has been born again and would have been appreciated a generation ago, when they never got off the tractor till late at night so it would not matter what time it was delivered

Even Ann Landers looks thirty years younger

We made a decision years ago, that one paper for our household was all that should be required

Far too often the Times or the other paper went into the garbage without being opened

If my wife had not been a descendant of Oshawa we would not have picked the Times but she wanted to keep track of Oshawanians and descendants who passed away, and their heirs who were adding to the family trees

A copy of this is going to your free competitor who get their paper out at a reasonable time with the latest happenings

If they would keep up to date on births and deaths, we would cancel the Times and change to a daily paper that we would enjoy reading while relaxing after supper

Condemns underage drinking

Sir

The point that I was trying, but largely failed to make, in the article on underage drinking, was that perhaps society is guilty of maintaining a double standard in regards to the issue of underage drinking

It seems rather hypocritical to me that although we justly demand that the full force of the law be applied to pushers of "street drugs", we seem to close our eyes to drinking establishments serving alcoholic beverages to those under 18

In both situations, however, the principle is the same and laws are being broken

I believe that controls have to be put into play to curb underage drinking by the consumer, but that more stringent controls have to be exercised to enforce the laws against supplying liquor to minors

Let's remember that alcohol too is a drug and when abused is capable of causing just as much and in many case more problems than many of the "street drugs"

Incidently, the article also reported that our office received 20 calls a year last year regarding "drug treatment" and two this year This should have read an average of 20 calls a month last year and an average of two a month this year

Thank you for allowing me to clarify my remarks

Sir

Let me congratulate you warmly on your editorial regarding the "Tempo" newspaper that was distributed throughout the area recently

You have said all that should be said on the subject The paper was without the slightest redeeming social value

I am greatly encouraged to find an editor with strong moral integrity in our community Undoubtedly my views are shared by evangelical Christians throughout this area

On the ledge

Sir:

While I heartily approve of enthusiastic get-togethers to celebrate occasions that deserve celebrating, I feel I must protest, in the interest of public safety, the aftermath of what was obviously an enthusiastic get-together held on Friday evening at an Oshawa hotel

There, high on the window ledge on the fourth story of the hotel, were half a dozen empty beer cans and an empty bottle or two of Bright's finest

Sir, even a very mild breeze would have caused same to descend on the head of some innocent passerby thus causing a headache which would no doubt be worse than that suffered perhaps by the consumers of the contents of said empties

In other words, let's all look up occasionally

Gordon Osmond

Pat for Trudeau

Sir

The federal cabinet deserves a pat on the back for calling a halt to the proposed Bell Telephone rate increases

Let us hope the government will now stand firm on its decision and will not allow a rate increase later on this year, when perhaps the pressure to hold the line will be less severe

Oshawa candidates find fault with the budget

They may not have seen eye to eye during the last provincial election but the three former candidates are agreed on one thing—Treasurer John White's budget leaves something to be desired

Even Dr. Charles McIlveen, the successful candidate and White's compatriot as Conservative MPP for Oshawa, finds fault with the budget

"I am concerned about the two per cent raise in sales tax especially as it affects the auto industry," McIlveen says in his weekly column appearing elsewhere in this issue

"It will mean a $50 to $100 increase in the price of new cars. Along with the cost of the new pollution control device program, this will mean prohibitive prices for many possible new car buyers

"I hope we don't kill the goose that laid the golden egg

The Conservative MPP does feel, however that the provincial property tax stabilization plan was a necessary step that will greatly benefit municipalities in the province

Mike Liske, the unsuccessful Liberal candidate and current president of the Oshawa-Whitby Liberal Association, says he feels the budget is a disaster

It shows a callous disregard, for people, he says. "White says he's not imposing taxes on dogs or cats, but who's more important, animals or people? The saddest part is that he was serious when he said that

Liske calls the increased sales tax "regressive" and says it doesn't matter whether a person makes $3,000 or $30,000, the sales tax takes the same bite out of his budget

"And when White says turn down your heat and put on a sweater they've got you again because now you have to go out and buy more sweaters which are more expensive because of the sales tax"

Cliff Pilkey, the defeated New Democratic Party candidate and and Oshawa alderman, says it's ludicrous to tax heat and electricity since these are basic commodities

"The next thing you know they'll be putting a sales tax on food," he says

Pilkey says he has no objection to a sales tax on luxury items, but feels it should be taken off all clothing because this is a basic necessity

He says it is shameful and disappointing that the federal government reduced taxes, "even if it was minimal", and the provincial sales tax increase more than offsets this decrease

He adds tha it appears little or nothing has been done to increase taxes in the corporate area and that the whole thrust of the increase will be on the average or below-average wage earner

"They were rather remiss in not looking at the corporate area for additional income if they thought it was necessary"

Oshawa Mayor James Potticary on the other hand says he sees the overall budget as an attempt to "generally spread the tax load."

HE says the added provincial assistance to municipal ties will help stabilize the residential tax rate. He adds that while he is only speculating, he feels this year's tax rate may only increase by two mills

Candystripers

The girls in pink and white celebrate 10 years

Happy Birthday Candystripers of Oshawa General Hospital!

April marks the 10th birthday of the organization of girls from 15 to 19 who donate their time to patients at the hospital

'The girls have to be at least 15 years of age and in high school to become a Candystriper and we hope they are interested in a career in medicine,' says Mrs Georges Bates, clerical assistant of the Candystriper staff

Planning for a nursing career after high school, Susan Glover is 16 and has been a Candystriper for almost one year

'I like helping peopole and being a Candystriper also helps me to know if becoming a nurse is really what I want to do,' she says

With more than 1,850 Candystripers helping around OGH since 1963, 20 per cent of these girls have gone on to make medicine their career

Aside from nursing lab technolgy and pharmacy jobs, Mrs. Bates says that over the 10 year period she has seen more girls enter the field of medicine to become doctors

'Making beds is one of their first chores,' she says. 'They also help patients make out menus take them to xray, help them at admitting and of course the Candystripers are very popular on the children's ward.'

There are now about 100 active Candystripers at the hospital with 158 girls on the waiting list Their hours of service are from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. after school Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday

'We get requests for information on our Candystriper program from hospitals all over Canada,' says Mrs. Bates 'We were one of the first hospitals in the country to start the program.'

YOU DON'T BUY GLASSES—
YOU BUY VISION!

It is very important to put things in their proper perspective as does the headline of this message. And we feel that this type of analogy is very well suited to choosing the pharmacy that will supply your family with their medicines, sickroom supplies and health-aids

We hope you will select us as your personal family pharmacy so that we can prove to you that you don't just buy prescriptions—you buy a complete service that is dedicated to better health for you and your family

"A great many people have chosen us to be their personal family pharmacy. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty, and will do all we ethically can to live up to it. We welcome requests for delivery service".

Area police..

Suicide is a sickness, not a crime

By Garnet Cowsill
Staff Writer

At one time, England had a unique way of dealing with people who attempted suicide—they were hanged!

Up until July 15, 1972, area police could arrest people for the same "offence", and the courts would decide either a penalty or medical help

Now, because of law reform Bill C-2, the section relating to attempted suicide victims has been removed from the Criminal Code

So what if a policeman is walking down the street and he sees a person with a gun to his head?

Well, the Ontario Mental Health Act, (sections 9 and 10) provides that a peace officer or a citizen may take a person in the act of committing suicide into custody for his own safety

If necessary, a peace officer can use force in attempting to detain the person

"Actually," says Oshawa Police Detective Trevor McCagherty, "even though attempted suicides could result in a summary conviction of a $500 fine or six months in jail, or both before the reform, police arrested attempt suicide cases and charged them only as a means to get them medical care."

Most of the cases he knew of that were tried, he says, usually ended up as suspended sentences and a court direction for psychiatric treatment or observation

In the last three years, McCagherty says Oshawa police investigated an average of 11 suicides a year. He says the statistics are fairly consistent for any year

In 1971, Oshawa police investigated 97 attempted suicides, while in 1972 they investigated only

A handful of pills is often the method used to commit suicide, an act which is a crime, says an area psychiatrist.

41. McCagherty says only half the number of attempts were investigated in 1972 compared with 1971 because the law reform bill released police from investigations of this nature midway through the year

In Ajax, police investigated three suicides and five attempted suicides in 1971, and one suicide and three attempted suicides in 1972

Depty Police Chief Bill Shaw says he thinks there were more attempts, but they were "feeble" and thus not reported or considered as attempts

One area police chief says a victim of suicide is presumed innocent just as if he were alive and before the courts until a thorough police investigation proves otherwise

He also says that newspaper articles about anything to do with suicide are "a big mistake"

"Other people read about it and decide to do it," he says. "It has been proven in the United States that if there is a latent desire there to commit suicide, it is often triggered by reading or hearing about it."

He says as far as a police officer is concerned there is no such thing as a "probable suicide". It is either a proven suicide or an accidental death

In some cases, he adds, a suicide can be a "tricky" thing to investigate

The implications behind suicide, he says are that although outwardly it appears to be suicide, it might also be murder

At the same time, he says, it could appear to be suicide, but really be an accidental death

"We could be costing the family its insurance money because of police opinion," he says. "So it has to be proven. Unless there is some absolute proof, we call it accidental"

The chief says there are several reasons for suicide including a damaged reputation, financial hardships and depression. Police, he maintains, must take a "good hard look" at anything resembling apparent suicide

"A bulk of suicide cases are committed with cars," he says. "We can't prove they're suicides so they're written off as motor vehicle accidents"

"Then there's the overdosed victim who was drunk at the time of death Did he drink and take an overdose by accident, or did he get drunk to get enough nerve to take an overdose?"

Because of all the variables involved with suicides, the police chief would not release statistics on the matter to This Week

"I really don't think statistics on suicide are at all valid," he says

"Down by the old..."

COMBINATION INSECT & DISEASE PRODUCTS
pop-in® Spray Packets
Here's a new packaging principle developed for your gardening convenience. Combination insecticides/fungicides in pre-measured water soluble packets. No measuring — no mess. Just drop a packet into sprayer tank to make up one gallon of spray. The water dissolves the film and releases the wettable powder insecticides and fungicides which mix easily. For use with all types of garden sprayers, 'pop-in' Spray Packets are available in two formulations.
One combines two well-proven insecticides — Carbaryl and Malathion — with Captan, a popular, general purpose fungicide. Together, these ingredients make a highly effective fruit tree spray. Use it to control a wide range of insects and diseases on apples, pears, peaches, apricots, cherries, plums, grapes and strawberries.
The other 'pop-in' spray is formulated specially for roses and flowers. It blends Carbaryl and Malathion with Folpet — to control insects and fungus diseases on roses, flowers and shrubs.

Chronicles of Ontariopolis

And it came to pass in the second week of the fourth month of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy three that the servant of the High and Mighty William of Ont, which servant was White, arose in the chamber of the Temple of Ont which stood on the mountain of Qupee in the Land of Tor.

And before him were gathered many of the elders of the lands and cities of Ont, who spoke before the throne of the H and M William, and among them there were Charles the Physician of the Land of Osh and Bill of Ont, who spoke before the throne of the H and M for the Pickets and the Jax and the Whittites and all those that were afar off.

Now the servant who was White arose and spoke saying, behold, we, the servants of the H and M William have gathered together and we have found it in our hearts to be merciful unto all lovers of canines and felines and the birds of the sky who are in cages

Thus did the servant who was White speak unto the elders of the lands and cities of Ont, and some there were who replied saying, behold he is stringing us a small fish that is red and others there were who spoke saying here endeth the mercy of the servant who is White.

Moreover did the servant who was White speak, saying behold your warmth within your tents will cost you more but you will not despair, for behold, I bring you tidings of warm sweaters and scarfs which you will wrap around yourselves within your tents, and which will keep you safe from frostbite

And as he thus spoke unto the elders he revealed that by wearing sweaters and showing mercy unto the thousands who love puppies and guppies, the Holy Mountain of Qupee would stand steadfast on its foundations and it would grow and prosper and be unto the people of the lands of Ont like unto a shrine.

And among the Oshites and the Whittites and the Romans and the Jax and Pickets and all those that were afar off there were those who spoke saying, behold, let us gather together and knit unto ourselves one giant sweater which will encompass the entire mountain of Qupee and let us make it with wool that is woolly and let us present it unto the H and M Bill and his servant who is White, to keep warm in the dark days of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy five

Amen.

Project Noah

Got $50,000 to spare ? Buy a Chinese panda

Students at Glen Street School in Oshawa have raised money for another addition to the new Metro Toronto zoo

As a school project, the 400 students sold T-shirts sporting the name 'Project Possum', donated money and held a paper drive to raise the $150 needed to buy an Australian brush-tailed possum.

The Glen Street project is part of an area-wide drive by students to buy animals for the new zoo under the project name 'Noah'. As part of their project, the students in all grades studied the animal and plant life of Australia, especially the brush-tailed possum itself.

Project Noah takes in 38 schools in Ontario County and is, says Lloyd White of the Ontario County Board of Education, done on a strictly volunteer basis by the students.

So far, he says, eight schools have completed their projects raising $5,439, and some of these are continuing to raise funds for other purchases.

Of the 38 schools involved, the total commitment in dollars for the purchase of animals, says White, is $13,254 even though some school haven't yet picked an animal but are working to raise funds.

Like the brush-tail possum, many of the animals are from all areas of the globe, including such exotic specimens as the hippopotamus bought by Lord Elgin School in Ajax, two yellow mongooses, two road-runners, a chinese water deer and assorted monkeys

Even with the number of animals being purchased by the students, White says there are hundreds still needed by the zoo.

The hippo bought by the Ajax school cost $1,200, he says, and there are some animals, like the giant panda from China valued at $50,000 Students have until the end of this year to complete their projects

Asha Gosein, Darryl Dumais and Stephen Runciman (l-r) helped raise $150 for a brush-tail possum

Doctors in the house

Yes, Virginia, there is a Charlie McIlveen

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Morton Shulman, the controversial NDP member of the legislature, apparently took time off from reading The Happy Hooker recently to read some comments made about him in This Week by Oshawa MPP Dr. Charles McIlveen. The following is an excerpt from Hansard in which Dr. Shulman retorted.

Dr. Shulman: You will recall that when I began my speech in the Legislature that fateful night the Conservative front bench was surprisingly full. Here I am doing very well. I have got five on the front bench. It was different that night. The reason they were there was they all knew what was coming and they had come in to administer the coup

You don't have to take my word for it, because I have a statement here from a man by the name of Charlie McIlveen. Most of the hon. members probably don't know who Charlie McIlveen is: I must admit I didn't know who he was until just a few days ago. I was very surprised to learn he is one of the members of this Legislature. In fact, I am told he is the Conservative member for Oshawa.

Mr. W. Hodgson: The member for High Park is not here often enough to get acquainted. He is just here for the question period

Mr. Shulman: Well, he is not here. I am sorry he is not here and I am sorry most of you don't know who he is. Perhaps, as the years roll by and his face becomes more familiar, we will learn who he is.

Let me read this statement from Charlie McIlveen, who is apparently the member for Oshawa. I quote from Charlie McIlveen

Mr. Breithaupt: As reported

Mr. Foulds: Dr. Charles

Mr. Shulman: Oh, no; by Dr. Charlie McIlveen!

Hon. Mr. Kerr: Who gives the race reports.

Mr. Shulman: Not as reported. This is by Charlie McIlveen, written by Charlie McIlveen, not reported as having been said by Charlie McIlveen. Charlie McIlveen said—I thank the member for Kitchener

When he opened his speech I thought something was up because all members of the Justice policy field were in attendance. There were the hon. George Kerr, the Provincial Secretary for Justice; the hon. Dalton Bales, the Attorney General; the hon. John Yaremko, the Solicitor General; the hon. Syl Apps, Minister of Correctional Services. This alone is unusual

Mr. Foulds: With friends like that in the rump you don't need enemies.

Mr. Shulman: To continue

This alone is unusual But with 10 other cabinet ministers also in attendance, it indicated they thought Morty had an unusual speech prepared.

Hon. Mr. Stewart: He always does

Mr. Shulman: Well, thank you, Charlie McIlveen. He has finally made something that can be reported in Hansard.

Hon. Mr. Kerr: Charlie who?

Mr. Shulman: The Provincial Secretary for Justice asked what his name is. Charlie McIlveen, he is one of his party's backbenchers.

Mr. Foulds: His black backbenchers.

Mr. Shulman: He will be very black after today. One of the minister's black backbenchers, yes. He is the member for Oshawa. He sits over there somewhere, I think

Mr. Foulds: In the rump.

Mr. Shulman: In the rump.

Mr. W. Hodgson: The member for High Park never knows. He is not in here often enough

Mr. MacDonald: The Provincial Secretary for Justice doesn't even know him He is checking on the name

Mr. Shulman: The Provincial Secretary for Justice is searching to see if there really is a Charlie McIlveen. I assure the minister that there is a Charlie McIlveen

Mr. Foulds: He is larger than life. They call him doctor. It is not a matter of policy, though

An hon. member: You can just see the close links between the cabinet and the backbenchers

Hon. Mr. Kerr: Oh. McIlveen!

Interjections by hon. members

Mr. Foulds: I tell you the minister isn't really informing those fellows about what is going on in the backbenches

Mr. Shulman: I think perhaps I should inform the Provincial Secretary for Justice of some of the other backbenchers who apparently belong to the party. I know the rump is a long way over here, but there are a few of them over here who are worthy of note.

Mr. Foulds: Take a few minutes and introduce them to the Provincial Secretary for Justice That is the member for Parry Sound (Mr. Maeck) sitting at the end of the front row. The member for Beaches-Woodbine (Mr. Wardle) is in the back row

Mr. L. Maeck (Parry Sound): The member for Port Arthur will get his chance to speak later

Mr. Shulman: I confess I don't put great store in what Charlie McIlveen might say, but I think it's worthy of note that if it was even obvious to the Conservative backbenchers that the cabinet knew what was coming, it probably was true

Charlie McIlveen is alive and well and living in Oshawa. He commutes to Queen's Park in his Opel sports car and of late has been getting under the skin of another 'flying doctor, Morton Shulman.

Mounties BUG Broadbent

The RCMP may be violating some basic rights of Canadians, charges OshawaWhitby MP Ed Broadbent.

The charge revolves around a speech given by RCMP Assistant Commissioner H.C. Draper in Ottawa last week to a closed session of the Canadian Society for Industrial Security.

Broadbent says he heard the commissioner would be speaking on the 'subversive element in trade unions' and so he attended the function but was refused admittance.

'They asked for my identification and I told them I was an MP, he says. 'A message was brought to Draper but he said no MP could be permitted. To say the least I was highly disturbed.'

In the House, Broadbent questioned the RCMP security branch investigating one section of society and then turning that information over to another group in society.

He asked Solicitor-General Warren Allmand to release the text of Draper's speech, The Threat From Subversive Elements, to the House but Allmand refused to on the groundsthe secret speech should remain so 'in the interest of Canadian security.'

In an interview with reporters, Allmand said many of the industry representatives at the conference where the speech was made carry out defence contracts and other types of production that involves security matters and 'it is in our interest that these industries are secure.'

He later conceded that only a small number of the people attending the conference had anything to do with defence contracts

Broadbent says there were hundreds of people in the room to hear the speech, and many had absolutely nothing to do with defence

'There were representatives from T. Eaton Company, Bell Telephone and International Harvester,' he says. 'What have they to do with defence contracts?'

He says he does not know what was in the speech, but some of it could have 'libelous and misstatements' passed on secretly to industrial representatives.

'We have normal laws for the protection of a citizen against libel,' he says. 'I think these laws are being flaunted by the RCMP and the government which permits it.'

He says he doesn't know which groups were mentioned, but it could be that if the information was made public it could be libelous, and therefore it should not even be said in private sessions

'The point is, any group of citizens should have their rights protected and it disturbs me that the police are acting this way,' he says. 'I am not questioning the necessity for the security branch of the RCMP.

He says he will ask that not only Allmand, but Draper appear before a House committee and describe the activities of the group referred to in the speech and the purpose of giving the information to businessmen.

'If it is just a matter of the police telling these people how to guard against industrial sabotage, then it's an entirely different question, one that is legitimate.'

If, however, the police are indeed releasing information about 'insurrection movements' that the courts should be dealing with, he says, then it is comparable to the U.S. Watergate affair, the alleged government wire tapping of opposition campaign headquarters.

Ed Broadbent MP

Toronto is not the centre of the universe says Liberal head

Oshawa-Whitby Liberals want more parks and arenas

At the Ontario Liberal Convention in Ottawa last weekend, the local Liberal Association sponsored an adopted policy motion that would review and revise the provincial-municipal grant structure if a Liberal government is elected to Queen's Park

Municipalities currently do not have the revenues to do what is wanted by the people, says association president and Oshawa alderman Mike Lisko

The province is keeping rural and urban municipalities under its thumb by the grant system," says Lisko, who sponsored the motion

There are so many strings attached to grants now "

In programs like Oshawa's proposed east-end arena, Lisko says the city should have the financial ability to plan future land use

He maintains a municipality cannot plan any recreation approach with a millrate system and needs provincial subsidy.

'There should be arrangements made so municipalities can plan programs—not by what someone at Queen's Park says—but by what municipal representatives were elected by the people to do," he says

This does not mean, he says, that the province should not have any say or restraints in the matter, but there should be "reasonable limits and grants on a proportionate basis."

"It seems that Toronto and the larger urban centres are always getting the goodies," Lisko says. "Just as we have areas of disparity in the country, there is also regional disparity in Ontario and Toronto is not the centre of the universe "

Sir

In November, 1971, my husband and I ordered a set of living room drapes and imported French sheers from Sophy's Interior Boutique, 153 Simcoe St. S Oshawa

We paid $200 for the drapes and were to pay the remainder of the $315 total when the sheers were delivered. The owner of the boutique put the drapes up herself one night just before Christmas that year. It was dark and of course we couldn't see very well, but a few days later I noticed a greasy spot on the drapes and a flaw in the material

I tried to contact Sophy several times but she was either busy or out of the store

Finally she came to my house during the summer of 1972 and admitted there was a flaw in the drapes and that they could be exchanged. She asked us if we could wait until the sheers arrived from France

By September, there were still no drapes or sheers I phoned her continuously until she had her phone disconnected

Then, in November of 1972 I laid a formal complaint with the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce and they reported back that Sophy had said I complained too late about the drapes and nothing could be done. They said it was out of their hands

The sheers never did arrive and now I have drapes with flaws which are starting to fade, even though they weren't supposed to. Can you do anything?

Sophy's Interior Boutique does not, in fact, have a listed telephone number so a reporter from This Week twice went down to the Simcoe Street shop during business hours but the store was not open. But, we'll keep trying. More on this later.

Sir:

I would like to know why, city aldermen, city councilmen, and the Mayor can give themselves $2,500 and $3000 raises and not have to answer to anyone, and yet when a disabled woman gets a raise in her Government Disability Pension, she has to be cut off her $20. supplement from the City, because she is allowed so much for rent and food etc

This woman, Mrs Ward, is widowed, aged 58, with a paralyzed right arm, partially paralyzed right leg, and also lost her speech.

She was getting prior to Jan. 1/73, $130. a month disability, plus $20. supplement, from the city. Out of this she pays $70 a month rent, about $70 for groceries, $5.67 phone, and about $8. a month for drugs.

As of Jan. 1/73 her pension was raised to $150. a month, so the city cut her off her $20. supplement, and gave her a card to cover her drugs

Upon being cut off her supplement, I (her daughter) got in touch with Mr. Fountain, who referred me to Mr. Daney Getting nowhere with either, I went to Dr. McIlveen M.P.P., who got in touch with Mr Bailey, Regional administrator, who got in touch with the city.

The City still felt it could not do anymore than it already was. Then I was referred to the Mayor, who called in Mr. Dancey.

After much discussion, it was decided that they could afford to give Mrs. Ward a supplement of $5. a month. So now Mrs Ward gets a total of $155. a month, and her drugs paid for.

Now I ask you, Mr. Mayor and City Council, would each of you be able to live on $155. a month. I don't think so, if you have to have a $2300 00 and $3000 00 raise in pay

As for Mr. Bruce McArthur, working 35 hrs a week, and not getting the minimum wage I would say that $3.10 per hour is a pretty good pay, for a second job.

Some men don't get that for their only job, and they have to provide for their families too.

Mrs. R. Misztak
Oshawa

This Week took Mrs. Ward's case to Herb Cheseborough, city social services department director, and asked if there was any way the lady might receive more money

Cheseborough pointed out that Mrs. Ward is getting "more than she would from welfare or old age pension and the maximum the provincial government would allow."

He said that if Mrs. Ward's daughter wanted to appeal her case for her at the provincial level, she "has a perfect right to".

He suggested we contact Mrs. Mary Jacula at the provincial community and social services department who said Mrs. Ward is "lucky" to be getting what she is and that some people only get $105 or $115.

"She's getting the maximum for a single person," Mrs. Jacula said. "She could write to Queen's Park and ask for a review, but appealing would do not good. They'd only send me out to say there is nothing we can do because we're paying her the maximum."

Mrs. Jacula said that Mrs. Ward is getting her rent paid, her groceries free and all her prescription drugs free up to $20 a month.

She added that Mrs. Ward was not allowed to have a phone, which her daughter mentions in the letter.

We find this hard to accept since Mrs. Ward is an invalid and couldn't contact anyone if she became ill by walking next door to use the neighbors telephone.

Do you feel you have reached a dead end in your attempts to make a business, government department or other organization see your side of a problem? Why not contact This Week and let us look into the matter for you?

Christians can get angry but God will punish

Be angry and sin not'

That's what the Bible tells me to do This seems to indicate that I can get really upset about something but God will hand out the punishment

There are a lot of things to get upset about today whether you claim to be a Christian or not

Filth on the radio and T V. and in newspapers (eg. Tempo) has upset a lot of us and because of the modern times we are supposed to accept these things but forget the increase in rape, criminal sex acts, veneral disease and on the list goes

It is, I know, my responsibility as a parent to teach by word and example, the right things to my children, and I do

But what about all those parents that don't take time to teach their offspring and because of the way they live, the kids say: "You do it why can't I?

I know that kids are aware of what the human body looks like but the attitude towards sex is warped when it is treated as something to be used to sell newspapers or to make money in any way

God gave each of us a desire to love and to be loved and when it is used properly there is nothing in this world more beautiful God has had to destroy civilizations before because of this very thing and the Bible says He'll do it again, and Sodom and Gommora is just one example

What angers me more than anything is the stupidity of drivers who drink before going on the road A mom and dad are mourning the loss of their three-year-old girl because of an impaired driver, who ran her down two weeks ago in Toronto

A mother with a large family is without her husband because of a drunken brawl with a man they had befriended. The list is endless of grief caused by alcohol, which is still man's worst enemy

The law is partly responsible because they let people away with a light sentence for committing murder behind the wheel.

Lawyers feeling obligated to argue that their client needs his licence to make a living should argue for those parents who needed that little girl who brought happiness to their home

Wine is a mocker-strong drink is raging and whoever is deceived with it, is not wise—and the Bible has sure been proven true many times over

It's your business if you want to drink but it sure becomes mine when you endanger the lives of those I love by driving when you are under the influence of alcohol

Put yourself in the other person's shoes. How would you feel if I killed your child because of driving while under the influence of alcohol? You'd hate me for life and kill me if you could'

It's time we started to think and act like mature people—if you are going to make a fool of yourself don't do it at someone else's expense. This applies to drugs as well as alcohol

Let's consider for a moment why people drink, take drugs, etc. Inside each person is a desire for peace and happiness and when people are lonely, fearful or depressed they reach for bottle or the pills

I know personally those who tried all those things that big world has to offer. They were still empty although they had all they wanted—money, friends, education, success etc. but an emptiness still prevailed. But they asked Christ for forgiveness and help and received both and now without those "kicks" they are happy with Christ.

Uni Church moderator takes global view

The new Moderator of The United Church of Canada feels as if he has a new pastoral charge

The Right Reverend N Bruce McLeod is a parish minister who believes that the ministry is the greatest job in the world and the local church is the best place to be a minister

As Moderator, he hopes to "put a face on the institution" for the Church's 4,400 congregations and 2,250,000 people

The 43-year-old McLeod, elected by the Church's 25th General Council at Saskatoon last August, is the youngest man ever to hold the Church's highest office

He also is the first to have been born into the United Church, rather than one of the denominations from which it was created in 1925

A Moderator's chief formal function during his two-year term is presiding over meetings of the Council, its Executive and its Sub-Executive. Beyond that, the job is what he makes it And McLeod has several aims for his term.

First, he thinks the Moderator ought to embody "a positive and optimistic word for the Church".

"There are some cracks in the institution he says I want to open up those cracks enough to let in some light."

New things are happening all over the Church; he wants to encourage them.

"It's a sign of hope that our traditional ways of doing things are failing"

Second, he wants the United Church to talk not just to other Christians but to people of other religions

"Church union should be done and done quickly It's a parochial, in-the-family discussion. In the context of today's global village we need to be talking not just with Anglicans, but with Catholics, with Baptists, with Quakers, and even further, with Muslims."

He also says it's a priority to "restore free and frank relations" with Jewish people

Finally, he wants to convey "a sense of God's spirit not being in the past, but alive and active in the world".

He says: "What distinguishes the believer from the unbeliever is the conviction that this is not an empty world, but is alive with a presence that was here before we got here, is present with us, and is in the future, dragging the whole world into the warmth and harmony for which it was made."

One of three children of W. Norman McLeod former head of Moore Corporation and for many years chairman of the national United Church's Board of Finance, he was educated at Upper Canada College and Trinity College of the University of Toronto

On graduation from theology at Emmanuel College, Toronto, in 1953, he won a post-graduate fellowship and earned a doctorate in theology at Union Seminary, New York.

He has served four Ontario charges, Victoria Harbor, Lorne Park, Westdale in Hamilton and now Bloor Street in Toronto

In 1968, he was runner-up in the moderatorial election to Dr Robert McClure, the United Church's first layman Moderator who is the senior elder in McLeod's present congregation

McLeod lives in Toronto with his wife Jewel, and three daughters, Jeanette, Laura and Margaret. He spends summers at the family's Lake Joseph cottage and on the nearby golf course where he shoots about 90

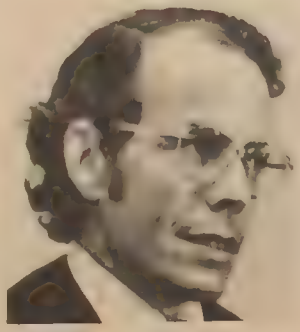
In addition to ministering to the 1,000-member Bloor Street congregation, McLeod is active in a neighborhood interchurch council and Toronto Presbytery

He is chairman of the national committee on church vocations and served on other committees, a member of the central committee of the Canadian Council of Churches, and of the Senate of Victoria University

He contributes regularly to The United Church Observer and to theological journals

In his free time, McLeod has made himself on of the most knowledgeable men in the Church on the arts Every year for 20 years he has spent a week in New York, seeing as many as 11 of the newest plays

He often takes a group from his congregation to the theatre in Toronto and then back to his house later for coffee with some of the cast or the playwright.



Right Rev. N. Bruce McLeod

In our last article on this subject we tried to point out that faith is more than simply a matter of sincerity of belief Biblical faith is based not on our sincerity or earnestness but on whether God has spoken This can be seen from Romans 10 17 where we read 'So then, faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God The apostle Paul is pointing out here that there can be no faith apart from God having spoken The quality or sincerity of our faith will not make what God has said one bit truer but it will give us greater peace of mind if we believe what He has said

When the Israelites were told by God to walk out in the midst of those two great walls of water there was, no doubt, a great deal of "fear and trembling" Nevertheless, those who crossed fearing and trembling' arrived at the other side just as dry as those whose minds were at perfect peace However those who 'feared and trembled' would not have the peace and contentment of heart of their fellows We see therefore that it was not their great faith that gave them safe passage through the Red Sea but the faithfulness of their great God

Hebrews 11 1 defines faith in these words, Faith is the substance of things hoped for the evidence of things not seen' The definition of faith we'll greatly assist us provided we have a proper understanding of the word 'substance The word itself is made up of two parts, 'sub' and 'stance' Sub means under as in submarine submit subject etc while stance means "to stand" Together they mean 'to stand under Faith then, is that which stands under (foundation?) the things hoped for

In commenting on this passage and one word 'substance Moulton and Milligan's Vocabulary of The New Testament has this to say it (substance) stands for the whole body of documents bearing on the ownership of a person's property deposited in the archives and forming the evidence of ownership They go on to say the central idea is of something that underlies visible conditions and guarantees future possession And as this is the essential meaning in Heb 11 1 we venture to suggest the translation," Faith is the Title deed of things hoped for

The word substance therefore carries with it the idea of ownership vouchsafe by the possession of 'title deeds' as proof of that ownership Anyone who has at anytime owned a piece of property knows that their proof of ownership rest in the "title deed" which they possess Faith then, is our "title deed' (proof of ownership) of the things hoped for the evidence of things not seen

It should be clear that if faith is our "title deed" then faith must be more than a sincere belief No one has yet come into possession of a piece of property simply because of a sincere belief in that property or a earnest desire for the property There is only one means of possessing the property and that is through the property being deeded to you and thus coming into possession of the "title deeds." Since God is the Author of all future hopes and promises "title deed" can only be received from Him

White's budget is for the birds says Broadbent

Provincial Treasurer John White's budget is for the birds—and other animals

At least, that's the way Oshawa-Whitby MP Ed Broadbent feels. The federal member, who said he spoke as an Ontario resident, said

"It is a lovely budget for animals, but it's too bad we humans were neglected."

The MP termed the budget "regressive", especially the part which will add millions to the provincial coffers by raising sales tax by two per cent to seven per cent

"The significance there is even though it is raised by two per cent, the actual raise is 40 per cent of what it was," he said. "This means the province hopes to increase its revenue by 40 per cent."

Because manufacturers will have to raise their commodity prices to offset the increase in sales tax, Broadbent said, it is reasonable to assume that consumer prices in Ontario will rise - and supplement the burden of the sales tax to the people

The "excuse" used to tax energies (to help conserve them) is poor, he said

"When Mr. White says 'put on a sweater to save money on fuel', he may soon add 'put on a coat

But he's nice to animals anyway."

According to the budget, people will be able to save money if they turn off their furnace in the winter and stop buying essentials, he said

Not being a provincial politician, Broadbent said he does not question the government's need for additional revenue

"It would have been more equitable to raise the personal income tax of those in the $15,000 and over income bracket by about one per cent, and perhaps raise the corporate tax by the same"

He said when the federal government brought down its budget, Finance Minister John Turner expressed the hope to the provinces that the overall tax reductions would be passed on to the people

It seems Ontario has ignored the hope, he said, adding that Ottawa can do nothing about provincial budgets

Pilkey and Lisko spearhead budget opposition

Add Oshawa city council to the list of the provincial budget opponents

At its meeting Monday, council passed a resolution which will protest to Queen's Park the increased sales tax and specifically the tax on energies proposed in the recently released budget

Ald. Cliff Pilkey, former NDP Oshawa MPP and unsuccessful candidate in the last provincial election presented the motion. It was seconded by Ald. Mike Lisko, unsuccessful Liberal candidate in the same election.

Pilkey, in his debate on the motion, said he did not think the budget tax increases were necessary and termed it "a Robin Hood budget that will affect every worker in the city."

"The tax increases were absolutely unnecessary," he said "They tax the basic needs of the people—both rich and poor alike. I think it's regressive and if this sounds like a political speech, it is."

Lisko said he does not happen to be of the same political persuasion as Pilkey or the provincial government, but he strongly supported the motion

When the mayor chided both Pilkey and Lisko for making "political speeches" and threatened to call them out of order, Lisko replied

Don't give me any of that no politics stuff this is a political forum right here and it's time we stood up to the province and told it we're not happy with their policies

Con John McLaughlin Oshawa Conservative Association president was the only councillor to oppose the motion

$16 million hospital costs $74.12 per day

Almost $16 million

That's what the community has invested in the Oshawa General Hospital, according to the annual report of Treasurer Gordon Miles, presented to the annual meeting of the hospital board this week The exact amount, according to Miles is $15,900,358

The hospital now has 539 beds and a full-time staff of 1106, plus 135 part-timers

During 1972, there were 24,342 operations performed at the hospital and 2,116 babies were born

And what about the per patient day cost? It went up by $14 95 in just one year, from $59 17 in 1971 to $74 12 in 1972

The hospital now has 177 doctors who have hospital privileges and 38 dentists

In his annual report, President S. E. Lovell said the recently announced restriction on hospital beds and operating budgets will affect all hospitals. He said Oshawa General has been told by the province that 43 of its 704 beds capacity will not be opened this year He said no additional money is going to be available for new departments or new services during 1973

Oshawa General received $8,683 in bequests

Allan Pilkey:

Capital budget holds line but real crunch is yet to come

by garnet cowsill

The capital budget's resulting .1 mill increase will mean about 85 cents to each taxbill says Con Allan Pilkey

I don't think this budget will have any greater impact (on the taxpayer) than the 1972 budget,' Pilkey, who presented the budget on behalf of the board of control at a special council meeting Thursday, says

The total budget amounted to $5,948,000 after council slashed and added, making the ratified total only $23,000 more than what the board originally proposed

Pilkey terms the budget 'balanced' and says this is the first timesince he has been on council that it has not been significantly more than the previous year s

'The major amount went into the public works department (about 70 per cent of the total)' he says, 'but that is our largest department with major functions, the most people and the most work. So I think it is balanced

The budget provides for basic work in the city, including sewers road widening and extensions, the upgrading of parkland and its acquisition, a new pool and ice pad arena in the east end, and services for future industrial development

I think we have apportioned moneys over most of the areas the city has control over,' he says

The initial budget Pilkey says, is $3.05 million compared with the 1972 budget of $3.4 million of $400,000 less than last year's debenture budget

However, he adds, the board decided to supplement the budget with $657,000 for the FederalProvincial Winter Works capital fund. This is where the increase over last year's budget is indicated

With the $400,000 saved from last year the addition of the winter works funds raised the budget total by about $300 000 or 1 mill

We get a 25 per cent grant on these things

Pilkey says, 'so the board thought it best to accelerate some of the programs. It will provide employment for the people

This is the first year that the board of control has presented the budget to council instead of the treasury department and Pilkey says he was pleased to see the meeting 'come off so well with only the minute deviation' of $23 000

The two major opponents to budget recommendations from the board were Ald Gordon Attersley and Ald. Mike Breaugh

Attersley said at the meeting he was 'disappointed and discouraged with the budget as presented' because he could not see a balance when 70 per cent of the funds went to the public works department

He said he wanted to see funds provided for the south Oshawa library building fund

Breaugh argued that the roads allotment was not rational because some of the projects, which included widening and extensions, were not needed

Motions by him to delete some of the projects from the budget were defeated

Ald. George Drynan complained that board of control had spent very little on the fire department when a recommendation for a 100foot aerial ladder truck from both the fire chief and the Fire Marshall's office was made

He argued that the city had nothing better than 'seven storey fire protection' and said if the truck was not included in the budget, the city would fall behind in fire protection

He moved a $76,000 expenditure for the truck be added to the budget and was defeated

The only deletion from the budget was a proposed $27,000 expenditure for demolition of the former police building. Councillors decided it was not a priority item and would cost the city nothing if the building was left standing for another year

The only additional expenditure agreed upon was a $50,000 parkland acquisition added to the Nonquon Road North Oshawa Park.

One of the highlights of the budget was an $800,000 expenditure for a single ice pad (which will be added to at a future date) and swimming pool recreation complex in the Harmony Road South area

Since Oshawa will enter regional government next year, this is the last budget the city will bring down as an autonomous unit.

Pilkey says as far as he is concerned, the tax line has been held in the debenture issue and capital budget

But, he warns, 'the real crunch is yet to come' when the city brings down its current budget.

Crankcase Ventilation was standard equipment on the engine of every 1927 Chevrolet.
It was a Canadian invention that helped engines last a lot longer.

The 1973 Chevrolet Impala.

Standard equipment includes Positive Crankcase Ventilation, just part of the most advanced emission control system in Chevrolet history.

And Impala also gives you automatic transmission, power steering, power front disc brakes, protective side-guard door beams and an impact absorbing bumper as standard equipment. Because we never forget how much you trust Chevrolet.

after hours

Barbershop harmony was a welcome relief from blaring rock bands

Found . . . living, breathing Art

This past Saturday evening this writer was entertained and I mean truly entertained at Oshawa Civic Auditorium, and not by the usual rock group or smashing country music show, but by the human voice

The occasion was "Horseless Carriage Days" presented by S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. Ontario District convention. The beautiful sound of the human voice filled the air

After a long association with various aspects of showbusiness and musicians, I had become accustomed to being entertained by vast amounts of expensive instruments and amplifiers

I must admit that I found the blending of four human voices alone, to be most captivating. The Saturday show, or contest as it was called, had seven quartets in the finals the ultimate winners were The Canadian Heritage and The Bytown Ringers

I am in no position to be a critic of this unique art form, the barbershop quartet, but I did not envy the job of the team of judges in picking winners

The sheer joy of the human voice raised in harmony left me speechless and those who know me will, will find that very hard to believe

Don't miss your next chance for an evening of barbershop quartet singing—whenever this may occur. The experience will not only please your ear, but will also do your heart and soul a world of good

S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. (Oshawa Chapter), thank you

At the Georgian Hotel this past week, it was the Gary Hooper show Hooper is a well known figure in country music circles across Canada, known not only as a singer but as a song writer

The act as it was performed last Wednesday night was a combination of light country and soft rock, with Gary handling the country numbers and his bass player and lead guitarist did the soft rock side

The mixing of the rock and country does not show Hooper at his best as country is his bag There are several spots in the area that claim to be country who could well use an act of this calibre

Don't miss EASTER EGGSTRAVAGANZA at Oshawa's Civic Auditorium Easter Sunday at 8 p.m.

This looks like a smashing show starring The Pig & Whistle gang, Glenn Smith Unlimited, the cast of Godspell, Jack Duffy, Shirley Eikhard and many others

Admission is $2 and proceeds go to the Ajax Pickering Association for Retarded Children

We made our first visit to the Flying Dutchman Motor Inn this past weekend to take in one of the highly-rated International Nite presentations

This night was titled Country & Western Hoe Down, and featured Smily Bates and his northern Ramblers

The crowd was really swinging at 10:30 p.m. The dance floor and tables throughout the room were jammed and I might add all seemed to be having a big evening

The lounge is a large room that, though jammed, was not so noisy that you couldn't talk at your table. I look forward to the next International night at the Flying Dutchman, whatever the theme, but I would suggest in future that management check out their entertainment better for, in one word this aspect of the evening was sad

Eating out

Dines Steakhouse, Oshawa

Dines may not be the oldest established dining room in town but it is one that should be on your list

It is possible that on a week night it might be your only game in town after 10 p.m. This past Wednesday, my guest and I tried the three largest hotel dining rooms in the area and found them all closed

But every cloud has a silver lining and while I still had the strength to drive we pulled into Dine's parking lot not knowing if they would be open either

Yes, Dine's is open nightly until 1 a.m.

Dinner began with tossed salad, mine was crisp and tasty, although the Thousand Island dressing was not overly plentiful

My guest though had one complaint on the salad. While mine contained, in addition to lettuce, onions, radish, cucumber and green pepper slices, hers was simply lettuce plus one slice of radish.

My guest chose Surf and Turf (medium sized filet with two small lobster tails) and found it excellent The lobster was tasty and the steak done just right

One minor complaint from the lady, the baked potato was not piping hot

I myself felt like something different than usual and chose Curried shrimp. Now in some steak houses this could be a mistake but I must report not at Dine's

The shrimp was served steaming hot on a base of equally hot rice, the sauce was hot and sharp too sharp possibly for some, but for me delicious

The only suggestion I could offer would be a minor one—Mr. Dine's, why not serve your white rice on blue or green plates? This would add considerably to the appearance of the dish

The service was excellent, particularly when we saw just one very capable waitress for the, by my count, 26 customers in the room

And, as the old saying goes, the price also was right. Total bill for two, including two drinks was $13.90.—Redd Hill

Eastdale concert

Substitute was pleasant

By JO ALDWINCKLE

Instead of the scheduled "Evening with Schumann" on Sunday night, members of the Oshawa and District Concert Association were entertained at Eastdale Collegiate by "Camarata" a quintet of talented young musicians with a flair for contemporary music

Although Camarata rapturously embraces modern mood music, its technique is well-rooted in the classics as was exemplified in the rendition of the Trio for clarinet cello and piano by Brahms

From the opening statement by the cello to the robust interruption from the piano to the tender, sweeping passages of the clarinet, the four movements were richly interpreted

Variations on a 17th century theme provided a vehicle for flute, clarinet, violin and piano to take off on a tuneful, pastoral excursion

Other selections on the program were in the contemporary vein, a challenge to the performers who displayed virtuoso musicianship along the treacherous route of harmonious discord and irregular tempi

Duets for flute and clarinet and cello and violin re-awakened interest in the timbre and mating of these instruments especially when played with distinct style and humor

Camarata is composed of the following exciting soloists Suzanne Schulman, flute; Fujiko Imajiski, violin; James Campbell, clarinet, Conrad Bloemendal, cello and Elyakim Taussig piano

Catherine Root, who was unable to fulfill her engagement due to illness, plays second piano for the group

a time for sun and relaxed elegance

Fortrel and cotton are the basic materials for these three outfits by Roanne's from the Oshawa Shopping Centre. The trim-fitting outfit above with bag pants and battle jacket is made of washable fortrel. The more formal long dress, an embossed cotton, comes with a full-length coat. For street wear, the tiered dress of fortrel is light and cool. Buick Elektra courtesy General Motors. Shoes by Agnew Surpass Photographed at Parkwood

Exchange teacher

It will be Abel MacZwart in July

The misty moors of Robert Burns' home will be the setting of a dream come true for an Oshawa high school teacher

Abel Zwart, English teacher and assistant head of the English department at Eastdale Collegiate, will travel to Scotland this summer as an exchange teacher

'From the time I started to teach I've always had it in mind that I would like to exchange with a teacher in another country,' he says

Encouraged by his wife, Zwart applied to the Ministry of Education who in turn sent his application to the Canadian Educational Association arranging for exchanges of Commonwealth teachers

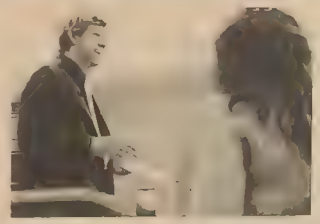
He found out in February that the Town of Turriff located on the north east coast of Scotland would be his post and began then to correspond with Alastair Urquhart the Scottish teacher who will be replacing him in Eastdale

The two teachers arranged housing accommodations for each other in their new locations and filled each other in on the practical and educational details of each other's country

'I hope to leave for Scotland in the beginning of July,' he says. 'School starts on August 13 there and I would like to visit a little bit of England first

Born in the Netherlands, Zwart has not travelled too widely and even though he will pay transportation costs for himself and family, he is very excited about the trip

Urquhart's annual salary will be subsidized by the Ontario County Board of Education by



Abel Zwart

$500 and also by another $500 from Zwart

'It's going to end up costing me money but things you get out of an exchange like this are well worth it,' says Zwart

He expects the cost of living in Scotland to be lower than in Canada so isn't really worried about finances except for the air fare

'You can buy a charter flight return ticket from Toronto to London for $240 but to fly one way it cost $300,' he says. 'It is much lower from London to Toronto (almost half) and because I will be in Scotland for over a year I can't buy a return ticket.'

Zwart and his family have been busy reading books of Scottish history and geography and studying maps and information on the climate

Aside from his correspondence with the teacher he will exchange with, he has talked with many people who live around Oshawa who were originally from the Turiff area

'They all say I will have difficulty trying to understand the Scottish brogue,' he says

Another area which he is anxious to find out about in Scotland is of course the educational system

'I think over there there is more stress on basic areas like grammar, spelling and the insistence that certain material be learned,' he says 'I'll also be anxious to get over there because we're thought to be lax and they to have strict discipline'

The high school students in Scotland range in age from 12 years to 18 or 19 and Zwart hopes that the differences in the cultures of Scotland and Canada will make his upcoming adventure even more meaningful

'I am very grateful to the Ontario County Board's interest in the exchange,' he says 'They will be paying the $500 to Mr. Urquhart and also two thirds of his medical expenses which they don't have to'

'I'm also proud of the number of my students who say 'I hear you're going to Scotland. Congratulations

Oshawa Studio head :

Recording studio is full of cut throats

The recording business is the most unorthodox business in the world according to one of the industry's executives

Bob Stone, general manager of World Records, says the cut-throat image of the industry often depicted in movies is all true

"I can tell you stories about recording agents competing for a $200 piece of music that was sold for $5 million---but nobody made a cent," he says

Stone is involved with a group of conglomerated companies headquartered in Oshawa that publish music, produce and manufacture records, and promote artists.

Last month, the company put 21 Canadian longplaying records on the market It also produces records for other recording companies

You've probably never heard of some of the records or artists that were put on albums by the company, because of the market, Stone says, is in the Maritimes

"We produce country music—the fiddle stuff—good music like the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, contemporary folk and Irish import records," he says. "We stay away from blues and rock

If the companies got into producing rock records he says the staff would not only have to be doubled, but the venture would also be a big risk

For the amount of money we'd make, we'd rather stay out of it Stone says Let's face it, if CHUM doesn't play the record, it's blown And if it does, the life of a rock record has only two or three weeks expectancy

That's one of the problems of the business, says Stone, who is himself a rock and blues record buyer

"You can't release what you think is good or what you like," he says. "You have to release to be competitive and take a risk. I like rock, but it's not economical to do"

He says it is hard to saturate the country and western market, especially in the Maritime provinces where the company has its studios and most of its artists

He readily admits that one of the money-making sidelines to recording is owning the music After you own a few thousand pieces of music, he says, the royalties from other persons using that music begin to add up to big money

"The biggest problem in this business is the artist's ego, and then it becomes a case of baby-sitting," he says "That's why we always make sure there is someone here to talk to They can always phone us"

A recording artist will never make that much from selling his albums, Stone says. He makes money from public appearances and publishing his music to get the royalties, which usually occurs on a long-range basis after about three years

Unlike the United States market where a gold record is handed out after an artist's record sells more than one million copies, the Canadian market is considerably smaller

Bob Stone

In Canada, Stone says, a gold LP only has to sell 25,000 copies, and a 45 rpm record has to sell only 50,000 to become a "million seller"

"One of our LPs has just sold about 80,000 copies," Stone says "That's almost astronomical in our market."

But then, he says, there is no real rhyme or reason for the fortunes of a particular record's sale. There is no connection between the radio airplay of the record and its sales and discrepancies can be fantastic, he says

"We usually put out about 5,000 copies of a good fiddle music album, but maybe only 1,000 copies of something middle-of-the-road," he says. "If you put out too many, what good are 10,000 unsold records? You just grind them up."

The company in the conglomerate that handles the artists may be interested in two things when it is scouting for talent, he says

"We may be interested in the artist strictly as a writer (composer), or both a writer and a performer," he says

In either case, the company has two contracts that it will sign with an artist.

It may cost up to $15,000 to record and produce an album after the companies get through paying for musicians and musical arrangements, Stone says

On the other hand, it may only cost $4,800 for a three-piece group, and as little as $2,000 for a single artist

"If anyone is going to make any money, it should really bethe artist," Stone says. "As a writer you may not have to work again because of royalty residuals"

Then again, he says, it's really a cut-throat business and warns that some people may want to hear a hit record on the radio—but they may not want to buy it.

Languages decline

Getting students to take proper subjects is a complex task says school official

By Jane Milne
Staff Writer

When John decided to study theatre arts instead of Latin, he may not have at that time considered the possibility of needing the language in a future career

"Probably the same trends taking place in Ontario are taking place in Ontario County," says J C. Richardson, Superintendent of operations for the Ontario County Board of Education, in referring to a drop in language students

The credit system underwhich secondary students are now earning their diplomas is said by some to create conflicts in the area of knowing at a Grade 10 level just what that student's academic background should include for future needs

"There are two factors involved," says Richardson "If you give a child a broader spectrum of subjects to choose from, then of course you will find fewer numbers in any individual subject."

He concludes that it is natural to find fewer students in what is considered the more traditional subjects such as Latin

"The second factor is the changing in university requisites," he says. "There was a time when universities were quite specific in their requirements of a second language and I think there has been a lessening of this with the ability of students to get into the majority of universities

Richardson says he thinks it important for students to be able to choose subjects which they deem relevent and that perhaps we are going through a period of time in which change has become fashionable

"During such a period perhaps the more innovative subjects offer an alternative to traditional subjects," he says

The Ontario County board has not yet made a report on the studies of French by students in county schools but he says the subject has been traditionally taught to students extending back to the Grade 4 and 5 levels

"French has been exceptionally well developed in the county with the object being to try to develop fluency in the language while the student is still in school rather than just the study of the written language"

He says that the board, although not satisfied with the degree of fluency, has tried to equalize the teaching of French throughout the county in elementary schools

"French is taught in all schools in Ontario County beginning at the Grade 7 level," he says.

The board's object primarily is to develop a fluency, use and appreciation of the language."

As far as controls are concerned in what subjects students choose in the credit system Richardson says that there are people who would like to see students stay with the "core subjects"

"I would like to see a core program for each individual student through counselling and parental and student choice," he says. "As determined by the child's counsellor, an appropriate core program could then be chosen according to that child's ability and interests"

Richardson says the majority of Ontario County students are choosing the "core" or "traditional" subjects which are suitable to their individual needs and that there are only a small minority who may choose less demanding or beneficial ones.

"I think we have gone through a decade in which it has been tried to make education more relevent to the needs of the student in a rapidly changing society and I think in this decade the emphasis must be on insuring that those changes have been in the best interest of the student."

Psychiatrist says

Obscene callers are striking back at society

People who make obscene phone calls need profession help

This is the opinion of Dr. Zafar Quraishi Director of the Mental Health Clinic of the Whitby Psychiatric Hospital

Basically, I think a person who makes an obscene call is really pretty sick," he says. "These people usually aim at getting a reaction from the other party

He says most of the callers come from disturbed backgrounds with destructive, disruptive relationships with parents, siblings and peers during their developmental period

These people are really inadequate, frightened people," says Dr Quraishi. "They are people who do not have the courage to face other people of the same sex or particularly those of the opposite sex on a realistic basis

Explaining that these people often have been alienated by their peer group, he says basically the calls become a method of getting back at society

"They do not have enough ego strength to go and tell a person face to face that they have hurt them and so they use the phone," he says. "They want to hear an expression of shock, fear and disgust from the victim

The caller feels a sense of gratification from such a reaction and the doctor says this feeling is intensified when the victim is someone who has rejected the caller

He says the victims are chosen mostly at random but if the caller gets the reaction he wants he will call again.

The obscene caller is different from the hard core criminal group who make the premeditated type of call with the victim well defined and Dr Quraishi says there is always in such cases, an underlying conflict between the victim and caller

"These are the criminal types who could be blackmailing the victim or possibly even a man who has split up with his wife or girlfriend and feels that he has to get back at her."

"He may ask a friend to call her and use foul language," he says. "This type of call is well planned and premeditated to make the other person feel emotionally upset for rejecting him in the first place."

"From a psychiatric standpoint, the obscene phone-caller can be compared to the exhibitionist," he says. "He similarly exposes himself, the victim reacts by screaming or with facial expressions which gives the exhibitionist some degree of sexual satisfaction This is similar to what happens on the phone."

With feelings of gross frustration and inadequacies, the obscene caller uses the phone as a hostile way of getting back even though, as Dr. Quraishi explains he may not know the victim but "Miss X" may represent and symbolize the female sex which he wants to get back at because his mother may have rejected him, for example

Rather than just hanging up, he says that one way of putting a stop to obscene calls is to show little interest in what he has to say.

"This really frustrates the caller and does not give him a reaction which would reinforce him and make him want to call back," he says

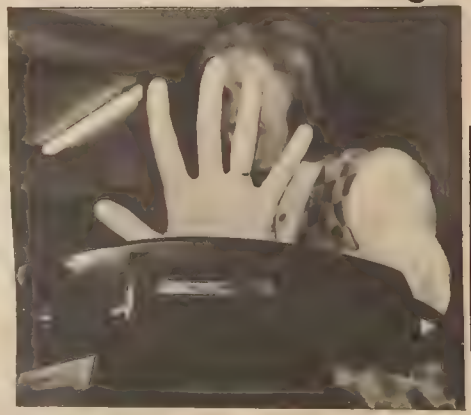
Most of the people who make obscene phone calls, like the exhibitionists, come to psychiatrists' attention by way of the courts if they are detected

"The treatment required by these people depends on the severity," says Dr. Quraishi. "They must explain why they are doing it and then we must find an alternative for channelling their anger

The diagnosis is very important in finding the causes of a given behaviour and he says the illness of the obscene caller may be a personality defect, a neurosis or schizophrenia

The therapy can vary —psychoanalysis, pharmaceutical or behavioral modification

"Treatment is aimed at the underlying cause," he says.



Panic is a reaction the obscene phone caller is looking for. The best thing to do is remain calm – and hang up.

Doc's Queen's Park Diagnosis

By Dr. Charlie McIlveen
MPP, Oshawa

John White's first budget was introduced April 12 at 4 p.m

Reams have been written about the ramifications of this budget, and I cannot let this opportunity pass without getting in my two cents' worth

Without municipal tax abatement policies, provincial expenditure increases would have been well within predictable economic growth patterns and no new taxes would have been necessary

Municipal expenditures are running well ahead of growth in the property tax field and a province- wide increase in mill rates of approximately 8 per cent is inevitable

Provincial transfers of tax money to municipalities are vital to give meaning to provincial initiatives in strengthening local government

Almost all of these additional revenues that will be collected will flow either to the property taxpayers through the municipality or directly to such taxpayers as tax credits

For the whole province, total transfers to municipalaities - equal $1,935,000,000 or 48.1 per cent of municipal revenues. (Property tax $ equals 1.8 billion or 45.1 per cent).

Oshawa's net gain from the provincial property tax stabilization plan is estamated for 1973 to be $1,620,000

The mill rate has not been finalized as yet, but should work out to be in the neighborhood of $360,000. If so this will mean a lessening of 4.5 to 5 mills for the 1973 taxation year for property taxpayers.

One part of the budget that received little publicity was the succession duty reductions.

In order to keep Ontario firms from having to be sold in order to pay these death duties, family firms have up to six years to pay duty, or a payment in shares to the Ontario Heritage Foundation at fair market vluea

These shares would be a source of revenue for the Ontario Heritage Foundation. Unfortunately this foundation has no funds at the moment, but what a blessing it will be in the future for situations like Parkwood. It will allow us the funds to preserve our heritage.

I am concerned about the two per cent raise in sales tax especially as it affects the auto industry

It will mean a $50 to $100 increase in the price of new cars. Along with the cost of the new pollution control device program. this will mean prohibitive prices for many possible new car buyers

I hope we don't kill the goose that laid the golden egg.

John Bradshaw says:
"Crabgrass? I use CIL Lawn Doctor". It works very well"

"I find CIL Lawn Doctor does a bang-up job on my lawn Easy to use and most effective

"CIL Lawn Doctor won't burn your lawn Yet it removes crabgrass, pesky grubs, and broadleaf weeds—and feeds your lawn with a fully balanced lawn food

"If you'd like my complete guide for growing the perfect lawn, talk to the CIL dealer below He can really help you"

International pianist at Eastdale this Sunday

Internationally renowned pianist Ray Luck will perform classical selections at a recital Sunday, April 22, 8:30 p.m. at Eastdale Collegiate Hall.

The Guyanese pianist received his early musical training in Georgetown before going to London to study at the Royal College of Music.

He won a French government scholarship to continue piano studies and has the distinction of winning the Premier Prix in his first year.

Luck completed a Bachelor of Music degree from London and has appeared in Canada in Manitoba and Alberta making the Sunday concert his Ontario debut

There are no reserved tickets but seats are available at the door for $3 each.

Hawkeye grad

Ron Brown accepts football role at Michigan State

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Greg Barton, the highly-paid non-playing quarterback who came to Canada to play with the Toronto Argo s, admitted when the inked his contract he would sooner coach than play. He now is starting something new for Canadian Football teenagers

Barton, formerly with the Detroit Lions of the N F.L., was released as a player with the double blue last season but during the off-season has accepted the job as director of Canadian player development

Barton considers that the Canadian market has an untapped market for the future as far as football youngsters are concer

The ex-pivot wants every Canadian boy to have the opportunity to play pro ball and received the best ever coaching available and if possible continue his education in doing so

Ron Brown from Ajax, who toiled last fall with the newborn Oshawa Hawkeyes, is the first pupil of Barton's to kick the program off

Brown, 17, seems to have the size and ability to make Barton a prophet. A defensive end and tackle, he stands 6 foot 5 inches and weighs a solid 275 pounds

A few weeks back, he attended a spring training weekend with Michigan State, members of the powerful Big 10 College league, and MSU coach Danny Statz liked what he saw in Brown and promptly signed him to a football scholarship at that college

Prior to accepting the Michigan job, Purdue, Drake, West Virginia and Iowa were seeking his services

Eddie Aru, general manager of the Kawkeyes, was the one who recommended Brown to Barton and his new formula for Canadian kids

Aru shares in the accomplishments of Brown and feels that he could be one of the best players to come from the Ontariopolis area

A Grade 12 student at Ajax Highschool Brown will enroll in Business and Personnel Management at Michigan State which is located in Lansing just north of Detroit

Brown credits Mike Kirkpatrick the former Hawkeyes coach with developing him into a top prospect

"Mike had a lot of background experience both as a player and coach and slowly brought us around," he says

Brown feels confident that he will make the varsity team in his first year and in the league which has the powerful Ohio State Buckeyes and Notre Dame

Despite his large size, Brown can do the 40 yard dash in 5.1 flat which proves that he can move when he is called upon

Being the only Canadian player in training camp, Brown felt an achievement in the school which has hockey and football as major sports

"It's going to be quite a chance," says an excited Brown, "as the seating capacity of the Michigan State field is 76,000 and the team always plays before full houses

Brown will attempt to lose about 15 pounds before training camp which opens in August How ever, in the meantime he will be playing a little golf, lacrosse with the Ajax Knights and will work out with the Hawkeyes until August 22

Hawkeye's brass feel they have a few more surprises in store for Barton s project as junior football in Oshawa and area is really starting to catch on

Brown bomber

Ron Brown, a favorite with football fans in the Ontariopolis region during his stint with the Oshawa Hawkeyes, has been awarded a football scholarship with Michigan State University.

Gaels count on veterans for victories

This will mark the fourth season that the Oshawa Green Gaels haven't started the spring training camp as champs of Canadian Junior A lacrosse

From 1963 to 1969 a stretch of seven years, Gaels where the power house of lacrosse in the Dominion winning the coveted Minto Cup

Since then the driving force behind the Gaels Jim Bishop now executive director with Detroit Red Wings, left to join in the hockey wars

At lot of people considered that it was Bishop alone who made the Gaels tick However even Bish himself doesn't agree with that statement

Sports has a funny way of doing things and results make the so-called experts look like novices

Ron Pither who took over as head coach mid-way during last season replacing Bob Hanna who resigned looks like a new Bishop behind the bench

This season it will be Pither s club which he handpicks rather than working with players another coach had installed in the line up

Pither's outlook of course follows the Bishop line of thinking since he played for Jim in Senior "A" and professional lacrosse with the Windsor Warlocks

Prior to meeting Bishop, Pither, then a student at Western University hadn t played the game An ardent student of the game Pither has adopted most of Bishop s ideas and has incorpated a lot of his own and this O L A season Pither hopes to challenge Peterborough for the number one position in the league

A lot of veterans on the Gaels may be surprised feeling that they have already captured a position on the club as they are prime targets for the more than 45 rookies in camp bidding for regular employment.

The rookies are getting a long hard look by Pither and his general manager, Brian Drew

Lost to overage are captain Larry Shringley Pat Fallon,m Terry Rowland, Allan Drew Walt Karas, Rick Wallis and Bob Ball.

It's no secret that Cockerton Cawker and Bannon, who all collected over 100 points last season, should be the leaders on the club

Minor lacrosse gets a shot in the arm

Minor lacrosse will be given a national shot in the arm in mid-August as a National Pee-Wee Lacrosse Tournament will be held in the Lakeshore area

Four area lacrosse associations namely the Ajax, Garrard Road, Scarborough and Whitby groups have combined for this fourth annual championship

This tournament will be the largest event of its kind ever held with every province being represented with 32 teams and over 800 players

In Oshawa, Danny Kocho, newly-elected president of minor lacrosse, is attempting to revive the gutted stick game at a minor level Lacrosse last summer took a complete nosedive and Kocho an original member of the organization back in the early 60's, is hoping to revive the game with a new formula.

Coming out of retirement Kocho has some new ideas about rebounding the game Working closely with the Neighborhood Recreational department Kocho feels he has the magic formula to produce lacrosse for all minor age levels

His programs are designed not only to develop a player's skill but also provide healthy recreation plus an atmosphere conducive to character building

This is somewhat of an oddity as lot of sports organization must win at all costs

Three major programs will be operated including a competitive team program, neighborhood lacrosse leagues and a LACROSSE SKILLS FIELD DAY

In the competitive teams program it will be confined to box lacrosse with games scheduled at both the Children's and North Oshawa Arena along with the two outdoor bowls

House league teams will operate in tyke, novice, pee-wee, bantam and midget. In the NRLL, this is open for both girls and boys and already girls have registered and even some of the coaches will be females or should we say persons.

This is purely recreational type of lacrosse within their own neighbourhood and will start in June

Their type of game will be tailored to meet the number of players with the emphasis on passing, catching shooting, running but most of all just plain FUN

The skills field day, is a place where at the end of the summer individual skills will be tested covering shooting, catching, speed, endurance and agility

Former General Jack Lynch will open hockey school in Oshawa

Former Oshawa Generals rearguard Jack Lynch will be returning to the city this summer to operate his own professional hockey school for youngsters in the area at Harmon Park

Lynch better known as "Jumping Jack" was the first-round draft pick of the Pittsburgh Penguins last June and during his last season with the Gens wrote a hockey column for THIS WEEK

The camp is scheduled to open July 30 and runs to August 24 with players from the ages of 6 to 17 eligible for professional instruction

Joining Lynch are ex-Gens Steve Cardwell and Hank Nowak

Guest instructors from Pittsburgh include Larry Bignell and Paul Hoganson and Hugh Harvey from the A.H.L.'s Hershey Bears

Bill Sytnyk from Oshawa (728-3138) has complete details on the camp.

Parkway midgets breath away from champions

Just 3½ months short of a calendar year after they opened training camp, the Parkway Midget All-Stars are only one series away from winning the all-Ontario championship.

The Oshawa club is now in the final round of the playdowns, by virtue of a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Marlies Sunday

It has certainly been a long year, for players and coaches alike. Happily, it appears as if the long season will end a great success.

Recapping the events of the year thus far, one cannot find a low point First there was a long string of successful exhibition games, followed by an undefeated tour of Sweden.

Then after five series in quest of the all-Ontario crown, only six losses come immediately to mind.

The latest two defeats came at the hands of the Toronto Marlie Midgets, who certainly gave the Parkway squad a scare before bowing in six games

After closing within one game at home on Friday night, the Marlies came to Oshawa's Harman Park Arena just flying. They grabbed a 3-1 first period lead.

Then, in keeping with the pattern throughout the series, Oshawa became stronger as the game progressed. The second and final frames were dominated by the Oshawa club.

Gary Lewis' goal at the 46 second mark of the third period turned out to be the winner, as both teams were unable to score from then on.

The Marlies put everything they had into the last minute of the game, pulling their goalie in favor of a sixth attacker

As has been the case many times before, they could not beat Oshawa's Steve Bosco, who played well in the crucial game

A good team effort is indicated by the fact that scoring for the Parkway team was evenly divided among four players Brian Drumm, Jeff Rorabeck, Bill Coe, and Lewis were the Oshawa marksmen

Also interesting to note are the shots-on-goal in the game. Oshawa had a "slight" edge, outshooting the opposition by a total of 71 to 31

So, next weekend will be the final one on the ice for the team. They will travel north to meet the northern Midget champions in a best-of-three series.

Even though they do not know who their opposition will be, the team is optimistic that the series will not be as tough as the last one with Marlies

Whitby's Debbie steals show

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Scarborough Winstonettes came out on top at the regional gymnastics championships on the weekend and Debbie Taylor from Whitby, a Winstonettes member was the top individual performer

The Grade 5 student at R A Hutchison school competing in Argo division swept her way to first place finishes in the floor exercise balance beam uneven bars vault and all round events on Saturday That same day she was forced to meet a doctor as she was complaining about a sore foot which hampered her on Sunday

As a result she managed a first in the balance beam and a third in floor exercise

The Winstonette club, which produced all the members for Canada's Olympic team won the team titles with a combined two day total of 267 56 in Argo and 261 90 in Tyro

Runner-up was Bayview in Argo and East York in Tyro Oshawa a new club which was formed a couple years ago by John Winston, saw his team finish sixth in Argo and last in Tyro

Winstonette coaches Paul Blatherwick, Joy Best and Denise Fujiwara claim that a bright future is in store for the 11-year-old Debbie At present, she works out in Toronto about 15 hours a week and is improving since she started two years ago

She is looking forward to the 1980 Olympics as a competitor

Lisa Penstone from the Winstonettes was the top female in the Tyro division combining for a 67.85 total score. She was first in compulsory and floor exercise and tied for the leadership in uneven bars and all round event

Softball season is shaping up a biggy

This summer will be another busy one on the local diamonds

A total of 11 teams will be members of the Oshawa City & District Softball Association under president "Spike" Yourkevich

Among the teams taking part this summer will be Cobourg, Scugog Cleaner Juniors, Lucky-One Beverages, Kisil Fuels, Falcon TV, R & H Cabinets, Tony's, Port Perry Greenwood, Whitby and Bay Ridges

It is expected that the City & District will be divided into two groupings by classification Tony's will be playing also in the newly formed Ontario Fastball League while R & H Cabinets will play in the Beaches League.

All clubs have been holding indoor workouts and should hit the outside diamonds within the next week.

Last year Oshawa didn't win a provincial title but the association expects to rebound this summer.

League action is scheduled tentatively for the third week in May

Joe Piontek who was the player-coach with Tony's, is rumored to be turning pro with the new Toronto entry

Throughout the year, volunteers do a lot you never hear about in the fight against cancer. They drive patients to clinics, and supply small comforts such as tea and coffee

They visit schools and various groups to show films and talk about ways to prevent cancer

Some 50,000 of them conduct the annual campaign for funds that are needed in the fight against cancer. Give your share when the time comes

And if you want to serve as a volunteer, either during the campaign or through the year, contact your local cancer unit.

Grant Southwell:

Recreation is for all whether or not they can pay

The Oshawa Recreation Department's summer day camp is not a babysitting facility.

"We provide the community with an opportunity for leisure," says Grant Southwell, assistant director of recreation for senior citizens and youth

He says that although he suspects some parents use the department's day camp during the summer as a cheap "babysitting service" for their children when they sign them up for the whole six weeks, the department does not get together with day care centres or any other social agencies in providing such a service

"The decision of what program to join is with the participant, not with us," he says

Oshawa's Recreation Department has found it very rarely ever turns people away from the programs offered

"If we have the space, we can make two programs if there are too many for one class," says Southwell

Since the Oshawa Recreation Department is for all the citizens of the city, it has been the department's policy to discreetly waive registration fees for those who could not otherwise enjoy its facilities

This is done only if the reason a person can't join a program is lack of finances," he says "We verify this with the welfare department if this is the case but we think our fees are such that most people can afford them"

Children can take part in the aquatic section of the department for 10 cents per swim for example, but the day camp's operational costs require $20 per child for a two-week period

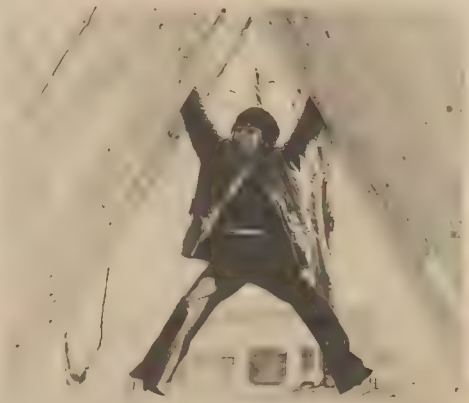
"Public health nurses will come to us and say that a certain child would be better off away from home for a week or so during the summer" says Southwell If the family of that child is not able to pay then no one at the camp will know if that child has paid or not so there is no discrimination

The play areas organized in the parks throughout the city do not cost anything for children to join

Summer programs this year will include the regular activities for youth, senior citizens and family members of all ages

The sports and physical section, arts and cultural, aquatic, health studio, youth and area and community schools section all make up the recreation department

"It is our concern that we offer these opportunities to people, says Southwell It is up to them to take advantage



Lloyd Oak enjoys himself on the equipment set up in one of Oshawa's parks. The Oshawa day camp operation will get into full swing again this year.

A new racing era comes to Oshawa

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Unlike most sports which receive pages and pages of publicity motor sports seems to be limited to the select few

Probably the main reason is that a lot of the regular sports buffs just don't really understand the technical approach towards the sport and what people don't understand they don't seem interested in

On the weekend it was announced that Oshawa has formed the first organized team effort for the 1973 Region Solo events series and the National Slalom championships

Nicknamed team ERA a take-off on the famed McLaren team the team consists of four members a team manager and two technical advisors representing the strongest and most experienced grouping of drivers and advisors in our immediate region

This group is dedicated to success and is committed to professionalism although no money is involved in victories The group is sponsored by the B E L Tronics of Mississauga, Pirrana Small Car Centres from Port Credit and Castrol Oils of Toronto

Jim Halliday is the team manager and he has served as chief steward on the Ontario Region solo events committee for three years He has plenty of knowledge and is an accredited engineer at General Motors

Unlike a lot of teams the Oshawa foursome is made up of three guys and a gal. Ralph Robinson, president of the club, has been competing in solo events now for two years

He has personally directed and planned the development of this vehicle during the time and will be in complete charge of its maintenance for this season

Other driving members are Mike Burgess who despite only one year in solo events has shown great promise An ex-Ford of Canada drag racer with many wins to his credit Burgess will be acting as public relations manager as well as handling his driving duties

Don Clement, the other male has been active for three years and in 1971 was crowned class champion in the Ontario region. Last year he stood third in the region

Joining the group is Ruth Halliday who brings five years experience and was the Ontario Ladies Solo events champion in 1969, 1970 and 1971 Last year she was runner-up in the ladies division

Taking a look at the car the ERA team will be driving it is a 1970 Datsun PL 510 two-door sedan The engine is 1600 cc overhead camshaft Datsun engine with an L 16 big valve head

The lightweight fibreglass drivers seat is full of instruments with S nth gauges BEL Tronics electronic tachometer with formula plus 13" leather steering wheel

The ERA team will be competing in Brampton Port Credit Guelph Toronto, Chatham, Kingston and Oakville this season

Off to the races

Equality of the sexes is the name of the game in motor sport with the formation of Team Era. Mike Burgess, Ruth Halliday, Ralph Robinson (left to right) and Don Clement (not shown) make up the four "man" team that will be taking part in 1973 region solo events and the national slalom championships. The team is sponsored by BEL Tronics of Mississauga, Pirrana Small Care Centres from Port Credit and Castrol Oils of Toronto.

Four crowns placed in Little NHL

Oshawa Little NHL has declared four champs is closing in on a fifth and has only one division to be decided

Dines Red Wings won the pee-wee A championship with a 4-1 tie against Kirks Spur. Captain Vic Smith scored for Dines and Greg Doucette replied for Kirks

Banks Flooring took the pee-wee B crown dumping Country String Bruins 5 3 John Dwyer fired two goals with George Dyntruk, Mike McPaul and Wayne McLelland adding singles

Turning to novice, Western Oil won the "A" crown and Valeo Clothing North Stars took the "B" championships

Ladies Softball

The Neighborhood Association Softball Committee will sponsor the Ladies Junior and Intermediate Softball Tournament at Alexander Park June 15, 16 and 17 in co-operation with the Provincial Women's Softball Union

Durham economist says Oshawa is in danger of disappearing

Is Oshawa in danger of disappearing?

Will there be a 'demise' of the General Motors plant in this area?

Durham College economics lecturer Jim Paxton sees this as a real possibility...unless.

'There are enlightened' government policies, and indirectly, a 'party looking out for the interests of the citizens.'

Mr. Paxton, who spoke at a public meeting sponsored by the South Oshawa Community Involvement Program, also said the first priority of the General Motors Corporation was to make a profit.

'If it can be a good corporate citizen, it will do that, but its not first priority,' he said.

U.A.W. Local 222 president Abe Taylor told the meeting: 'General Motors Corporation would move production of any part from one side of the CanadaU.S. border to the other if it could save a penny.'

The meeting was the first of a service on the CanadaU.S. auto pact.

CONTEST STARTS

Come fly with us!

Readers of This Week are invited in this issue to take part in a contest for a free trip for two to Europe

The details and entry forms are inside

The contest—a joint effort of This Week and Air Canada—is to promote a big attendance during the Fanfare for Oshawa Week, the last week of June and the Ontario Summer Games, to be held on the July 1 weekend

How do you enter?

All you do is invite a friend or relative to come visit you during Fanfare Week (If you don't have room in the house, they can always pitch a tent in your backyard!) or on the weekend of the Summer Games

Use the entry form inside to tell us who you've invited, and send us your name, address and telephone number

An Air Canada official will draw the winning entry the week before Fanfare Week and the winner can take the trip, plus the $200 expense money any time later in the summer or in the fall

Invite someone, won't you? And do enter!

Ken Fortier puts the finishing touches to This Week's Fanfare sign. (See page 5)

Airport landbank now a possibility

The current Oshawa airport may become the first city-owned residential land bank

In an interview with This Week Mayor Jim Potticary intimated that if all goes well during city negotiations with the federal government to relocate the present airport at a different site that land may be used for a residential land bank

Asked if the city was considering establishing a residential land bank this year, Potticary said

"I have something in mind, and you can probably guess what it is. As you know we are in the process of trying to relocate the airport, and if all the blocks fall into the right place

The mayor did not say what would happen if those blocks did fall into place. He did admit however that he 'will try to do something this year' about establishing a land bank, but would not give further details

Potticary said he supports the overall principle of land banking "if the government is going to subsidize such projects

He said a land freeze' is the only way to eliminate land speculation and keep prices down in the real estate business

Perspiration, lady plumbers and pines

The advertising business is in trouble and realizes it. The public is becoming more and more critical of misleading and offensive advertising and the ad men have seen the writing on the wall

Rather than have federal legislation enacted that would put restrictions on the business, they have set up a self-policing agency that encourages the public to submit complaints

This is a wise move on the part of the advertising profession because once the government steps in with controls, the ad men would be badly hampered.

But while they seem sincere in their efforts to clean up their act, they haven't gone anywhere near far enough.

Every day we are bombarded by television advertising that makes us want to put our foot through the screen. We have mindless females carrying their perspiration-stained dresses to parties. We have housewives carrying on insane conversations with pine trees. We have lady plumbers walking into strange kitchens uninvited.

And probably the most disgusting of all is the hard-sell advertising aimed at children on Saturday morning that is little more than brainwashing.

Designed specifically to coax the youngsters into bugging their parents until the particular toy is bought, the commercials take advantage of impressionable minds and convince them that life just won't be worth living unless they own a Baby Frowup doll or a Gook-zapping rocket launcher.

Parents, who would scream in protest if the salesman in the toy department of a local store began a line of hard-sell patter to their children, calmly sit by and allow the youngsters to be lied to and cajoled by television pitchmen.

Commercials on television are a necessary evil. If the sponsor didn't pick up the tab, your television set would end up as a rather expensive table on which to put that lamp with the hand-crocheted lampshade your Aunt Martha gave you for Christmas.

No commercials, no programs.

But if we allow a door-to-door salesman into our homes, we expect him to observe the rules of common decency whether he comes in through the door or through our television sets.

Advertising agencies have come a long way in cleaning up their act, but they still have a long way to go.

Where was the citizen input in raise debate?

What with all the loud criticism of late about elected officials giving themselves healthy raises, the lack of "citizen input" in the issue has so far been outstanding

On this page we have argued that a raise for our elected officials was probably in order. What we are very-much opposed to is the way in which the issue came forth—from behind closed doors and secret meetings.

Some of our elected officials call closed-door sessions "caucus meetings." That sounds better. Exclude press and public from a meeting of elected officials, and as far as we're concerned, you've got a secret meeting.

What was most disappointing then, during last week's council meeting, was the failure of citizens to speak at that meeting against the raises. They were given the opportunity. They failed to speak.

We were particularly disappointed that Mr. Kolodzie of the Ratepayers Council chose not to speak at the meeting. The time for citizen-input is when it will do some good, Mr. Kolodzie!

Or are we all wrong, and would that have been a tactical error and should these things be brought up on the night of the vote, with publicity galore?

While members of council have failed miserably to bring about their own pay increases in a reasonable and responsible manner, those responsible for "citizen input" have also missed the boat.

Instead of doing something constructive they showed they're just as hungry for all that "good publicity" as are those elected officials who feel the best way to avoid "bad publicity" is to meet in secret.

Let's see it all come out at the next meeting. Let's hear our elected officials tell the electorate why they need the raise they decided on in secret.

The taxpayer isn't so unreasonable that he's against any and all increases. He feels he's owed a reasonable explanation—that's all!

Bamboozled?

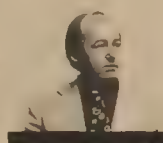
First, from Ottawa we get indications that for the overall good of the country and its citizens, taxes are to be cut so the economy is injected with a serum that'll make it boom, thus providing jobs to thousands of people who need one and can't get one any other way.

Then, follows up Queen's Park with announcements of massive tax increases, even on things such as hydro and fuel

Then, a few days later, follows up Ottawa with a massive new working paper on social security that provides for boosts in family allowances, new employment insurance strategy, income supplementation, social and employment services and federal-provincial cooperation.

Do you sometimes get the feeling you're just plain being bamboozled?

One dog takes a bath in style



by peter brouwer

Several years ago when our brood was quite little, I used to come home Friday afternoons to babysit, while mother went to town for a load of groceries and things.

Over a few beers one night I had managed to squeeze the Friday afternoon-off concession out of the managing editor of the paper I worked for. The deal was that I'd take home a huge envelope full of CP wire copy to edit at home ready for Monday morning setting

Usually this worked out very well. But one Friday afternoon the copy was extremely interesting for some reason, and I forgot about the baby sitting job—the kids were in the fenced backyard—for about half an hour.

Having processed at the kitchen table a particularly massive story, I went to check the yard All was quiet. Everyone was gone.

A frantic search of the neighborhood followed. Then a call for friends to reinforce the search party. No luck. Then a call to the police station, even more frantic

"Don't you worry about a thing," said Vince, the chief. "We'll find them in a jiffy." He put two men on the job. One, whose name was Sawchuk found them. They were waiting at the Four Corners (almost every town in Ontario has one of those) hand-in-hand

Armed with my wallet, they'd gone on a shopping spree of their own

The moral of this story, of course, is that when you're editing you should keep your wallet in your pocket.

Anyway, with the nice weather coming on, a lot of little ones will be escaping from backyards during the next few weeks. If yours do, don't hesitate to call for a Sawchuk. Every police department has several of them

With our youngest at age nine, we don't have the escapee problem any more. We now do the escaping. Take Sunday afternoon. We went for a nice leisurely drive in the country. The same three who went on that shopping spree, years ago, stayed home

When we came back, Number Two had the bathtub filled with bubbles and soaps of all kinds, and big curly black hairs—it was the dog's turn to have a bath, she explained.

And everyone who has a big dog knows that he'll like it in a big white tub so much more than downstairs in the laundry tubs. Right?

Easter movies?

While some theatres in the Ontariopolis region were showing such laudable Easter fare as Cinderella, Charley and the Angel and The Great Waltz, others featured The Valachi Papers, Vault of Horror, Kill, Kill, Kill and How's Your Love Life. It's enough to make one wonder whether that sacrifice some 2,000 years ago was worth it since it's message still falls on deaf ears.

Equality of the sexes has been achieved at Mother Bell. No, we're not talking about the fairer sex donning climbing spikes to shinny up a telephone pole: that's old hat. The new twist is that men have invaded a previously all-female domain—that of the telephone operator. It's really odd to make an operator-assisted call from Toronto and have the details handled by a disembodied bass voice.

We can only hope that the Ontario Society for Crippled Children receives donations for its Easter Seals faster than the news media receive its press releases One such missive dated March 12 arrived at our offices on April 17.

Any driver who has narrowly missed being involved in an accident because a dog or cat has dashed out onto the roadway will be heartened by a report from London, England that a court ordered a dog owner to pay $12,000 in damages for causing serious injury in a traffic accident. The unleashed dog ran into the path of a car, causing the driver to swerve and smash into another vehicle.

On the brighter side of things where animals are concerned, the fellow who submitted a letter to Readers Write a few weeks back asking for the return of his lost puppy reports that he had seven offers of new pups from readers. Who said the milk of human kindness had dried up?

We know it's silly, because the prime minister deserves time off just like the rest of us working slobs, but somehow it didn't seem right that with the tulips in full bloom on Parliament Hill and everyone taking advantage of the beautiful spring weather and the long holiday weekend to visit the nation's capital, the Trudeaus preferred to spend THEIR Easter in Hawaii.

We wonder how many of the "cute" little bunny rabbits and chicks that parents gave their children for Easter have survived the mauling and improper care that they were bound to receive?

We've heard of girls being paid for taking off their clothes, but paying somebody else for this "privilege"?? Somebody in Toronto seems to think he can swing it. He's formed the Mynah Bird Nudist Club and a three-month enrollment fee costs $15. Anyone interested in forming a This Week Nudist Club? We'll only charge $10 for SIX months!

Fears that intellectual eunuchs have infiltrated our educational system were strengthened recently when a reader informed us that his daughter was told she had to bring a copy of George Orwell's Animal Farm to school to prove the book really existed. She had written a book report on it and her teacher had never heard of it And we wonder why Johnny can't read?

She's rather Fonda the North Vietnamese

by tom douglas

Some more of those proverbial chickens have come home to roost

For years, our newsstands have been polluted with movie magazines sporting photographs of Jackie Onassis, Ethel Kennedy and Tricia Nixon under asinine headlines like: Will Tricia and Fabian Have The Baby They Both Desire?

The Americans treat their political personalities like movie stars, so it's only logical that the reverse would happen. Movie stars have come to believe that they are political personalities.

A case in point is Jane Fonda, the addle-brained daughter of actor Henry Fonda and an "actress" whose main claim to fame is that she was once married to a French film director who had previously been married to Brigette Bardot.

Miss Fonda was quoted by the wire services last week as saying there are no grounds to believe former U.S. prisoners of war when they say they were tortured by the North Vietnamese—and she defied them to prove it

"We have no reason to believe that U.S. air force officers tell the truth," she said. "They are professional killers."

She said she would eat her words if the liberated prisoners could prove their torture stories in an open forum, where they could be questioned, or in a court of law.

The Vietnamese are "a gentle people", she said

And Miss Fonda bases her feelings about the "gentleness" of the Vietnamese on the impressions she got during a two-week tour of North Vietnam during which she was shown exactly what the North Vietnamese wanted her to see.

Busybodies like Jane Fonda the world can do without. Thank the Lord she is only a silly young woman whose rantings can do little harm. Can you imagine how prisoners over the years would have fared if the likes of Miss Fonda had been on the prison camp inspection team?

The news items probably would have read something like the following:

Jane Fonda returned from Dachau, Germany today after a two-week tour of Nazi concentration camps

Miss Fonda said there was no truth to the rumor that Jews or any other nationalities were being put to death in the camps.

"Anyone who says he has been put to death by the Nazis is a liar," she said. "I challenge them to prove it."

Miss Fonda said she was treated with the utmost respect by the Nazis during her visit.

"They are a very gentle people. That Hitler is really cute. He loves dogs and little children and I actually saw him break out in tears when he lost a game of checkers to Martin Bormann."

Miss Fonda said there was no reason to believe the camp inmates who claimed they were being gassed by the Nazis, because they were "liars and criminals."

"They must be or they wouldn't be in prison, would they?" she said.

Rossland Park after hours

With warmer weather on the way, Rossland Park's swimming pool will soon be a popular spot

Your leisure time is important After a hard day's work, be it at the office or factory or simply managing a household, you have earned the right to unwind.

No matter how you choose to do so, Rossland Park's recreational facilities have something to offer

What better way to forget the cares of the day than by relaxing beside a swimming pool with your favorite drink at hand? Jump into the refreshingly cool water or merely let your Rossland Park neighbors do your exercising for you

Lifeguards are always on duty during pool hours and swimming instruction is available for the children and adults alike

If you're looking for something a little more strenuous, Rossland Park also offers two tennis courts where you can burn off those excess calories and have fun at the same time

Tennis has become so popular that it is sometimes very difficult to get time on any of the public courts in the area How convenient then to have two courts right at hand

For those residents of Rossland Park who like to get their exercise by going the gynastics route The County Club boasts a well-equipped gymnasium and exercise room

And of course once the exercising is done, those tired muscles can be soothed in the relaxing atmosphere of the Rossland Park saunas

One type of resident that Rossland Park attracts in particular is the horse enthusiast Where else could you enjoy the finest in rental accommodation AND have a riding stable within walking distance?

The Rossland Park Equestrian Centre has facilities for boarding your horse as well as rental horses. Riding lessons by a competent instructor are available at nominal rates

If your idea of unwinding doesn't include strenuous exercise, Rossland Park can take care of your needs as well

The fireside lounge of The Country Club has just the right atmosphere for friendly get-togethers Organized parties are offered on a regular basis or you simply have to get a gang together and make your own fun

Whatever way you like to spend your leisure time, there's something for you at Rossland Park Why not join us in paradise?

Sir:

In November, 1971 I tried to get Cable T.V. service and also in November, 1972 In November, 1972 I was told it would take about a week for hook-up. Finally in January, 1972 we got our cable hook-up sThe serviceman asked how I would like to pay it. I said I'd pay monthly He said they were trying to do away with monthly payments and it would be cheaper to pay six months I asked what the discount was, and he said he wasn't certain, but he thought it was around $2

I paid him one month and installation charges and said I would pay the balance when they knew what the balance was When I received my bill they charged full price for six months and no discount

I paid February and March per month, but when I tried to pay April 6 for a month they wouldn't accept my money. I received a letter that afternoon stating I had to pay six months in advance or sign for their pre-authorized chequing plan and if I did not, they would cut off my cable

When I said I didn't like either one of these plans as I see no reason they should have my money six months in advance with no interest or discount, they cut-off my cable April 10 It had taken quite a while to get it installed but only three days to take it out

I cannot understand why I don't have the right to pay monthly as many others do. If when signing the service paper the day the cable was hooked-up, there was an agreement to pay six months in advance with no discount why was I allowed to pay the first payment monthly?

I really enjoyed the cable and would still like to but not if I have to pay different than most other cable users. I would like to know if all our utility companies wanted this, would we heve to pay six months in advance?

Mrs. W. Snelgrove,
479 Rembrandt Court,
Oshawa.

This Week took Mrs. Snelgrove's problem to a spokesman at Cable TV who said the company asks for either a six month payment in advance or monthly pre-arranged chequing account payments "because that's the way we have our accounts set up".

The spokesman claimed Mrs. Snelgrove was told this upon installation of the service and she chose to pay six months in advance "but she never did". She added that the choice is not a contractual agreement.

"If they don't want either, they don't get cable," the spokesman said.

She also said Mrs. Snelgrove's claim that there was a discount for a six month in advance payment is false.

"We've never ever had a discount," she said.

Cable said it will not return Mrs. Snelgrove's installation fee, although, if she paid a month in advance and was disconnected in the middle of the month, she is entitled to 16 cent per day rebate.

Do you feel you have reached a dead end in your attempts to make a business, government department or other organization see your side of a problem? Why not contact This Week and let us look into the matter for you?

Oshawa's Youth Centre lets young people do their thing

Part of the success of the Youth Centre in Oshawa is that teenagers are involved in planning programs for themselves

As part of the Oshawa Recreation Department the Youth Centre's aim is to provide an opportunity for leisure for citizens of Oshawa ages 13 to 18

"The people you will find here should be here because of the programs offered," says Grant Southwell, assistant director of recreation for senior citizens and youth

"Our philosophy, which centres programs in and around the building on Centre Street, "is if the teenagers do come in, there is a variety of things for them to do and we are open to new ideas and suggestions"

Aside from holding weekly dances, craft activities and film nights the centre provides a place for teenagers to just meet and talk to each other as well as a point from where they can learn of other activities throughout the community

The Centre supervisor, Mert McDonald, says one of the most successful programs has been the 13-week activity nights at various Oshawa schools where two or three of the centre's staff supervise general activities from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. during the week

"The schools are spread out all over the city and for 25c kids can join in the activities there or at the centre or just sit around and listen to records," he says

Also for the 25c fee, teenagers can attend the dances held at the centre every Friday and Saturday night and for 50c when live entertainment is provided

"Last Saturday there were more than 200 here with a band and on Friday there were 180 without a band," says McDonald

He says the majority of youth who come to the centre are 15 or 16 and are in high school with younger children attending activities like "Go Fly a Kite" (a kite making course) on Saturday mornings

The centre is also used for youth-oriented groups such as Junior Achievement and space is available for community meetings regarding youth", he says

With people such as a qualified drama instructor for the theatre program at the centre, the staff numbers about five or six on the weekend and McDonald says they are hand chosen

"We do not advertise the people come to us and are generally about 22 to 35 years old," he says "Rather than university degrees, we look for people who are mature and responsible and able to relate to teenagers

The Youth Centre is also concerned with other aspects of youth such as summer jobs

"We try to keep abreast of what is going on and this summer I will be sitting on a regional advisory committee on Opportunities for Youth in Ontario and York Counties to see the overall picture a little better," says McDonald

He says that he has found what the teenagers themselves want most are unstructured programs and that the centre is constantly proposing new ideas which will hopefully interest them

"We are in the process of proposing a bike-hike for the 28th and 29th of April which will take us to the conservation area at Kedron with a camp fire type of setting," he says. "The cost will be $2 and include supper and breakfast the following morning before the 35-mile ride back to Oshawa the next day."

He hopes for a group of about 35 for the hike and also says the centre is looking at a proposal for providing bus transportation to Toronto for rock-concerts if there is enough interest among teens

McDonald, who is 22 remembers the importance of recreational activities during his high school years and says the youth of Oshawa are fortunate in having such a progressive recreational department

As far as looking ahead, the Oshawa Recreation Department is doing so all the time," he says. "It is one of the most progressive departments as far as youth programs are concerned

Husbands should be present at child's birth say readers

Sir: Although we are not normally the types for letters to the editor, the initiation of a discussion on fathers being permitted to participate fully in the births of their children prompted even us to write

As nurses, we travelled 25 miles to the Uxbridge Cottage Hospital so that we were able to make our daughter's birth in November 1972 an intimate and shared family experience

We had searched a 25 mile radius after moving from Toronto to find a doctor who would be willing to deliver our first child at home. In the face of established medicine we could find none who were willing to assist in our delivery in the most normal and natural setting an infant could be born into so we settled for a four-bed maternity unit with no other parents, a four-hour labour with no anaesthetics and we left the hospital for home three hours later For the next one we wouldn't use a hospital at all, doctor or no

What we advocate is prepared childbirth The mother and father both should start nutritional supplements so as to be in excellent health six months before conception The father should feel himself a part of pregnancy right from the beginning, encouraging mother's good eating habits, proper posture, no smoking, etc. A loving and tender relationship from the start builds happy families. Childbirth exercises for proper muscle tone to assure that mother will still look beautiful after the baby are a must Childbirth classes to learn proper breathing and relaxation for labour from those who have benefited from the childbirth experience are also essential Father can be a part of all these activities to prepare him for the most support during labour and delivery, rubbing mother's back to ease the tension and helping her to relax and control her breathing

What is essential is the father who wants to be there, to be first a part of a relationship and then a part of a family. From there it is the most beautiful and joyful experience two people can ever share together, and to miss it because of anaesthetics that render you with no control instead of complete control and extra needless time spent in hospital is to miss a great part of the meaning of life A father's support means everything

We have practical advice for those who cannot participate in their own childbirth because of antiquated obstetrics, so anyone is welcome to contact us We can only hope for a system of trained nurse-midwives with emergency back-up services through maternity hospitals such as have been adopted in England with great success

We can only say, in closing, that we are much higher people for sharing this experience together

C. J., Margaret and Sarah Hinke, Whitby.

Answers Christian Science critics

Sir: In a recent letter to your paper John W Knott made several statements about Christian Science which require comment

By quoting partially, inaccurately, and out of context from the writings of Mary Baker Eddy, his letter gives a very misleading impression of the theology of Christian Science, which fully acknowledges the divinity (though not the deity) of Christ

As Mrs Eddy writes in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 25): "The divinity of the Christ was made manifest in the humanity of Jesus."

This is in accord with her statement, which Mr Knott quotes only in part "Jesus Christ is not God, as Jesus himself declared, but is the Son of God

I can assure your readers that Christian Scientists love and revere Christ Jesus as the Savior of mankind who came to wake the world from the mortal, material misconception of life which is the source of all our ills and evils

Finally, Mr Knott's charge that Mrs. Eddy "borrowed" Christian Science from others rather than "discovering" it herself may be answered most simply by referring the reader to two recent works of exhaustive scholarship, "Mary Baker Eddy: The Years of Discovery" and "Mary Baker Eddy: The Years of Trial" by Robert Peel (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1966 and 1971)

As the Rev Lyman P Powell, a distinguished Episcopal clergyman and scholar, wrote in the Cambridge History of American Literature many years ago, "As a whole the system described in 'Science and Health' is hers (Mrs Eddy's), and nothing that can ever happen will make it less than hers"

Christian Scientists would go farther, however, and say that Mrs Eddy only discovered and set forth what is inherent in the New Testament itself

GM worker sounds off

Sir: General Motors laid the rule down that everyone must wear safety glasses They introduced new pretty lenses and made us subject to a fitting fee never paid before

I had my eye test the first week in February First they were too big to be worn, another three-week wait and they were so heavy they gave me a headache

The optician tried for a week to contact the safety department and I finally had to get him at the plant for authorization to cut the size of the lenses

It is now April and I still haven't got the glasses

A month ago I asked for a reading on the solder pot where I work The chief engineer said the fan was never meant to clear six solder pots as it now does They still haven't been to take the reading or correct it

Readers write

These are just two instances where the safety and well-being of GM's employees is utterly disregarded The union has held pre-negotiation meetings for over a year but GM has not moved on one major issue to date

Is painting a washroom or supplying a lunch table their idea of contract issues?

GM is throwing out crumbs but they are not fooling the members of Local 222. Even a dog has a clean place to lie and a clean plate to eat from

We want peace in '73 and they want profits, so let's stop fooling around and get down and resolve the real problems of the workers

Working conditions, speed-up, standards--these are the real problems and health and safety of the worker are essential

Painting is something you shouldn't have to be told about because under health laws it's required

Yes, we want peace in '73 and we are waiting for GM to get down and show us a sign they want it to

May Partridge

Agrees with Viner

Sir:

Thanks for your interesting issue of April 18, especially the excerpt from the Provincial Hansard

But, as an Oshawa taxpayer I particularly appreciated the pertinent letter from Charles R Viner, who resents our elected civic officials helping themselves (via by-law) from the public till

His last sentence expressed the "...hope that all taxpayers let their feelings be known..." So, as a fellow taxpayer I must say I agree with Mr. Viner

I feel our local politicos by autocratically increasing their own salaries for their part-time and voluntary jobs, lessen what little respect is still held for our nominal public servants

Further, I feel they show a measure of contempt for the people who elected them to office, and by their lack of reference to the need for increased salaries before the election reveal a touch of larceny by reaching for the city cash-box so quickly after the election

Pat Sullivan
Oshawa

Of bicycles and helping hands

Sir: Regarding young children with two-wheeled bicycles. I think it is a disgrace that parents are allowed to buy them

We have them on our street under school age, and they don't know the law and are looking all around and turning when they feel like it

If a motorist hits them the motorist is to blame I know because I have driven a car and I dreaded to meet children

You haven't the slightest idea where they are going I think 14 years old is plenty old enough for bicycles The police should do something about it

Regarding another subject, they have now an organization called the helping hand for older people to do housework

I understand the government have given them an allot- ment, but, it is up the end of May I wish it could be carried on as it keeps the elderly in their own homes

They don't have to go into a senior citizens home Also we pay our taxes and that is an advantage to the city

I also would like to say they do wonderful work and are so thorough. The pensioners cannot afford to pay the salary of a regular cleaning woman

I thank you for the other letters you printed It seems to me they have done some good Would you also put in if more people would write their grievances they might take some notice of us

A Senior Citizen

Leonard Rich honored

Sir: Leonard J. Rich, an employee of General Printers and its predecessor companies for the past 52 years, was honored by the management and staff recently on his retirement from active service with the company

As a special mark of appreciation the management established a scholarship fund in Mr. Rich's name in trust with the Board of Deacons of Whitby Baptist Church for the lifetime of Mr. Rich and in any event for a period of not less than 10 years

This fund will be used to assist a young person in the fellowship of Whitby Baptist Church. The presentation was made by V. A. Henkelman, president of General Printers

A presentation of a wallet and other gifts from the staff of General Printers was made by Edith Thompson, of the bindery staff, of which Mr Rich was superv

In summing up Mr. Rich's contribution to the life of General Printers, Mr Henkelman stressed the exemplary conduct that Mr. Rich displayed throughout the many years of service and the high degree of skill and responsibility he maintained in his work

Mr. Henkelman described Mr Rich's deep relationship with Whitby Baptist Church in the various offices he held and still holds

He remarked on the fine example of Christian stewardship that Mr. Rich exhibited both in his work with the church, and at General Printers

In accepting the many gifts from management and staff, Mr. Rich thanked everyone for their kindness and thoughtfulness

He recalled his early days with C.A. Goodfellow and Son of Whitby and sketched his personal history with the firms and their owners since joining the firm in 1921.

Mr. Rich will continue to reside in Whitby, and plans considerable travelling in the near future. His many friends wish him the very best as he, to use his term, explores beyond another bend in the road of life".

Council's 'secret' meetings good to the last drop

By Garnet Cowsill
Staff Writer

"Some people may call our coffee breaks secret meetings," says Mayor Jim Potticary, but he doesn't

The mayor made the statement in reply to an article in This Week in which one alderman claimed that city council tabled its pay raise by-law until Whitby council had decided on its pay raise—a decision he said was made at a "Secret" meeting

Alderman John Aker said that Oshawa council tabled its controversial increase so it could wait for Whitby and be able to point its finger at another council

"Now keep in mind that your 1973 council is sensitive to people," Potticary says. "Any political body that can't step back and take a look at the situation isn't doing its job But to compare us to Whitby, a town one-quarter our size, is ridiculous."

The mayor says council had originally passed a "legal" salary increase based on the amount of time councillors were putting in on city business

"But some people said we were rushing it and we were just taking this into consideration when we tabled it," Potticary says, adding that the by-law will be discussed during current budget debate

Asked why Aker would make such a statement if it were not true, Potticary's only reply was, "Aker is a fine young alderman. Maybe he was disappointed that night."

"Now keep in mind that when the motion was being presented I asked Ed Kolodzie (ratepayers president) and (Tom) Simmons (labor council president) if they wanted to speak and they both said no."

The mayor says when the bylaw is being presented again (probably next Monday), he will be asking both men if they want to speak again

"And I will let them know when the motion is being presented," he promises

At the Rundle

The mayor's coffee is pretty hard to swallow

by garnet cowsill

Mayor Jim Potticary disputes the allegation that a secret meeting took place in his chambers before council tabled its pay increase last week

The mayor says that although some people prefer to call such meetings "secret", he calls them "coffee breaks"

Can the people of Oshawa then forgive those aldermen, who before the mayor made his statement, were under the erroneous impression they attended a closed caucus meeting that night?

The whole thing, of course, revolves around Alderman John Aker's statement that a secret meeting in the mayor's office last council meeting decided that the pay increase bylaw should be tabled until Whitby decided its pay raise

Before the mayor's statement, Ald Alan Dewar said during that secret meeting (at least that's what he thought it was at the time) the point about waiting for Whitby had been raised, but that it only received "minor attention" from councillors

Son of a gun if Ald. Mike Breaugh and Bruce McArthur didn't think they were in a caucus meeting that night as well. In fact McArthur went so far as to say it was the last he would attend unless there was an absolute necessity for the next one

Unfortunately, the one who started all this hearsay about secret meetings and why council tabled the pay raise, Ald. John Aker, is out of town and can't reiterate his points

It could be that the mayor forgot to tell councillors that they weren't in a caucus meeting; they were only there to drink their coffee and gossip about their raise.

Whatever the case, I believe that governments do have the right to closed meetings. At the municipal level they are essential to properly debate land deals, reprimand an employee, or close contract negotiations

Everything else should be heard by the public. If not, there will always be someone in these types of meetings who disagrees with the meeting procedure or its concluding solution

There will always be a crack in the dam and some information will filter through to the public somehow Granted, it could be misinformation, but almost always, it will be information that is embarrassing to one group or another

As one alderman put it, "closed meetings always leave a bad taste in the public's mouth

Maybe the mayor should switch to a different brand of coffee One he could offer to the public which wouldn't be so bitter to swallow

Bikes put on block

The Oshawa Police Department will hold a bicycle auction at the police station Saturday beginning at 9 a.m.

A spokesman at the station says about 30 bikes, which were found by police but never claimed, will be sold to the general public

The bikes, some in almost-new condition, will include 10-speeds

Aker rapped by fellow aldermen

Alderman John Aker misled the public, say some aldermen

Last week Aker told This Week that city council tabled its controversial pay increase bylaw until Whitby council had decided on its salary raise

Aker said the move made in a closed caucus meeting held in the mayor's chambers was so Oshawa councillors could point its finger at another council

"I was quite surprised at Aker's interpretation," says Ald Bruce McArthur "I among many wanted open debate in conjunction with the current budget on the raise I don't want it rammed through without public input

He says Aker's statement was "short of amazing considering his leadership role in bringing the initial raise motion forward

He says he is against further closed meetings on the subject, or any other matter, unless they are absolutely necessary

"Secret meetings tend to leave a bad taste in the public's mouth," McArthur says

Ald Alan Dewar says the point about waiting for Whitby "was mentioned in passing by the mayor but no one took it seriously except Aker"

"I was highly disturbed by Aker's remarks and I think they misled the public," Dewar says "That was not the reason council tabled the motion. I can appreciate the fact that he was upset but I still think he should be more careful about what he says

Dewar says during the closed meeting there were several "mixed reasons for tabling the bylaw

"I didn't favor tabling the motion nor did I vote for it, but I was not strongly opposed to it he says. "I thought the public was waiting for debate on the issue at that point and tabling it would only lead to further suspicion

Dewar says he would have voted for the tabling motion if it would have been carefully explained to the public why it was being tabled before a vote was called. But it wasn't he says, so he voted against the motion

At this point I think we should very, very carefully examine why we hold meetings without the press or public," he says There are some exceptions to holding open meetings, for instance when a person or group is being jeopardized by having the public there But those exceptions should be few and far between

He says he intends to raise this point when there is open debate on the pay increase bylaw even though he will support that bylaw

"I think caucus meetings have had their day with this council," he says

Ald. Mike Breaugh says he and seven other aldermen wanted debate on the bylaw that night

"The rest wanted to wait for an outside report (on the increase), or for another council to take the heat of us or to discuss the matter during current budget debate, Breaugh says. "I think the last argument had more effect on the decision to table

Breaugh says he thinks Aker was wrong in thinking the bylaw was tabled for one reason only.

Mayor Jim Potticary, in a separate interview said there was not a secret meeting to discuss the issue

Some people may call our coffee breaks secret meetings," he said

Ald John Aker was out of town this week and unavailable for comment on the matter

Ald. John Aker has been taken to task by some of his fellow aldermen for his remarks last week concerning the tabling of city council's proposed pay increase. The others disagree that waiting for Whitby's raise was a major consideration

Hold that line

City council has held the tax line

When we say we're going to hold the mill rate, we mean it says Mayor Jim Potticary

The mayor made the statement while announcing that during council's next meeting, April 30 the board of control will present the city's current budget

Potticary says the budget has held the tax line as campaigning councillors promised it would This year's budget has kept taxes down "by a fraction of a mill," he says

Prefab is a dirty word in Orono--it's "factory engineering"

ORONO--Don't call them 'pre-fab' homes, they're 'factory engineered', says Arne Sorensen product marketing manager of GNC Homes

Sorensen is definite, in a nice way, about his company's product being called either 'pre-fab' or 'modular', even though the homes are actually built in a factory under assembly line and quality controlled conditions

The reason for these descriptions bothering Sorensen is that people yend to relate these terms to the rows of identical homes built during the last war, and todays 'factory engineered' homes are "nothing like" those.

Sorensen says there is a big difference between what is traditionally considered a pre-fab home and the homes built by his company. The differences as he explains them are simply, savings to the buyer in terms of time, and the wide variety of choice in design and price

Workmen put the finishing touches on one of the 'factory-engineered' homes that are being erected in Orono.

The idea of well-designed factory engineered homes came to Canada from America, where according to Sorensen, the concept has met with tremendous success, but for a very good reason; the quality of the home built

People in the beginning were skeptical about the idea, but the product itself was proof enough for them. The company has had great success from residents of the Ottawa area, where 400 units were constructed

In actual figures, he says that in the U S nearly 70 per cent of the housing now being built is of the factory engineered type, and now, the idea is catching on in Canada

GNC Homes are now completing construction of an 83-unit subdivision in the Orono area So far, 45 of the homes have been set up at the site

The unique thing about these homes, he says, is that from the time the buyer or dealer orders the homes until the two sections are actually put on the foundation at the site, everything is under the tightest control standards

Factors like weather labor shortage and material shortage don't enter into the situation at all in most cases, so that whereas in conventional home-building a multitude of problems can crop up to delay the completion of the home GNC can in many cases have the home completed in the factory, transported to the foundation site and installed within a two-month period

Quality is the watch word to the success of the homes, he says, and "nothing is left to guesswork, everything is thought out", from the type of design offered to such variables as weather and climate peculiar to the area the homes will be put in

An important aspect of the homes, says Sorensen, is the wide range of styles and prices, to cover all income brackets The homes are not actually cheaper on a market scale price, but there are savings in time and maintainence costs

Prices at the Orono site, including the lot and services, he says vary from $28,450 for the three-bedroom unit, to $39,000 for the larger four-bedroom home complete with garage and family room

These are not just pre-fab plywood boxes says Sorensen, but smart distinctive family homes, comparible to if not better than conventionally built homes

In some ways, says Sorensen, buying this type of home is similar to ordering from a catalogue. The buyer is involved in every step of the construction of the home, has total control over what he wants and gets delivery on time

In transit, the home is in two sections for easier handling, and on reaching the site, is lowered by crane onto the foundation. There are still odds and ends to be taken care of at the site such as hooking up plumbing and putting a final coat of paint on the homes, or in the interior, but this aspect, he says, doesn't take much time at all

The fact that the homes are built in the factory and can be ready in a much shorter time than conventionally built houses, means that the buyer could actually order one for Christmas and have it delivered on time

Bruce Affleck

Crown pleads guilty to being a ham

You've got to be a ham to be good

At least, that's the way Ontario County Crown Attorney Bruce Affleck looks at things

In order to be a successful trial lawyer or Crown, you have to have a great deal of ego," he says. "It's all a big act really

And, it's an act that Affleck, if he was a stage player, would get an award for

Since he was appointed the youngest Crown Attorney in the province in 1961 at age 29, a conservative estimate shows he has prosecuted more than 13,000 criminal cases

It is difficult to assess how many cases I lost,' he says "I'd say of the contested cases, maybe 40 per cent

Raised and schooled in Oshawa, Affleck says his parents both had university education and it was a natural assumption that he too would one day go to university

It was always indicated that I would either get into law or medicine. It was a sort of predetermined thing "

He took a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Toronto, and graduated from Osgoode Hall with a law degree in 1957

He opened up a small practice in Uxbridge and practised there until former Crown Attorney Alec Hall asked him to become assistant Crown in 1960

Now, he says, he would never want to do any defence counselling again

He has become noted for his prosecution work throughout the province, and perhaps throughout the country

He has been involved in famous Canadian criminal cases like the Stephen Truscott rape-murder trial in which the 14-year-old boy was sentenced life imprisonment

Just recently he successfully prosecuted the Windsor bank robbers who got away with more than $1 million cash in 12 minutes

I'm happy with my work," he admits "I feel I am performing a service to the community by seeing that the laws are applied fairly and judiciously

Sometimes I can help individuals either before or after their trials And of course, I revel in the glamor of the courtroom

Affleck says that justice is far more important to him than a conviction and admits that he tries to retain his own integrity during some prosecutions

"Justice is the fair equitable and mature application of the law in a given situation."

Compassion, he says is always a consideration in seeing justice done but it is a varied one "depending on the severity of the crime."

He believes in retention of capital punishment, he says, but is quick to add that "convictions deserving compassion will be commuted "

Affleck spends about 50 to 60 hours a week as Crown, and is one of the few Crowns in the province who still does his own court work.

He admires Canadian police

"I think Canadian police, on the whole, rank with the best in the world," he says. "They are well-trained and disciplined, and carefully overseen by the public and press "

The reported cases of police brutality, he says, are sometimes unjustified, although, he admits. "I don't deny the existence of police brutality "

Although he says his job is to prosecute and not assess the law, Affleck does find some antiquated laws, and gives the ones dealing with obscenity as examples But law reform, he says, is all a matter of continuous review

As a Crown prosecutor he says he does not question the ethics of a defence lawyer who knows his client is guilty before he comes to trial

"Every man has the right to a fair trial. The fact that he admits he is guilty to his lawyer is inconsequential Laws are made to protect the innocent and not the guilty, but in the process they sometimes do.

He says he is a great believer in the old adage: "It's better to let 1,000 guilty men run free, than to convict one innocent man "

Bruce Affleck

His most challenging case, he says, was the Windsor robbery where he was up against four of the best criminal lawyers in the country The cases most difficult to contend with on an emotional basis, he says, are the sexual assaults of children

He hasn't really thought about what he wants to do in the future.

I would consider a position on the bench if it were available, or maybe writing," he says. "I also consider myself a reasonably good teacher."

Broadbent questions UIC book

More proof of Unemployment Insurance Commission "clamp down" has been unearthed by Oshawa-Whitby MP Ed Broadbent.

The MP found out about a little booklet called When Your U I C Benefits Run Out, What Then?" Then he discovered it had been withdrawn after being "widely distributed".

He asked Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde in the House why the booklet, which bears the minister's signature, had been withdrawn

Lalonde replied that he had not even seen the brochure and so he could not comment

Basically, the booklet tells where to go and how to get social assistance from provincial and municipal welfare offices once UIC benefits become unavailable

'It may have been that Lalonde signed it, but was unaware of its existence," Broadbent says. "A man in his position signs a lot of stuff, and it could be he just forgot about it."

On the other hand, he says, the booklet could have been withdrawn because its contents may not have had clearance with the provinces.

The booklet has been re-issued since his question in the House, and Broadbent says as far as he can find out, there is no misinformation in it.

"I think the significance of the booklet is seen in connection with Manpower cutting a lot of people off (UIC benefits) by use of computer instead of personal interviews and the over-rigorous enforcement of the Act," he says.

"The booklet shows a shift of financial responsibility away from the federal government towards the provinces and municipalities. I think the booklet is part of the clamp down process of the UIC."

Broadbent says NDP policy has always been that people who have been "cheating" with UIC benefits "should be dealt with in a firm way."

He terms the recent government action in the matter "over-reaction" that was caused by the last election

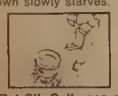
How to get your lawn in shape this Spring

by John Bradshaw

First, feed the lawn

"You must feed early. I feed my lawn just after the snow melts and when the ground is firm. "Why? Soil cannot release existing food to the grass until early May, when soil gets warm enough. Result? The lawn slowly starves.



"But CIL Golfgreen can start feeding your lawn as soon as the soil starts to thaw. By feeding early, you take a great first step towards your Perfect Lawn.

"Gently rake away the thatch of leaves and debris Use a spring-toothed rake.

"Apply CIL Golfgreen at 20 lb./1000 sq. ft."

Note: it is not necessary to water after this Spring application of CIL Golfgreen.

May — wipe out crabgrass, weeds, grubs

"As the soil warms up, crabgrass and weeds begin to grow. Ants, grubs and wireworms get hungry.

"There's only one product in Canada that can control crabgrass, weeds and insects with one treatment; CIL Lawn Doctor". Quite honestly, it's the best all-round lawn treatment I have ever used. It controls:

Crabgrass. Chickweed. Plantain. Dandelion. Annual wild grasses. Ants. Wireworms. Sod webworms. White-grubs and many more lawn problems.

"To get full benefits, CIL Lawn Doctor must be applied before the crabgrass seeds begin to germinate.

"Apply during the first three weeks in May, before the apple and lilac flower buds are open.

a) Mow the lawn three days before application. Then rake off all dead organic matter—leaves, twigs, grass clippings. Avoid using organic top dressings like peat-moss at this time since they can stop Lawn Doctor working.

b) Choose a sunny morning. Apply at 20 lb./1000 sq. ft.

c) Wait three full days before watering or mowing the lawn. Then water generously.

"Make sure you get CIL Lawn Doctor. Nobody here makes anything like it. I know — I've tried them all."

You can still roll your own grass without getting busted

The ravages of winter are quite noticeable with the first outings of early spring and one blighted area can be found in your own back (or front) yard.

"Lawns take quite a beating during the winter months," says Herb Lamers, owner of King West Garden Centre in Oshawa. "People see humps and hollows where the frost has caused heaving but there's more to it than meets the eye and it isn't all bad."

Apparently, below the lawn's surface, there are cracks and crevices which Lamers says can work to the home owner's advantage in preparing the lawn for summer.

"When fertilizer is applied to the lawn after it's been raked in early spring, the tiny pellets trickle down into the cracks and crevices and are dissolved by the existing supply of soil moisture," he says

"The result is the nutrient solution is then absorbed by the roots of the grass plants."

He explains that like other plants, grass lives on a liquid diet and the essential plant food within the soil, be it put there by nature or man, must be changed into a solution before it can be used by the plant through its network of fine feeding roots.

"This is one of the basic principles associated with growing things in your garden," he says

Lamers suggests when cleaning up the lawn in early spring, it should be dry enough and firm enough to be walked on without leaving footprints and then gone over lightly with a broom rake

"Remove dead leaves, twigs, and loose dead grass but don't try to rake out all the dead grass because what's left rots and adds humus to the soil," he says

The broom rake with its flexible steel prongs allows a sweeping action geared to the main objective of removing loose debris from the lawn surface.

Don't use a conventional steel rake for this purpose, he warns. "It is too severe and may rip out grass roots"

After completing the raking, a 10-6-4 turf fertilizer benefits the grass roots and stimulates the development of grass more than weeds if done early in the spring, says Lamers

One of the grass weeds is of course crabgrass which he says can be expected in a lawn that contained crabgrass the year before because its seeds germinate in early spring appearing with broad, sharply-pointed leaves in June

"If crabgrass has been a problem in your lawn use a 10-6-4 fertilizer that contains a crabgrass killer when giving the lawn its early spring feedings," he says. "In this way, you get rid of crabgrass in your lawn by destroying the germinating potential of the seeds and feed your lawn at the same time"

Having completed the raking and feeding of the lawn, he suggests it then be rolled when the soil is still moist but not so wet that footprints show or water "squishes" out along the edges of the roller

"Rolling is not done to make the lawn area level, but to repack the heaved and frost-loosened soil of the grass roots," he says

Lamer says a lightweight roller using water for ballast should be used rather than a heavier one used for grading since in early spring this would compact the soil to such an extent that moisture will be prevented from penetrating and getting down to the grass roots

"Small uneven areas on a lawn surface can be levelled out by topdressing with screened topsoil which is reasonably free of weed seeds," he says "Generally, no more than an eighth or quarter inch layer of topdressing material should be applied at any time so as not to smother the roots. By making repeated applications over a period of time the uneven areas are gradually filled in"

For depressions on a lawn surface that are quite large, he says levelling out can be done by cutting the sod with an edging tool, if the grass is established and growing well, filling in the depression with a suitable soil mixture and then replacing the sod and tramping it down firmly

The area should then be kept well-watered for a week until it begins to grow

"In the event a lawn is terribly uneven, the most logical procedure is to rip it up and make a new lawn," he says, either by seeding or laying sod

John Bell takes time out to roll his own (honest, Inspector Powell, it's only tobacco) before getting back to rolling his lawn. The ravages of winter require rolling and re-seeding in order for lawns to be healthy through the summer.

Glenholme pupils are playing the gracious host this week

Some of the students of Glenholme School are using this week to brush up on their French

Although the language is not part of the curriculum at the school for retarded children, five of its students are conscientiously preparing for an exchange program which will take them to Quebec

"The difference with this exchange program is that the young adults from the Oshawa and District Association for the Mentally Retarded will stay with the four visiting students from Pointe Claire while they are in Oshawa this week and then go back to Quebec wib them on Saturday for a week," says Susan Johnston, teacher of Glenholme School and chairman of recreation for the association

The trip is federally funded as far as the air fare and the individual parents of the participating young people, ages 17 to 20 in the Oshawa group and 20 to 25 in the Pointe Claire group, will provide room and board

"When the Quebec group arrived, they were entertained at a reception held for them at the school and settled in with their hosts Tuesday night," says Miss Johnson.

During this week the visiting group will be given a tour of Oshawa and extensive recreational programs have been planned including swimming and visits to the Glenholme Retarded Workshop and School as well to the Ontario Science Centre.

It is hoped by the association that this pilot project will give the young people a social experience of living with people in another setting as well as such educational things like geography

"Our aim is to provide an experience for them and to get them out to meet with their contemporaries and do the things other normal people do," she says. "We are finding out that the retarded person can do these things and are surprised at their understanding. They deserve the opportunity just as any other child."

Miss Johnston will accompany the Oshawa group to Quebec on Saturday

Young musicians tune up for the Kiwanis Festival

Oshawa's second annual Kiwanis Music Festival gets underway today with well over 600 entries received for the 184 classes of competition

Classes include just about everything—from vocal solos to choral groups, from woodwinds to strings, from organ to accordion And something new has been added—sight reading

Adjudications are being held in the McLaughlin Public Library St. George's, St. Andrew's and Simcoe Street Churches and Eastdale and O'Neill Collegiates

Graded piano solo classes were held today at the library and tonight there will be classes in the baroque and classical section

Elementary and high school bands held forth at Eastdale this morning and afternoon

Mayor James Potticary will open the festival tonight at 7 p.m at O'Neill Collegiate The string orchestra and open brass band competitions will also be held tonight at O'Neill

The public is welcome at all adjudications for which there will be a nominal charge of 25c

The Festival of Stars a concert featuring the outstanding competitors will be held at Eastdale Collegiate auditorium on Friday, May 4 commencing at 8 p m

Admission for this concert will be $2 for adults and 50c for children Tickets are available from all Oshawa Kiwanians, Wilson and Lee Music Store, Alto Music Supplies, The Canadian Conservatory of Music and the Canadian Automotive Museum

Adjudicators for this year's festival include Professor Donald McKellar, of the University of Western Ontario, Jeanne Pengelly and Andrew Markow of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, Giles Bryant, Director of Music, Upper Canada College and Boris Berlin of the University of Toronto

Sweet music

Erika Igracki, 13, a student at the Canadian Conservatory of Music, samples a chocolate bar from a box she will be selling to earn a registration fee for the Canadian Music Festival in June.

Durham Summer Courses
CONTINUING EDUCATION

STARTING THE WEEK OF APRIL 30th, Durham College features a summer program intended to help students complete a certificate program, or to give new students an opportunity to prepare for new career opportunities through continuing education. Special Interest courses are included to enable you to make the most of your leisure time. All courses are are subject to a minimum enrollment requirement.
TO REGISTER, write or phone the registrar's office to obtain an official application form. Phone 576-0210 (extension 244) daytime only, or write Durham College, Box 385, Oshawa, Ontario L 1 H 7L7. You can register by mail or in person at the college anytime during the day, and the evenings of Wednesday April 25 and Thursday April 26 from 6:30 to 9:00 p.m.

BUSINESS ORGANIZATION (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This course is a study of the functions of business enterprises and an analysis of the fundamental principles and motives that influence the behaviour of business institutions. Fee for 17 sessions is $30

MATH AND STATISTICS (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This course covers the development of practical skills in the area of business statistics. Emphasis is placed on the comprehension of statistical theories and their application to business problems. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

ECONOMICS (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p m. starting May 1) A basic introductory course with concentration on the price system as it regulates production, distribution and consumption. The main areas studied include the monetary and banking systems, the composition and fluctuation of national income, and the major considerations of economic growth. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

MARKETING (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) A study of the fundamentals of marketing, including consumer studies, marketing research, product development, promotion, pricing, and channels of distribution. Fee for 17 sessions is $30

DATA PROCESSING (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p m. starting May 1) The objective is to provide the student with a basic and thorough understanding of the principles of the basic methods of data processing as they are applied to the business environment. Course covers manual, semi-manual, unit record or punch card, and electronic data processing with an introduction to programming, stressing business applications. Fee for 17 sessions is $40.

PROGRAMMING 1 (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This course covers the basic fundamentals of the Cobol programming language, and its use in business applications. Assigned problems are coded, punched, and processed by the students using the GE 415 computer. Introductory Programming or equivalent is a prerequisite. Fee for 17 sessions is $40.

SYSTEMS AND PROCEDURES (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) A basic course which includes such topics as flow charting, systems analysis, preparation of management manuals, forms analysis and design work, measurement records, management, systems planning and control, simulation, PERT and CPM. The course also includes a sampling of common business systems designed for manual, semi-automatic, punched card, and EDP applications. Fee for 17 sessions is $40

EFFECTIVE SUPERVISION AND THE HOSPITAL PLAN (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) Nursing Administration students will study current behavioral theory and research with application to such problems as hospital staffing, supervision, and in-service education. Fee for 17 sessions is $30

LAW AND HOSPITAL ADMINISTRATION (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This course is designed to give the Nursing Administration student an understanding of the basic fundamentals of legal problems, and the laws affecting hospitals. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

HUMAN RELATIONS (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m starting May 1) This course in Human Resources Management will consider the broad implications of human relations to the work situation, with particular emphasis on the relationship to the management function. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

OFFICE PROCEDURES (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This course in Secretarial Development is designed to provide a fundamental knowledge of office systems and procedures, which when implemented can do much to improve the organization and efficiency of office work. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

TYPING (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This introductory typewriting course is an intense and thorough course in touch typewriting, including letter styles, tabulation, centering, reports and manuscripts. This course is designed to give secretarial competence in the operation of electric typewriters with speeds of 40 w.p.m. or better. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

EFFECTIVE READING (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This course is designed to improve reading and listening skills to assist you in getting the most value from your readings and discussions. Careful evaluation and an individual program designed to suit your abilities, create an excellent learning situation to achieve individual and course objectives. Fee for 12 sessions is $30.

KEYPUNCHING (Mon. & Wed. 7-10 p.m. starting April 30) The Durham Keypunching Course is designed for both elementary beginners and experienced persons wishing to review the techniques and improve their skill level. Training will be given on an I.B.M. Model No 029 Keypunch, with a familiarization course on a Honeywell Key Tape System. Fee for 75 hours is $50

REPORT WRITING (Mon. & Wed. 7-10 p.m. starting April 30) How do you communicate best in business and industrial settings? This course examines written methods, and involves students in practical writing projects such as speech writing, business and industrial reports, job applications, and other forms of written communication. Fee for 8 sessions is $20

LABOUR DEVELOPMENT (Tues. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This course will present a brief history of the development and impact of the labour movement to the present. It will consider the economic characteristics of labour problems, the theories of labour movement and patterns of growth. It will study the processes of collective bargaining. Fee for 7 sessions is $20.

COMPUTER SCIENCE (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m starting May 1) Introduction for FORTRAN Programming, using the GE 415 system and FOCAL Programming using the PDP-8S. The course deals mainly with numerical techniques which are suited to computer applications. Throughout the course the hands on approach is taken, and students will learn the operation of a computer system. Fee for 17 sessions is $40

N/C MACHINE TOOLS (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) Students taking this course will benefit from having taken Computer Science as a prerequisite. The course will cover the economics of using numerically controlled machine tools in specific applications. Manual programming, point to point and continuous path contouring will be studied. Students will have the opportunity to run programs on the 3 axis continuous path Hillyer Milling Machine Centre installed at the College. Fee for 17 sessions is $40

COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY 1 (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) The suggested prerequisites for this course are Computer Science and Electronic Fundamentals. Advanced programming techniques will be introduced in Computer Technology and the elements of computer hardware design. Students will study a basic assembly language and machine language programming. An introduction to the problems of interfacing a computer to other equipment and systems will be taught stressing both the software and hardware problems. Fee for 17 sessions is $40.

LOGIC AND COMPUTER CIRCUITS (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) The emphasis in this course is on the use of non-linear integrated circuits in logic and counting circuit design. The design of discrete device saturated switches and multi-vibrators is covered in the initial stage of the course. The program is based on the application of Boolean algebra, binary arithmetic and maps. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

ELECTRONIC CIRCUITS (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This is an integrated lecture-laboratory program in which the fundamentals of electronic circuitry are examined. Circuits discussed in the lectures are built and tested in the laboratory. Emphasis is placed on relating the contents of the course to current electronic devices, compnents, equipment and techniques. Fee for 17 sessions is $30

ELECTRONIC LABORATORY 1 (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) Prerequisite is Electronic Fundamentals or Electrical Fundamentals. This course is designed to provide practical work for those interested in Electronics, and who are unable to gain practical experience in this field at their place of employment. Fee for 17 sessions is $40

GENERAL CHEMISTRY (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m starting May 1) This course stresses a basic understanding of chemical behaviour with the emphasis being placed on applications to realistic problems. General Chemistry assumes a prerequisite of Grade 12 Chemistry. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

MATHEMATICS 1 (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This course is given at the approximate level of Grade 13. The main subjects covered are algebra, logarithms, trigonometry, arithmetic and geometric progressions, complex numbers and quadratic equations. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

MATHEMATICS 2 (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) Course covers Revision of Logarithms and quadratic equations. Equations of higher degree. Synthetic division with application to rational and irrational roots. Determinants and matrices. Basic definitions and properties, solution of linear equations and inverse of a matrix. Arithmetic and geometric progressions. Fundamental trigonometrical identities. Plane analytic geometry. The straight line circle, parabola, hyperbola and ellipse. Introduction to statistics and probability. Basic differential calculus and fundamental application. Fee for 17 sessions is $30 MATHEMATICS 3 (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) Mathematics 3 is a Calculus course stressing first principles rather than applications. The introduction to Caluculus covered in Mathematics 2 is an essential prerequisite for Mathematics 3 . Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

PHYSICS 1 (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May1) The prerequisite for this course is Mathematics 1. Physics 1 is intended to lay a foundation in general physical principles and laws which will assist students to gain an understanding of their practical applications in the branch of technology they elect to study. Fee for 17 sessions is $30

MECHANICS 1 (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p m.starting May 1) Mechanics•1 is an introductory course in statics and dynamics. In general, the treatment of topics tends to be quantitative rather than qualitative. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

DRAFTING (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This course covers the fundamentals of engineering drawing and engineering drawing standards. The course is very general and forms an excellent introduction in this subject to any branch of technology. Fee for 17 sessions is $30

MATH FOR STATIONARY ENGINEERS (Tues & Thurs.,7-10 p.m. starting May 1) This course covers mathematics at all levels and is of varying length and the fee is dependent upon the particular situation

HOUSEHOLD ELECTRONICS AND ENTERTAINMENT SYSTEMS (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) Course covers intercoms, dimmers, heat controllers, humidity control, automatic outdoor lights, ground fault pool protection, stereos etc. Fee for 17 sessions is $40.

MECHANICS OF MATERIALS 1 (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) Uni-directional stress and strain. The effects of cold working, fatigue, and creep on ultimate failure. Pressure vessels. Torsional stresses in shafting and rivetted and welded structures. Shear and bending stresses induced in beams due to bending Composite beams. Deflection of beams, Introduction to principal stresses and Mohr's circle.
Fee for 17 sessions is $30

SOIL MECHANICS Mon & Wed. 7-10 p.m. starting April 30) The following topics will be covered in this introductory course: Importance of Soil Engineering, Mechanical Composition of Soil, Weight Volume Relations, Capillary Tension, Permeability, Classification of Soils, Compaction, Shear Strength, Consolidations, Laboratory Test and Procedures, Introduction to Foundations. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

SURVEYING 1 (Tues. & Thurs. 7-10 p.m. starting May 1) Recommended prerequisite is Mathematics 1. This introductory course in surveying will cover measurement of horizontal distances, steel tapes, tape corrections, Tellurometer, subtense bar, basic construction, and use of transit, levelling instruments, plot of contours, profiles, topographic details, methods of stadia, traverse surveys and computations, double meridian distances, triangulation, simple curves. Fee for 17 sessions is $30.

INTRODUCTION TO REAL ESTATE This course is concentrated into three weeks, Monday to Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. beginning May 14. It is an intensive program intended for those wishing to go into real estate immediately. It is mandatory for everyone who desires to become a registered real estate saleman. Upon successful completion of the course, a pass percentage being a minimum of 75% the applicant must apply to the Registrar of the Real Estate and Business Broker's Act, c/o Department of Financial and Consumer Affairs for registration as under the Act prior to trading in real estate Fee for the 90 hour Durham course is $100. including the examination.

AFTER HOURS

The Night Squad laid down some good solid rock

Muriel Day and the Night Squad this past week at the Gold Rush (Central Hotel, Oshawa) a good tight Rock Group with a much better than average sound. Obviously well rehearsed this group plays Rock & Loud that you can listen to. Their long version of "Kiss Me Softly" was particularly good. Aside from a slightly overpowered bass the group comes across well. If there is a weak point, it is the Lead Guitar player and the inconsistent male harmony. But neither serious enough to really effect the overall sound. Their show also included a very solid "Up Country" version of "Nobodies Child" Muriel Day brings a slight Irish accent to the act which is a pleasant change. The male lead singer distinguishes himself by actually enunciating lyrics so that they can be understood Muriel Day and the Night Squad, a good sound not to be missed

At the Blue Horse Lounge (Hotel Lancaster) this past week, Chef Adams and the Adams boys. Four honest country musicians who play first rate traditional and modern country music. Chef is well known in the area as his career spans several years. Not only as a singer but as a song writer and record producer. The early crowd this past Wednesday evening contained many long time Chef Adams fans. They came to listen to Country Music "Ala Chef" and no one was disappointed.

Eating out

The Rib Room. Genosha Hotel. Oshawa Even though the time was just 5:30 on a Saturday evening, the Rib Room was crowded My party of three was seated at a small side table along the wall just steps from a fine looking but crowded buffet display The youngest member of our party (14 year old male) often referred to as a walking appetite was in his glory First trip to the buffet has number one son and myself taking large servings of corned beef and cabbage. A most unusual item for a buffet But I must add delicious The corned beef was lean and mild and the cabbage cooked to perfection from quartered heads They were well cooked yet remained crunchy. One interesting note here is that my wife has agreed in the future to no longer shred cabbage when corned beef is served at home Speaking of my wife, her first choice from the buffet was hot roast beef and vegetables which, from her report was first rate in every respect "All you can eat buffets" tend to bring out the worst in all of us and our group is no exception. Four subsequent trips to the buffet included the following: turkey a wide variety of salads salmon and shrimp in addition to more roast beef Most items on the buffet both hot and cold came off first class The two most noticeable exceptions were (A) the cold potato salad, which was flat tasting and rubbery and (B) The shrimp, although plentiful were not kept cold but had been allowed to sit at room temperature and this is always fatal for cooked shrimp

The service in the room was if anything a little over attentive

The Rib Room offers good value and a generally tasty buffet. Not displayed to its full advantage but well worth a visit Total bill for three including 2 drinks $21.10

Ontariopolis offers golfers the best

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

What a "super" weekend

Old man weather co-operated with great temperatures in the low 70s and unofficially golfing in the Ontariopolis region got off to another season

Normally Easter weekend is reserved for clean-up and other domestic duties However the golf courses were jammed in a preview of another long season

Actually golfing this early in the season is a rarity but most club managers claim that their courses are in excellent shape with only a few wet spots

Due to an early spring the groundskeepers have been able to groom the greens and fairways An excellent comparison is that the courses are as good as they would be in mid-June at this stage of the season

In our area all clubs are predicting banner seasons with the Grandview Course located in the east end of Oshawa announcing that it is officially closed for the season as a new housing development has taken over the grounds

Meanwhile golfers can still practise at Grandview but no upkeep will be done

Despite losing the old Grandview course which offered many challenging holes, Oshawa will be welcoming a new club called the Oshawa Airport Club located on Thornton's Road North

Last fall the club planted seed creating a late opening for this year John Elmhurst who has worked at the Pickering Dunbarton club has taken over as manager at the new Oshawa club

This new golf club will of course suffer from growing pains however great things are expected from this 18 hole 4 700 yard course

It will be a par 68 covering 11 par 3's and seven par 4's Green fees will be $3 50 on weekends and $3 during the week

Our Ontariopolis has other great courses to play and we're listing them for your convenience and pointing out the particulars surrounding each course

PICKERING-DUNBARTON

Clayton Gary is again back at the helm operating this course which is one of the best in the area Gary who operated an indoor golf school during the past winter will be a busy man this summer also operating the Morningside Golf Club in Scarboro

At Pickering the club is located on the Brock Road 2 Miles N W of Pickering telephone 839 3493

ARF director's

Many alcoholics were doomed from childhood to run into this problem

For self-conscious and often lonely Harold who works day after day on the assembly-line of a large factory the daily visit to the pub with the boys after work could very easily lead to a serious problem

The serious problem" Alcoholism

The disease is one to which thousands of Canadians succumb each year often unaware of the factors which brought it about.

There are three traditional theories held by researchers throughout the world as to the cause of alcoholism," says Wayne Weagle, Ontario County director of the Addiction Research Foundation

They include heredity psychological and physiological factors

There are people who feel and I am one of them that certain individuals have the inclination to become alcoholics due to any one or a combination of these factors," he says.

Weagle says that a "pre disposition" to alcoholism has been found in clinical studies to be determined by early parental relationships or the lack of significant ones.

"On the other hand," he says studies also show that a person may become an alcoholic no matter what the background

He says he feels however that most alcoholics do have such situations in their background and together with future significant situations the illness can emerge

The common characteristics I see in alcoholics is a feeling of inferiority and low self-esteem," says Weagle.

The same characteristics I see in a speed user

He says that if a person is pre-disposed to alcoholism or if he has a heredity factor (someone in his family who drank excessively), then has a job he dislikes and finds boring, these factors can, if not directly cause alcoholism, certainly contribute to it

"Some people find they become more aggressive when they drink and that it allows them to express themselves better," he says. "Most people drink to relax "

On the heredity side of the question, he says that one theory states there are certain genes although if most people looked back into their family they would probably find someone who drank too much.

'They may not have been recognized as an alcoholic but today with more sophisticated methods, the problem drinker is detected as such,' he says.

He also says that the heredity theory might involve environmental factors.

There is a high correlation between alcoholic parents and alcoholic children as in child abuse,' he says. 'Many parents who were themselves abused as children, abuse their children or else go to the other extreme with absolutely no physical discipline. THE SAME WITH ALCOHOLICS Two ext remes one or the other.

Weagle has visited all the chapters of AlAnon in Oshawa and Whitby and says these groups involving the family of the alcoholic are very good in enabling the child to become more aware of the problem

The psychological and physiological theories combine such factors as the body's inability to break down the alcohol in the system or someone who finds drinking helps him to forget his problems.

'He may start to approach all problems with the use of alcohol, not allowing himself to deal or cope with problems but rather to avoid them,' says Weagle. 'The cost of doing this can be very destructive.'

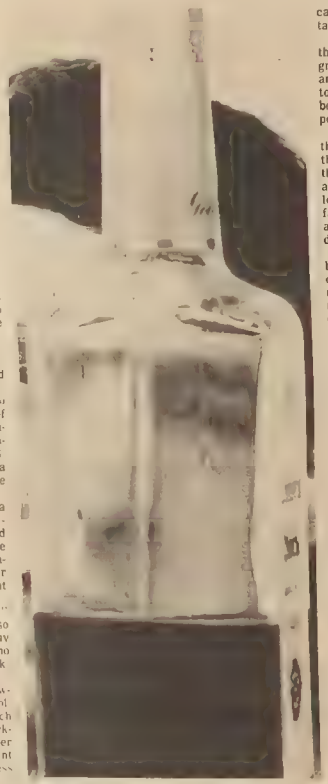
The average age of the alcoholic he sees is between 38 and 40 and he has found that many of these people started drinking at an early age, perhaps during the teenage years and that the problem is a progressive one.

'A person's tolerance and dependency builds up to the point of alcoholism often without the person realizing it He is the last to admit that he does have a problem

He has found that many teenagers are using the socially accepted drug, alcohol, now and agrees that there is as much pressure put on them to get 'stoned' by their peer group as when he was a youth.

'Parental use of alcohol can also have an effect on their children's use of it,' he says.

'If a kid sees his dad rush for a drink when he comes home each day, or his mother use barbiturates, he may think that's the way you're supposed to handle problems.



Many alcoholics had troubled childhoods that destined them to become slaves to the bottle says the Ontario County director of the Addiction Research Foundation.

Lacrosse players out for blood

A combined program to attract volunteer blood donors and to promote interest in lacrosse throughout Ontario is being conducted by Red Cross and the Ontario Lacrosse Association

A "free" admission ticket to any Ontario lacrosse game is being provided by the Lacrosse Association for each donor who attends a blood donor clinic from April 30 to July 25

It is estimated that 80,000 tickets will be distributed. Dates and times of local blood donor clinics will also be included in Lacrosse Association member team advertising

It is hoped that this program will improve blood donor attendance, particularly during the slack summer period, as well as generate enthusiasm for lacrosse, Canada's national sport

Pedalpushers must follow rules for safety's sake

You don't get much exercise turning the key in the ignition

So to combat creeping flabbiness and auto pollution as well, Canadians, in increasing numbers have taken to the roads on their bikes

But it's not that easy

The bicycle rider, whether it is the executive on his way to the office or the paper boy out on the route, must remember that he is driving a vehicle and is required to observe the rules of the road

Pedal pushers would do well to pay close attention to suggestions from safety guards

Observe traffic signals You wouldn't cross against the light if you were walking, the same should apply when you're on wheels

Use hand signals They're the same as they are for driving a car Left turn, left arm straight out. Right turn left arm pointed up at 90-degree angle. Slow or stop: left arm at 90-degree angle pointed down

Ride on the right Don't weave in and out of traffic

Ride in the same direction as traffic, not facing it

Be sure to stop, look—both ways--and listen at corners

See and be seen Don't ride at night unless your bike is equipped with a headlight and taillight reflector

Be alert Look out for turning cars, opening car doors

Let cars and pedestrians have the right-of-way

Don't be a clown. When you're on the road, don't act like you're part of a circus

When riding, do not hitch yourself to any other moving vehicle, such as a car, bus or truck

The regular seat, not the handlebars or the rear fender, should be used for sitting

Packages that prevent you from having at least one hand on the handlebars should not be carried by bike

Select a bike with safety aids, then keep these aids in working order. Get a horn or bell, a basket or carrier a headlight and a taillight if you intend to ride at dusk or in the darkness

Although you buy a well-constructed bike, these parts should be checked at least twice a year by a bike service-man

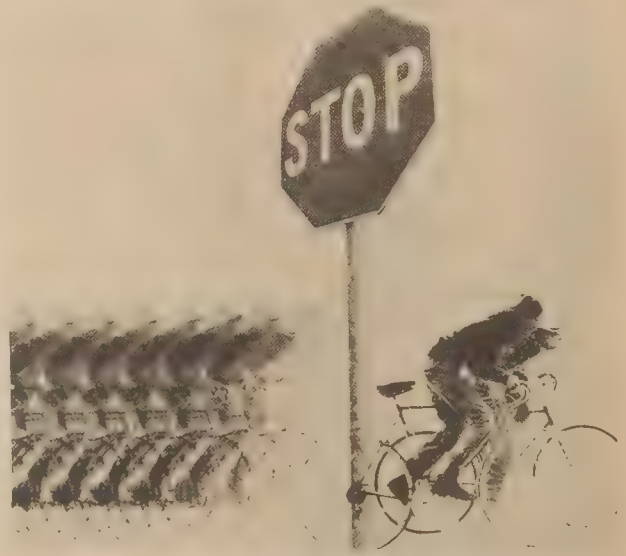
Handlebars. Cement loose grips and replace worn ones.

Tires and wheels Check air pressure Tighten wheel nuts and oil bearings

Pedals. Oil bearings Tighten spindles and replace worn-out treads

Seat Adjust saddle to body Tighten nuts

Coaster brake. Adjust it so it always brakes easily



The number of bicycle owners is increasing every year and unfortunately so are the number of bicycle accidents. Safety rules and regular maintenance must be the order of the day to avoid tragedy.

Bikes, like shoes, should be bought to fit the rider.

Pedal blocks won't help. Any Canadian made bike has a built-in allowance for growth usually seat posts and handlebar stems can be moved.

Parents should teach their children

Obey all signs and signals.

Look four ways at corners before riding on

Walk, don't ride bicycles across intersections

One answer to the bike safety problem is to improve attitudes and thus increase carefulness, since negligence is the cause of most accidents.

The place to start, perhaps, is with adults, especially parents of school age children.

seniority promotion

TORONTO — Seniority has been dropped as the major requirement for promotion by the Ontario Provincial Police

In place of this policy, the OPP has changed over to a promotion program based on a credit plan which operates on a point system

According to OPP Chief Inspector John McPherson the new program was arrived at in conjunction with the provincial ministry of education to determine promotions on a more equitable base

The new system, he says, is probably one of the best, and requests have been received from other police forces for copies of the credit plan.

Basically the plan operates in five areas, each area being assigned a given number of points, with the maximum at 100. Seniority has not been dropped totally in the promotional system, but incorporated into the credit system

In the new system, seniority is worth a maximum of 10 points. The officer is then judged on his performance by his superior officer twice a year. Performance counts for a maximum of 20 points

The next step is the district appraisals which are conducted by three senior people from OPP headquarters in Toronto. These assess how the officer would perform if promoted to the next rank, based on his past record. This is assigned a maximum of 20 points.

The fourth credit area is a written examination, which last year was taken by 2,200 constables in the province. The examination is worth 25 points.

The final test for the officer applying for promotion is the most demanding. He must appear before an oral board, made up of three senior members of the force

During that single hour, he is asked how he would react to given situations, why he decided on that particular course of action and judged on how well he expresses himself

This last credit area is worth 25 points, making up the 100 points in the new system.

This is not an automatic process since constables must follow guidelines in applying for promotion They can write for promotion to corporal after five years as a constable, for sergeant after two years as corporal and for commissioned officer after two years as sergeant

Although McPherson says the new system is not perfect, he thinks it's fair and has been widely accepted by the force

Oshawa girls go on to gymnastics finals

The Oshawa Gymnastic Club recently hosted the Regional Gymnastic Championship Meet held at Eastdale Collegiate and the final result have now been tabulated.

Teams in the Argo Division (under 12 years) and Tyro Division (under 14 years) were entered by the local club.

These teams are coached by John Liston and Diana McNaney.

A total of 70 girls competed in the two day event in which the Oshawa Club made a strong showing with ribbons being awarded to four of its members.

Results are as follows

ARGO DIVISION

Wendy Barden 4th Vault (Compulsory) Andrea Whyte 5th Vault (Compulsory) Wendy Barden 2nd Bars (Optional) 5th Vault (Combined 2 days) 5th Bars (Combined 2 days) Andrea Whyte 5th Vault (Optional) 6th Vault (Combined 2 days)

TYRO DIVISION

Judy Lodge 6th Floor (Compulsory) Carol Victor 4th Vault (Compulsory) Judy Lodge 5th Beam (Optional)

Overall team standings showed the Oshawa Argo Team in fifth place while the Tyros gained fourth position.

the future as the local club has been in operation only four years and was competing against older and more experienced clubs.

Two Oshawa girls, in the Argo Division, Wendy Barden and Andrea Whyte will compete in the Provincial Championship on May 12.

Joan Bryce is new ladies president at curling club

Joan Bryce has taken over the president's chair of the Oshawa Curling Club ladies section.

Joan replaces Eileen Goulding who did an outstanding job this past winter.

Mrs. Goulding received a president's pin for her contribution towards curling and offered her experience to the new executive for the upcoming season.

Joining Joan Bryce as president for the new season are June Moore first vice, Joyce Black second vice, Islan Davidson secretary, Erla Johnston treasurer, Helen Glover social secretary, Diane Alexander press secretary, Barbara Tressise bonspiel chairman, Millie Olynyk, interclub bonspiels, Colla Cook out-of-town bonspiels, Mary McLean games and Doris Perkin house and Ella Dawson membership.

Joyce Alexander will be handling the social end of things.

Eggstravaganza was worth it

You got your $2 worth if you attended Easter Eggstravaganza last Sunday night

This is the concensus of those who did attend the benefit in support of the Ajax-Pickering-Whitby Association for Retarded Children held at Oshawa Civic Auditorium

"We were quite thrilled and very pleased at the reception the performers received," says Lee Dooley, member of the association and coordinator of the benefit

Performers to name but a few who donated their time and talent included the cast of Godspell, Shirley Eikhard, Jack Duffy as Master of Ceremonies and Glenn Smith who brought the audience of an estimated 2,000 to their feet during the finale

Jean Christopher in the Eggstravaganza all star show.

Smith helped organize the benefit from its beginning and although it is not yet known exactly how much of a financial success Easter Eggstravaganza was, his thanks to the enthusiastic audience was more than that of an entertainer but of a father whose son receives help from the association

"Glenn was so happy to do it," says Mrs Dooley. "He said he would love to come back again."

FEAR IS THE WORST ENEMY OF HEALTH

Fear can actually make an illness even worse and sometimes fear of being sick can even bring an illness on. There have been many instances of people suffering greatly from something that started as an imagined sickness

The first step in overcoming fear is in getting regular health check-ups. The next is to see your physician at the first symtoms of an illness. Then, follow his advice and take the medicines he prescribes. Our drug stocks are complete and we can dispense any physician's prescriptions.

"A great many people have chosen us to be their personal family pharmacy. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty, and will do all we ethically can to live up to it. We welcome requests for delivery service".

Up With People needs to be put up by people

People, please put up "Up With People."

"Up With People" is a musical team of 110 young people from many different countries of the world who are coming to Oshawa with their two-hour musical spectacular

They will perform at the Oshawa Civic Auditorium on May 1 at 7:30 p.m. prior to which they appeal to the residents of Oshawa to take members of the cast into their homes

Skip Searcy, a member of the group, says Up With People is an educational program operated in conjunction with the University of Arizona in Tucson, Arizona.

"The youths (ages 17 to 25) spend a year of their lives travelling, performing, studying and spreading the word of an involved generation, he says. "These students come from all walks and various cultures and stay in many different types of homes."

Searcy says the two-hour show will contain original contemporary music combining rock jazz, country and folk with fully choreographed staging and lighting

Members of the Up With People singing group are in need of accommodation during their Oshawa stay

Since it its incorporation in 1968, "Up With People (a non-profit organization) has performed in 28 countries on five continents and through live performances and television coverage such as the one hour special seen last Thursday, April 19 at 10 p.m. on the CBS network.

Tickets for the Oshawa performance of "Up With People" are $3.50 with a 50c discount for students and senior citizens and can be purchased at the Civic Auditorium box office, Sports Villa in Oshawa, Centre Smoke Shop in Ajax, Bowmanville Travel Centre and Donald Travel in Whitby

Also, if you would like to have an Up With People member become part of your family for four days (April 29 to May 2) call: 576-6251

FAITH OUR TITLE DEEDS

Part 3.

In our last study, we saw that faith was our title deed. We said that things hoped for, the substance of things not seen, it was therefore that we look back, spoken and invested. He made the worlds. Now, things that no one can see. The title deed of all God's faith or title deeds depends on God having spoken.

God has revealed His will and He has done so in the book we call the Bible. The Bible covers a period of over 6000 years. During that time God revealed Himself and His ways to different men at different times, in different ways.

God dealt with Adam differently after the Fall than He did before the Fall, not but as God had changed but because Adam had. He dealt differently with the nations after the call of Abram than He did before Abram's call. The more that the Bible is studied the more it will become that God has dealt and promises little to different men and nations. Not all the promises that God gives are the same nor are all the promises of God to all men. If we are to properly understand the Scriptures we must realize that God has given different title deeds to different people. We must not take to ourselves or allocate to others promises or title deeds which God has never given us or them.

Many, have a people adhere to the fact that they have little faith. As much as many would like to have faith they are at a loss to know how to obtain it.

D. L. Moody, the well known Evangelist of a by gone era related the story of how at one time during his ministry he realized that his faith was not as great as he thought it should be. Although he had been preaching for many years he realized this lack within himself. Accordingly, he sought God in prayer that God might increase his faith. Pray as he would however God did not seem to be answering his prayers for his faith was not increasing. He then realized how that one day, during his reading of the Word of God he read the words, from Romans 10 17. So then faith cometh from hearing and hearing from the Word of God. At that moment Moody realized that what he had been performing God in prayer for was already available to him. He would but apply himself to the Word of God. God has said that faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the Word of God. Therefore if faith is to grow it will do so only as we read and study God's Word. God has provided no other way for the growth of our faith. Moody concluded his story by saying that from that day on he gave himself to a more diligent study of the Word and found that his faith grew just as God had promised.

Promoter Richardson has to be his own referee

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Fred Richardson Oshawa boxing promoter is an amazing man in more ways than one

First of all there is Richardson the GM stockman which is a full-time job Secondly Richardson the father of 12 children which is a full time job and thirdly Richardson the boxing promoter which is a full-time job

Actually 24 hours a day isn't long enough for Richardson the day is just too short

At 47 years of age Freddie has certainly led a full life no matter what way you look at it

A native of Oshawa Richardson has always been interested in the ring sport and worked out since he was 16 and at one stage of his boxing career was tempted to turn professional at Deacon Allin's gym in Toronto

He certainly had the ability and desire however decided against it. Richardson has always wondered just how he would have done against the pros

During his boxing career Fred had 29 bouts winning 18 losing nine (four only by unanimous decisions) and was involved in two draws

He claims the two best fights he was involved in were against Dave Venn who will be turning pro next month at age 22 and Jimmy Meilleur a veteran professional now

Richardson felt he couldn't do his family justice if he had turned professional back in 1960

Ironically Richardson's wife Dorothy has rewarded him with 12 children the first eight being girls

Included in the family are 19 year-old Lenora along with Marg Patti Carolyn Dotty Victoria, Sharon Cheryl two boys Mark and Ted and two more girls Andrea and Sara who was born just a month ago

Fred Richardson and his family

A hard-hitting middleweight, Richardson claims that boxing is coming back to the level it enjoyed a couple of decades ago.

Asked about boxing today Richardson said he feels that the sport is losing its toughness with all the safety rules being applied to the sport

Right now, the O.A.B.A. and the other group as Richardson describes them are always in a bitter argument over the running of the sport

He feels strongly that his side is going to win out over the long run

"You must remember that boxing has been going on since 700 BC remarked a knowledgeable Richardson, "and the level of boxing in recent years has gone down."

He credits his wife with being a major aid towards his success in the sport She's very understanding and likes the sport of boxing.

The youngsters today are no different than years ago claims Fred, and all the youngsters need today are the facilities and he hopes this will be overcome in the near future

Right now Grant O'Reilly, a close friend of Richardson, and himself operate the only clubs in town which are oversubscribed

Last Monday night, Richardson had himself another amateur card and it again proved successful. However you don't make any money at them from the promotion game

Naturally Richardson is hoping that someday he'll have the opportunity of training and managing a professional fighter and with his amateur program, his dream may come true

Parkway midgets take all

by Scott Mercer
Junior Hockey Writer

Undoubtedly the best midget hockey club to be seen in the last 40 years. That was the comment of many observers shortly after the Parkway TV Midgets had won the all Ontario Midget AAA championship

And who's to say it isn't true! None of the spectators at the two games will deny that the team is among the finest

They did indeed play two good games Playing in the northern city they defeated the New Sudbury North Stars 4-1 on Friday night and 9-4 on Sunday

The first game saw the team win but not in a particularly convincing way After a shaky start they gradually took over the play Goals by Ken Morden Brian Dramm Greg Gone and Glenn Kirkham along with a fine showing by goal tender Steve Bosco ensured the victory

The Oshawa quad again got off to a slow start on Saturday as the first period ended in a 2-2 draw From then on the game was Oshawa's in a walkaway

They counted five unanswered goals in the second period then two more in the third before Sudbury got its third marker

While his mates were busy scoring at the other end Steve Bosco the Oshawa netminder turned in a great performance He made several brilliant saves throughout the game to keep the momentum alive for Oshawa

Bosco who has had the bulk of the work during the playdowns was replaced by Paul Dionne late in the third period and was given a loud ovation by the Oshawa supporters

The largest ovation of all was of course saved for the end of the game As the Oshawa players and coaches poured off the bench at its conclusion they were given a standing cheer along with some happy chanting

Captain Brian McCron accepted the trophy for the team from the president of minor hockey Then, it was off the ice to the happiest dressing room scene of the year

The Sheraton-Caswell Inn, the team's temporary base was then the site of a wild celebration which lasted well into the morning Parents and players alike celebrated in one way or another

So, after an estimated 80 games this year, the Parkway TV Midgets are all-Ontario champs They are the first Oshawa winners since 1968, when the juveniles were champi-

Designated hitter ruling takes the dullness out

by jim shaw

Major League baseball in the American loop has taken a new look this season with the new designated hitter rule

A lot of people have mixed emotions towards this new ruling allowing a manager to hit for his weak hitters, mostly pitchers in a game

Naturally there are good reasons behind this First of course to supply more hitting punch thus resulting in higher scoring games and to speed up the game itself

This is a good idea of course as some ball games can really drag out over the course of a day especially when you're playing a doubleheader

The Senior circuit, the National League, are taking a wait and see type of attitude towards the American League's new ruling

Let's try and analyse this new set up in the junior circuit

First of all, baseball seems to be dying in the States where football and basketball have taken over from the so-called American pastime

The minor leagues of a few years ago have died as attendance in triple "A" or double "AA" ball draws fewer than a thousand fans a game

Remember the good old days at Maple Leaf Stadium when the Leafs use to play in the International League and drew about 15,000 every Sunday afternoon?

Now Toronto hasn't got a stadium or a pro ball team. This is the situation all over the minor league cities

Something had to be done. The season is longer and the players want more money and won't spend time working on their appreciationships in the minors, thus the American League is trying out the designated hitter rule

For years it used to take the pitcher endless minutes coming out of the dugout to select his bat, when you already knew that he would either strikeout on three straight pitches or attempt to bunt

Pitchers generally are not interested in hitting. Their bread and butter is based on wins, strikeouts, saves and ERA's.

Duffers have a wide choice of golf courses

Al Paterson, and John Elmhurst will be on hand until June

The par 70 course has five par 3's, 10 par 4's and 3 par 5's over the 6,018 yard layout

Longest hole comes on the first, a par five [redacted] yards and the shortest on the back nine par 3 in the 12th at 145 yards

Price range is $5 on weekends and $4 weekdays

OSHAWA GOLF

Regarded as the best in Ontario the Oshawa Golf & Curling Club has a familiar ring and this private course is again in top shape under the watchful eye of club pro Hal Butler

There are some wet spots on the back nine but this 18-hole 6,400 yard lay-out has pretty trees and surroundings for the better golfers

This year the club will have a new front hole in about six weeks' time

It has an excellent pro shop on the grounds The professional par 72 layout has 4 par 3's 10 par 4's and four par 5's

Longest hole is the 15 at 570 yards at par 5 and the shortest is a 130 yard par 3 on the 3rd hole

Located on Alexandra Street telephone 723-9542

PEBBLESTONE

The Sobil Brothers again have the Pebblestone course raring to go at their location at RR No 3 Bowmanville

This pretty nine-hole lay-out offers a good challenge for the novice golfer and the veteran An economical rate prevails with a $2 charge for weekdays and $3 on weekends

Despite being flat, the par 35 setup has 3 par 3's, four par 4's and two par 5's

Longest comes on the 8th an even 500 yards and the shortest the 4th a short 150 yards

A small creek offers up some interesting work trying to get over Telephone 725-7452

THUNDERBIRD-WHITBY

Wilson Paterson again has his championship layout in top form this spring

Paterson, regarded as one of best golfers in the area, takes pride in his Thunderbird setup which not only offers excellent golfing but an outstanding pro shop and restaurant

People haven't lived until they've tried Dick Ing's specials in dining

A total of 6,480 yards comprises the Thunderbird golf course and you've got to be good to make it with a par 72

Holes include four par 3's, 10 par 4's and 4 par 5's Longest hold is the 14th 596 yards on the back nine while the fourth is the shortest at 143 yards

There are many sand traps and six water hazards

Joining Paterson teaching this summer are Mike Quinn, Ken Richardson and veteran Herb Holshoberger along with Bill Ogle

Thunderbird is located in Ashburn with green fees $5 on weekends and $4 weekdays. Telephone 655-4952

ANNANDALE

Things look just "super" at Annandale as greenskeeper Paul Featherstone has done his job in making the grounds in "A" one condition

Manager George Kadaja reports his 5,712 yard par 70 setup is raring to go for the pro or duffer

After a good season last year, Annandale has rebounded to be one of the top golf courses in the Ontariopolis area

The 18-hole course has 3 par 3's, 14 par 4's and one par 5 with the longest hole coming in the 5th at 433 yards and the shortest on the 15th at 113 yards

There are six water traps

A club with excellent banquet facilities, Annandale is located at Church Street in Pickering

Martin Barrack will be the teaching pro this year Telephone 942-3210 Green fees are $5 weekends and $4 on weekdays

COUNTRY LANE

As usual, manager Larry Heffering has done his homework in getting his Country Lane course in top shape

The enlarged lounge proved successful with the patrons last season and Heffering is again banking on his capable assistant Brian Peters to do another bangup job this year

Located at the Fourth concession near Lynnbrook Park (telephone 655-3263) Country Lanes has 18 holes covering 5,102 yards

The par 64 set-up has 9 par 3's, 8 par 4's and one par 5 with the longest hole being the 17th at 530 yards and the 16th the hole proving the shortest at 165 yards

Country Lane has lots of watertraps Weekend fees are $4.50 and weekdays $3.50. A good place to golf with friendly surroundings

ERINLI-BOWMANVILLE

Leave it to veteran Les Smale and you know you'll be playing on a good course

That's the comments of many golfers who enjoy touring over the 18-hole course on the Taunton Road Smale has his club in top form and has already had a couple of busy weeks

The 6010 yard setup is a par 71 with 4 par 3's, 11 par 4's and three par 5's

There's a challenge on the 9th with a best water trap facing you. Smale a one man gang at Erinli boasts a 540-yard longest hole on the 3rd and the shortest the 4th at 120 yards

Special attraction are the five-day weekday membership at $60 with an added attraction of a heated swimming pool to cool off after a good round of golf

Further details by contacting Les Smale at 263-2293

NEWCASTLE

Just a few short miles away is the Newcastle 18-hole golf course operated again by Bob Simpson and his fine crew

With a well-stocked pro shop Simpson's 18 hole Newcastle club reports conditions are just great for the golfers again this year

The par 70 setup offers four par 3's, 12 par 4's and a couple of par 5's over the 6485 yards

Longest hole is the 11th at 570 yards and the shortest being the 153 yards on the second There are a lot of water traps

Telephone 987-4851 and Bob will roll out the "welcome mat

Green fees are $4 on weekends and $2 during the week

SUNNYBRAE-PORT PERRY

One of our favorites has to be the Sunnybrae course located in Prince Albert just south of Port Perry, one mile east of Manchester, telephone 985-2076

Veteran Pat Morrow says the back nine is still a bit damp and could be open this weekend Meanwhile the front nine is in great shape

The 18-hole course stretches 6,272 yards and has ample parking to handle all the business heading north

Set up as a par 71, Sunnybrae has 3 par 3's 13 par 4's and a couple of interesting par 5's

Longest hole is the 12th at 585 yards and the shortest the 16th, a tricky 135 yards

Lots of water traps and fees are $3 on weekdays and $4 on weekends

Special memberships are available for the family as well

BOWMANVILLE

Bowmanville Golf and Curling Club is a private setup and has nine interesting holes to play on.

Bob Burrows, formerly of Orillia, is again the bossman and has welcomed a new assistant this year—Al Gilbert also from Orillia

The nine holes stretch 3200 yards and are ranked at par 36

When the back nine is finally completed it will be a par 73. Longest hole is the fourth at 500 yards and the shortest the 3rd at 130 yards

The layout has two par 3's, five par 4's and 2 par 5's. There's a waiting list for membership so telephone 623-2670

Besides these interesting clubs there are plenty of driving ranges around to work yourself into the proper swing of things, and miniature golf courses for the would be golfers

Lots of fun this summer and don't forget to stay on the fairways

Tim Kelly 12, of Oshawa gets set to sink one on the ninth at the Oshawa Golf Club

ons in their division

Just as a note: in their 80 games, this cohesive unit has suffered only six losses and has been tied twice.

Rumors have been around for some time that Beefy Bathe will not return as coach Even though these are only rumors as of yet, one has to wonder what the team will do without his coaching and his bubbly personality

However, if he does decide to leave, he will go out in a blaze of glory having captured the coveted championship of Ontario and Sweden

On the brighter side of things, the future should be great for several players on the team. Some may play next year with the Junior "A" Generals while those who are unprotected may be drafted or play on the Junior B's

There is certainly an abundance of talent on the club

All that remains to be said about the Parkway TV Midgets before the records are closed for this year is the names of the players and coaches In numerical order, the 1972-73 all-Ontario Midget champions are

1 Paul Dionne
2. Marty Reynan Marcel Belanger
3. Jeff Keenan
4 Brian McCron— 'C
5 Kevin Glecoff
6 Bill Coe
7 Gary Lewis
8 Gary Sherban
9 Jim Duignan
10. Greg Bone

Sudbury puts the pressure on Parkway's goalie, but without success as the Oshawa team went on to take the championship.

Gaels look at rookies as season opens

Oshawa Green Gaels play their first home exhibition Ontario Lacrosse Junior "A" game Thursday at the Children's Arena against the Bramalea Excelsiors

Last night the Gaels played in Bramalea. On the weekend coach Ron Pither worked over 40 hopefuls in a full Easter weekend camp

Aiding Pither with the workouts were Larry Lloyd, Jim Hinkson and Joe Krasnaj, all former professional players with the Windsor Warlocks

Gaels will be using a rookie line-up in an attempt to take a good look at the newcomers into camp

Impressive so far has been Pat Blackwood, a left hand forward from St. Catharines, Dave Fitchett who sat out last season, Bob Flintoff an impressive netminder up from the midget all-stars, Murray Garrison who is attempting to crack the line-up after an impressive season last year with the Ajax Knights in Junior B, and 14-year-old Tim Wodniski up from the bantams

He's an impressive 5 foot 11 inch 170 pounder while Pete Waldinsperder another good looking newcomer

Gaels were hampered in workouts at the Children's Arena due to condensation on the floor

This Saturday night Gaels play the Brooklin Redmen in Brooklin with game time called for 8 p m

Next Monday Gaels meet Brooklin at the Children's Arena. The season opener is scheduled for Thursday, May 3rd in Etobicoke

The Oshawa Green Gaels are pouring on the coals to get in shape for the season opener. Rookies are getting a real workout since many of them will be needed to fill the ranks.

Even if a pitcher did arrive on base, the game would be halted again as he would have to be suited up with a jacket so his arm wouldn't get cold

Very seldom did a pitcher slide on the base paths either. With the designated hitter rule a lot of managers claim it takes all the strategy from the game and allows the so called over the hill players extra years to play

This may be true to a certain amount of players—hitters like Ted Williams and Mickey Mantle could play for years longer if this ru.. had been enforced years ago

Right nov a guy like Hank Aaron with the Atlanta Braves if he was playing in the American League would have a great opportunity of breaking Herman "Babe" Ruth's alltime home run record of 714

After all, fans come to the game to watch runs scored not to see a pitcher claim 15 strikeouts in a game that last three hours

Baseball has taken a step in a right direction with this new ruling. Perhaps the minor league in the Lakeshore baseball league of the EOBA could adopt this ruling

It certainly would provide more entertainment and might bring back the fans

Separate schools cost parents $24 more than public school supporters new rate

One of the better bargains Oshawa councillors have offered this year is a $24,799,000 budget: and you pay $1 36 less than last year

Well that's not really correct. But if city council had its way, the average municipal tax bill would have decreased this year by .16 mills Based on the average $8,500 residential assessment, that's $1.36

Unfortunately, however, if you're a separate school board supporter because of rising costs to the board, you'll pay an additional $12 this year

If you're a public school supporter your taxes will decrease by about $10 plus the $1 36

Based on that $8,500 assessment, public school supporters paid approximately $545 last year and will pay $533 this year Separate school supporters paid $543 in 1972 and will pay $555 this year

The total millrate is 42 53, minus a fraction of a mill for the only deletion of funds from the budget—$13 600 from councillors' proposed salary increases

According to Con. Allan Pilkey, who presented the budget to council for approval on behalf of the board of control the budgeting process of many long hours of cutting, slashing, and re-evaluation between the board staff and public was really quite simple

"We were looking at a 7 2 mill increase of about $60," he says "We were concerned about how we could reduce taxes and yet maintain the existing levels of service We set a 2 5 per cent increase in expenditures for all city departments That's about a 1.11 mill increase or $9. Then we just cut about $1 million

It was easy after that Pilkey says, because the city was able to pick up additional provincial grants of about $1 8 million

This meant the board of control could re-evaluate and include "essential programs that would reflect greater efficiency but still come up with a 16 mill decrease in taxes that go towards cuts revenues

The unfinished symphony... Ald. Jack Wiley feels he's all alone in his bid to get a centre for the performing arts for Oshawa. As he demonstrates here, some days nothing goes right.

editorial

Lunchbuckets, violins and hockey sticks

An art centre? Why not

Oshawa is no longer the parochial city it used to be Growth is so rapid that it will soon be twice and even three times the size it is right now

Isn't it about time someone with foresight came along and pointed out that we need more than institutional and recreational facilities?

Ald. Jack Wiley is such a person with his efforts, we can remove the stigma about Oshawa being a "lunch bucket town"

With the help of local groups interested in his project, Wiley is chairing a committee to investigate the feasibility of centre for the performing arts

Wiley's dream is not unlike the dream which built the Civic Auditorium a few years back And, it seems he's facing the same sort of opposition to his project too.

There are narrow-minded types among us who condemn his dream without even trying to get the facts first.

Wiley's plea right now is to let those who have an opinion about such a project bring their arguments for and against to the committee for study

Then let the committee come up with a plan that can be presented to council for the final decision. He deserves that chance

When all the facts are in, we can all decide if in fact Oshawa is the city it claims to be, and can handle an arts centre

Wiley has managed to face the opposition of some of negative individuals and still keeps plowing ahead. As he says: "People bellow loudest when they're in a fog"

Let's put away our hockey sticks and skates and raise the curtain on some culture for a change.

Kidnapping aftermath

While kidnapping is an abhorrent crime and should be punished to the full extent of the law, an event taking place this week seems to be in the best interest of the principals involved as well as society.

The event is the release from prison of Gary Adams, the self-confessed ringleader in the kidnapping of Mary Nelles from her Claremont home almost four years ago.

Adams is the last of the Nelles kidnappers to be released and plans to return to the printing business either in Toronto or Montreal.

During the first six months of 1972, Adams worked at a ski resort near Bracebridge and, like the other kidnappers, was reported to be a model prisoner.

Kidnapping is a tragic experience for the victim and his or her relatives and friends. In this particular case, however, another facet of the tragedy was that the ahole thing apparently started off as a practical joke.

This is not to say that the kidnappers weren't serious at the moment of the abduction, but it would seem that the entire plot was hatched while the six were sitting around their apartment and idly began chatting about: "What if. . . "

They have paid for their mistake through the loss of their previously unblemished reputations, their jobs and several of the prime years of their lives.

Hopefully, the rest of their lives will be spent on the right side of the law and in a manner worthwhile to themselves and society. We wish them luck.

Welcome Alcoholics Anonymous

Very few organizations have earned the respect that Alcoholics Anonymous has garnered over the years.

Consisting of men and women who first had to face the awful truth that they had reached the bottom, the AAs have selflessly coaxed and cajoled countless thousands of people back up society's ladder to the point where they are leading worthwhile lives.

Therefore, it is with admiration that This Week welcomes delegates to the Lakeshore District Conference of Alcoholics Anonymous to be held this Saturday at Durham College.

We trust their deliberations, as in the past, will be an inspiration to the men and women in this area who are trapped in their own private hell—a hell bounded by broken promises, self-disgust and empty bottles.

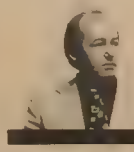
Treasurer takes home $23 million

by peter brouwer



Some headline, right?

Well, he did. And not too long ago

John White, provincial treasurer made the astounding commend last Thursday, during a meeting of the Public Accounts Committee, of which Oshawa MLA Charlie McIlveen is a member

McIlveen just chuckled

So what happened?

Mr. White explained that one Friday afternoon when he had been too busy to open the day's mail on his desk, he took a "a batch of mail" home to open and process. One envelope was from federal finance minister John Turner, addressed to White personally. It had a federal payment to the province in it, in the form of a $23 million cheque.

I suppose between finance ministers that's like us ordinary folks paying the telephone bill.

I spent the better part of a day last week visiting MPP McIlveen-on-the-job. What with all this talk by Morty Shulman about "Charlie who?" a few weeks ago, the editor dispatched yours truly to find out "just what gives" with this McIlveen

It turns out McIlveen has as much right to call the other physician "Morty who?" as he had to call him "Charlie who?"

Meanwhile, Charlie and Morty and everybody else up there appears to be wondering why there was all this fuss over the seven per cent energy tax, while hardly a whisper was heard over the two per cent increase in sales tax. I have a feeling that whisper, or lack thereof is about to turn into a massive chorus of protest

Now for a few more Queen's Park observations

Nobody at Queen's Park likes our name Ontariopolis. One MPP, Dick Beckett of Brantford, had the nerve to suggest it sounds like the name of a Greek restaurant. Would you believe it! Oh well - trust the provincial government to come up with something like Northumberland Region, after they leave Cobourg out of the setup....

Bill Newman, MPP for Ontario, appeared to have his hands full with logbooks of government planes. Not literally, mind you. He wouldn't be safe walking the halls of Queen's Park with a stack of those, for in any corner there could be a couple of logbook snatchers working on behalf of the opposition.

On the day of our visit young Smith, the "here" of the seven per cent energy tax cut was receiving a plaque from a considerable woman representing Women Against Soaring Prices He should preserve it, carefully, because he won't be getting too many plaques from Bill Davis or other PC brass "Even though you disagree with some party policy, you fight it out in caucus. But as long as you're a member of the party, you vote with it," is McIlveen's point of view. Oshawa's Charlie believes in the party system. From some of his colleagues I hear though, that he does a lot of hell raising in some of the caucus meetings

What he does too, is entertain a lot. Just a few weeks ago three busloads of senior citizens were down to visit They had lunch on the member from Oshawa. You add it up. It does add up

the mainliner

We understand the Oshawa Times is having problems with contract negotiations and with their new presses and for this they have our sympathy. But that's no excuse for showing a total disregard for their readers by printing news that's more than a month old. Page 33 of last Wednesday's edition had a story from Canadian Press in Toronto about a new French television station which the story said would begin broadcasting March 23! This is far from the first time the Thomson boys have saved old wire copy and thrown it in long after the story ceased to be news. All the news that fits, they print

Alex Carruthers, MPP in the eastern part of Ontariopolis, can't win when it comes to the regional government outcome. If Port Hope and Cobourg are included, many will be mad at him; if they're excluded, he's in trouble too. Chin up, Alex!

Ontario's liquor inspectors appear to be faithful readers of This Week. In our issue last week, we mentioned that the Pickering Golf Club was licensed under the LCBO. On Thursday, Clayton Cary from the club got a call from an inspector. In actual fact, the club offers only special occasion permits in its banquet room.

Chrome-plated is what some envious out-of-town experts call Oshawa's streets—and they ARE second-to-none. The only thing we're afraid of now is that those responsible at city hall are aiming for gold-plated thoroughfares what with the big increase in provincial grants to municipalities.

One staff member opened a chequing account at a bank a few weeks back and was rather dismayed to learn that each time he writes a cheque, he'll be charged 17 cents. But to add insult to financial injury, a letter arrived a few days later with 16 cents postage due on it. You guessed it; it was a form letter from the manager thanking him for opening the account

One of the most pleasant corners in Toronto in which to have a quiet chat over a drink is the members' lounge in the legislative building. It's in the basement and you don't need a membership card. Just remember, though, you can't charge your booze to your Ontario hospital number.

Congratulations go out to Ross Gibson who took up his public relations and marketing duties with the Oshawa Public Utilities Commission Tuesday. The former news director of CKLB and CKQS-FM has been replaced there by Ian Sutton, his 2IC for the past five years Ian's wife, Linda, is a former news editor with This Week

A thought-provoking sign was spotted in downtown Toronto recently: "Trespassers may be electrocuted." No, it wasn't attached to a fence surrounding Mel Lastman's home. It was affixed to a building housing electrical equipment for the Toronto subway system.

Growing up was tricky in Yorba Linda, Calif.

by tom douglas

The scene is a small farmhouse in Yorba Linda, Calif. a little over 50 years ago. It's evening and dusk has settled. A man sits in his living room reading a newspaper

From the kitchen comes the sound of someone washing supper dishes and a soft female voice humming. This stops suddenly there is a quiet pause as though the woman is listening to something, and she speaks "Frank, are you busy? I think I hear someone crying upstairs " and see about it?

The man puts down his paper and replies: "Alright, Hannah. I thought I heard something awhile back myself." With this, he rises wearily and crosses the room, then starts up the stairs

The sound of muffled crying comes from a bedroom down the hall to the right and he pushes open the door. "Son, is that you? Is there something the matter?"

A small red-eyed boy with black, tousled hair sits up in bed, choking back a sob: "Yes, Poppa, I was crying," he says. "Something happened today that really upset me. I just can't understand how people can be so mean."

The man sits down on the bed and strokes his son's head affectionately: "There, there, boy, it can't be all that bad. Tell me about it."

"Well, at lunchtime today we held elections for class president and I was nominated and so was George Stanley. Me and the guys who nominated me went down by that old water gate behind the school to talk things over and you know what happened? George sent a couple of his friends down to spy on us and listen to what we were saying.

"But that wasn't all. When it was time to stand up and say why we thought people should vote for us, George held up a whole bunch of notes he said had been written by kids in the class saying they thought he should be elected

'And he pointed to the back of the room where a big poster had been put up He said a bunch of the kids had put it up to show they supported him

"You know what I found after he was elected? Him and his friends had written all those notes and put up the poster themselves. Not only that, but the class monitor, the guy who was supposed to make sure nobody cheated during voting, admitted afterwards that he was George's best friend and knew all about what he had done."

The man shakes his head, a pained expression on his face: "Well, son, I know this is hard to take but we have to realize that even in these United States, there are people who would stoop to such things just to get ahead. At least you know you handled yourself honestly and that's all that counts.'

The boy knuckles his eyes sleepily and replies "When I grow up, Poppa, I'm going to be somebody. I'm going to show people you don't have to lie and cheat to get ahead.'

With this, the boy sinks back on his pillow, fast asleep. The man rises, a proud grin on his face and tiptoes out of the room. "Goodnight, Dickie," he whispers

Public school taxes down but separate supporters pay more

Oshawa public school supporters will pay $12 less this year in taxes. The separate school supporter, however, will pay $12 more

These figures are based on an average $8 500 residential assessment

The total Ontario County Board of Education budget is $45,980,550 City combined residential and commercial mill rates were decreased by 1.32 mills bringing the rate down this year to 20 15 from 21 47

Separate school board does not set its own mill rate levy but provides municipalities with a requisition amount and lets them establish their own mill rate

Oshawa separate school supporters will pay $519,650 in taxes toward the total $6,624,000 board budget.

According to Oshawa city figures, the separate board's mill rate is 22 80 mills, up 1.45 mills from last year's 21.19 mills

Norman Edmondson, chairman of the Ontario County Board, said the mill rates were down in most municipalities for 1973 because of the imposition of provincial ceilings, which allow only minimal expenditure increases and a higher rate of provincial grants.

The board also said here were severe cutbacks in administration and clerical staff costs but would not comment if there will be a reduction in the teaching staff.

Chairman of the Ontario County Roman Catholic School Board, Terry O'Conner, said that the rise in separate school supporters tax was due to increased costs.

"We've done everything we could to hold the tax line down and have even cut back in some areas that we feel are quite essential such as allowing class sizes to creep up and cutting back in special education."

Based on the average $5,000 residential assessment in Whitby, public school supporters will be paying approximately $10 less than last year

The combined commercial and residential mill rates have decreased by 2.41 mills to 42.92 mills this year.

The separate school supporters of Whitby will be paying approximately $15.50 more than last year. Their combined taxes of $162,225 will go towards the total board budget

Approved mill rate figures were unavailable from the town of Ajax and the township of Pickering. Treasury department officials in these two areas also say an average residential assessment is not used in computing taxes

However, although individual mill rates for separate school boards cannot be established in these areas, Ajax separate school supporters will pay a combined total levy of $50,400. Separate school supporters in Pickering Township will pay a combined total levy of $119,660

The Ontario County public school board has established a combined commercial and residential mill rate of 9.53, a .09 mill decrease over last year's rate in Ajax.

Pickering Village is divided into three sections with the S.S. 4W rate falling by 3.37 to 7.13 mills. T.S.A. 1 down .65 to 9.15 and T.S.A. 2 down .38 to 9.62.

Take that!

No, this isn't a separate school supporter kicking about his tax increase. It's Brian Evans demonstrating karate with At Bathe. For details see page 7.

Getting away from it all

The fireside lounge, active in the evenings, provides a quiet place to read in the afternoon.

"Getting away from it all" is an expression most of us have used.

What we usually mean when we say it is that the hustle and bustle of life in the city sooner or later gets to us and we have to get out into the countryside to unwind.

Unfortunately, time and expense prevent us from spending as much time away from roaring traffic, cramped apartments and stifling heat as we'd like.

That's why more and more people are taking up residence in Rossland Park This beautiful rental complex is located in the quiet residential area in Oshawa's northeast suburbs.

The townhouses, apartment homes and garden and tower apartments are laid out in such a way that traffic is kept to a minimum.

At the hub of the complex is the tastefully-designed Country Club with its cosy fireside lounge, gymnasium, exercise room, saunas, games room and billiards room.

Right at hand are Rossland Park's two tennis courts and outdoor swimming pool Just a short walk or drive away is the Rossland Park Equestrian Centre with rental horses as well as facilities for boarding your own

Membership in both the Country Club and the Equestrian Centre is free to residents of Rossland Park

To many people suburban living means not having all the little conveniences at hand but this isn't the case with Rossland Park

There is a grocery boutique within the complex where all the staples you need can be picked up to last you until your next trip to the supermarket

There is also a day-care centre where Mom can leave her pre-school youngster while she works or spends a day shopping

And there are schools, shopping centres and all of life's other conveniences just a short distance away, either by bus, which stops at Rossland Park, or by car

Surprisingly enough, this country lifestyle can be yours, with all its little extras, for as little as $170 a month Why not come join us in paradise"

Paradise is also a Rossland Park

Littles given hope after eight weeks of despair

Fred Little's "last resort" letter to This Week's Contact department has eased a financial burden that had been becoming impossible to manage

"I'm writing to you as a last resort, hoping you may be able to help in some way," is the way the Whitby resident began his letter

He went on to explain that on Dec. 4, 1971, as a nursing orderly at Fairview Lodge in Whitby, he had injured his back while lifting an elderly patient back into a sheelchair after a fall

After a medical examination which indicated he should not return to work, he began receiving workman's compensation in the amount of $178.50 every two weeks

The crunch came on March 15 when he opened the envelope from the Workman's Compensation Board and found a cheque for only $89.26, half of what he had normally received

"Although finding it very hard, with an invalid and disabled wife with no pension or income while I was on full compensation benefits, I still managed," Little wrote This Week

"She has had three major and two minor operations in a year and due to an accident on Dec. 24, 1971, her right arm is now 90 per cent disabled She is also an epileptic and has to spend most of her time in bed"

Little, who had no warning that his benefits would be cut in half, wrote the WCB asking why. He received a letter from the chief claims officer stating that "a full review" of his case had revealed his condition had improved and that he should ask his doctor what type of work he could do

The WCB further suggested that Little register with the Unemployment Insurance Commission for benefits

Fred Little of Whitby contacted This Week when he was unable to convince the Workman's Compensation Board that a back injury was preventing him from returning to work. The board has now agreed to reinstate Little on a full disability allowance.

Little returned to his doctor (Dr. G. A. Jaciw of the Whitby Medical Centre) and was told he still could not work. Little said his doctor was surprised at the attitude of the WCB.

Little sent another letter to the board, but received the same reply and another two-week cheque for $89.26, or $44.63 a week. With high medical costs, food rent, hydro, telephone (without which he and his wife would be isolated) and incidental expenses, Little's bills come to $65 a week

He has had to borrow money from his son, sell some of his household goods, charge medication at a local druggist and appeal to his landlord to wait until his next cheque for the rent

In desperation, Little sat down and wrote This Week. We in turn confirmed Little's inability to work by contacting Dr. Jaciw. We then got in touch with Jack Hollingsworth of the WCB

After being informed that Little had learned of the cut in his benefits only after he complained about the first reduced cheque, Hollingsworth promised a full investigation

True to his word, Hollingsworth returned This Week's telephone call the following day and said Little was being given the benefit of the doubt and would have full benefits restored as well as back pay for the money he had lost

Hollingsworth said a cheque was being prepared and would be sent out immediately. Also, Little has been asked to appear before the WCB pension committee Thursday to determine whether his full benefits should be continued or if he should be put on a full disability pension.

This Week will report on the outcome of this meeting in our next issue

Mashers had better beware if they intend bothering this young lady, 16-year-old Sonja Muehlbach, youth rifle champion at the Schutzenfest at Club Loreley on Saturday.

Fanfare entries include invitation to Hungary

The entries have begun pouring in This Week's Fanfare Jet Contest being held in co-operation with Air Canada.

On June 20, one of the entrants will win a trip for two to any of Air Canada's overseas destinations plus $200 spending money from This Week.

All you have to do to enter is invite someone from outside the area to attend the Ontario Summer Games on the July 1 weekend in Oshawa or the preceding Fanfare for Oshawa week celebrations

Fill out the Fanfare Jet coupon found elsewhere in this issue and send it in. An Air Canada official will make the draw in June

Here's a sampling of who has invited whom

The David Boakes of Athabaska Street in Oshawa have invited E.A Line of London, England; Mavis Stonehouse of Dundas Street West in Whitby has extended an invitation to Mr. and Mrs. J. Fice of Rochester, N.Y.; Elizabeth Vavassori of Colborne Street East in Oshawa has asked Robert Baronfeind of Budapest Hungary to be her guest

William H Jones of Gibbons Street in Oshawa is looking for a visit from Mr and Mrs Allan Lavis of Wembly England; Bruce Freebairn of Oshawa Blvd. North in Oshawa has invited Mr and Mrs. W. C. Williams of Leduc, Alta; and the Donald Websters of Oshawa Blvd. North have asked the Ernest Marshalls of Saint John, N.B

Send in your entry today for a chance to board This Week's Air Canada Fanfare Jet across the Atlantic

Wiley feels like the Wright Brothers—"You'll never get it off the ground"

People probably asked the Wright Brothers: "How's your aeroplane coming along" — and then laughed

Ald. Jack Wiley says people ask him: "How's your art centre coming along — and laugh the same way

Wiley firmly believes that Oshawa is in need of a centre for the performing arts. He is chairing a committee that is looking into the feasibility of such a centre

"The basic idea for such a centre has been pushed for years; since 1946 I've been told," he says. "But it has always been shelved because of other priorities."

Since Wiley managed to get a motion through city council which allows for a feasibility study to be jointly conducted by the planning and development and recreation departments, "up to or more than" 50 local groups have shown interest in the plan

"Right now it's more or less a brain-picking thing," says Wiley. "We are now trying to decide how to gather the information what type of centre would be most desired, and how to put it all in a brief to council"

As it stands now, the centre could be either a performing theatre with a simple stage and seating, or it could be a functional theatre with attached rooms for workshops, storage, a "dirty crafts room" where weaving and pottery classes could be held and the equipment could be left, and perhaps an audio-visual music library.

"These are just some of the ideas we have come up with and we plan to co-ordinate all of them when we get some kind of unanimity," Wiley says. "The experts have said the best we have right now, Eastdale Auditorium, is just a not good enough."

The committee, made up of recreation department officials and members of various interested groups, like the Oshawa Council of the Arts, will be investigating art centres in other comparable cities like St. Catharines, Saskatoon and Kitchener to find out how those centres are operated

The success of these centre, how they were financed, who used them and what type of productions have been put on are a must for the study," he says

Wiley says there are people who say an art centre is not needed, but he says there has been an expressed need

"Actually, I haven't heard anyone criticize it except certain members of the media, but I have been contacted by them to get my ideas on the centre before they criticized it and it is very discouraging."

Right now, he says, it is absolutely essential that all interested groups be allowed to express their opinions on the project. Wiley says the centre should become a community project

He says he hopes the presentation can be made to council as soon as possible to prove their is a need for a centre The committee is working towards an end of May meeting, but he adds that no real deadline has been set

Such a centre need not be used only by little theatre groups, says Wiley. Depending upon what type of theatre is decided upon by the feasibility study and council, it could also be used for public speaking, musical recitals, conventions, and meeting places for ratepayers, or even a townhall meeting

"The centre will not only be there for people who will use it to perform in, it will also be available for the people who will be able to enjoy it—the audience," Wiley says

He hopes the centre could be financed through city grants and public subscription. Perhaps, he says, the construction could be done under a winter works grant

We have no idea of the cost yet," the alderman says. "The thing we have to do is convince people, that in spite of their own prejudices of certain developments there is a need that can better supplement the community at large and any decision they make should be predicated towards these ends

Salaries shaved to tune of $13,600

An $800 reduction in councillors' proposed salary increases "right across the board"

That's what city council finally decided to do about its controversial pay raise, but not before some stinging, and perhaps below-the-belt debate

Name-calling, like "pompous aristocrats" came from the public But replies, like "you should package your way with words and sell it for fertilizer" were fast in coming from councillors

In the end, when the 1½-hour debate had ended, council had decided The mayor will now receive $22,200, controllers, $7,700, and aldermen $4,700. The original increases proposed $23,000 $8,500 and $5,500 respectively

The total saving to the taxpayers: $13,600

Some councillors including Mayor Jim Potticary, publicly defended the right of council to hold secret meetings Others publicly apologized for some of the more "unfortunate things that were said during debate by both sides

Federal government lifted a plank from Social Credit says reader

Sir

The giant step taken by the federal Liberal government toward provision of a guaranteed annual income as announced recently by Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde has been taken right out of the official platform presented by the Social Credit Party of Canada during last October's election campaign

It has become a cliche for Social Crediters to say that we don't care who does it so long as justice is eventually done

While the new government proposals fall far short of bringing about complete economic justice, they certainly go further than we had dared to expect

Social crediters in Ontario county welcome the guaranteed income proposal and hope that politicians of all parties will give them the support they deserve

Gilbert Rondeau, Member of Parliament for Shefford and president of the Social Credit Party of Canada complimented the government on the presentation of the proposal

In reporting on the proposal, Canadian Press pointed out that the Social Credit Party of Canada was the only party to include such a plan in its platform last October

The way in which the government has reacted positively to constant, well researched politicking by the small but dedicated, Social Credit caucus in the House of Commons encourages Social Crediters in Ontario county to increase their efforts to find a suitable candidate to run in Ontario Riding at the next election

This Social Credit victory demonstrates that a party does not need to be in a position to form the government in order to do good for the country

Energy tax a red herring?

Sir

The proposal and subsequent withdrawal of the Ontario tax on energy has every appearance of a gimmick to get the public to go along with the 40% increase in sales tax

It seems inconceivable that such smart politicians as lead the Ontario government could have been so stupid as to really antagonize their electors with such a tax

We don't need higher taxes. Of course inflation is increasing the cost of services but so is inflation bringing in a proportionate increase in the revenue from the 5% sales tax and from income tax

There IS an alternative to higher taxes. It is known as 'restraint in spending' But you will not get such restraint unless you scream and complain to your elected member, far too few electors bother to complain, so how does your member know that you do not approve

Premier Davis is quoted recently as saying: "At the end of last week I asked the treasurer to review his proposal for a 7% energy tax and to determine whether the principal objectives of his budget . . . would be seriously affected if it were withdrawn

Translated, he means, "The treasurer agreed advised the treasurer that since the 40% increase in sales tax plus the 7% energy tax was causing such a storm of complaint, did he not realize that the government could forget the tax on energy and still pick up about 80% of the extra taxes proposed in the budget'

Mr Davis said "The Treasurer has indicated that while there would be some problems associated with such a course of action, they would not be such as to be unmanageable

Translated, he means, "The treasurer agreed that it would have been nice to have all that extra money to spend, but it really never was essential to have the energy tax in the first place

Rarely do we see any reference to restraint on spending, rather, just remarks to the effect that if they don't get what they want from taxes, they will simply borrow it, in the name of the taxpayers

Don't just sit there and say there is nothing you can do about it! You can protest by a letter or phone call to your M.P.P and every time you see that 7% sales tax added to your bill you can make a mental note not to vote for the party who raised your taxes when the next provincial election comes along in about two years

I thank the editors for the opportunity to register this point of view

Favors childbirth togetherness

Sir:

I was very disappointed in September of 1971 when I was five months pregnant, to be told that it was not at all permitted to have my husband in the delivery room

Incidentally, I also asked that I especially did not want my hands strapped down during delivery. They also said this was not possible either

These requests were made through my doctor to the hospital

Very disappointed and not just a little disgusted I went in search of another hospital and doctor which I found at St Michael's in Toronto

My husband accompanied me through labor and delivery and saw our first baby born He didn't pass out or cause trouble and he's never regretted it

In fact, he wouldn't have it any other way. I wouldn't either even if there were a lot of complications

We feel it is the husband's right to be with his wife during childbirth to give emotional or other support as needed

There are many things that can be said about childbirth Personally I can't say that it was easy, at all or that it was as bright an experience as I had hoped for

But, come what may, the husband and wife should want to share such an inseparable occasion together

Letter to council on sidewalks

Sir,

For the following reasons, our Associations are appealing the recent decision not to install sidewalks on the east side of Mary Street between Rosedale Avenue and Hillcroft Street

A survey last year indicated that 70 students at Dr. S. J. Phillips School could make use of a sidewalk on the east side of Mary Street. It was necessary for the police safety patrol officer to install two extra student patrollers from Phillips School on Mary Street, at Sutherland and Lauder Streets, simply because of the lack of sidewalks Even so, alternate corners such as Connaught Street do not have safety patrollers, and the children must walk across the lawns to the next block. This is extremely dangerous in winter, when the snow is piled high.

o There are about 17 St. Gregory's School students living north of Rosedale Avenue, east of Mary Street, who also could make use of a sidewalk on Mary Street

o D. H. Williams, a vice-principal at O'Neill Collegiate, advises that his school has a total enrollment of 1,323 pupils, and that the school's eastern and southern boundaries are Central Park Blvd. and King Street While figures are not readily available on the number of students who would make use of a Mary Street sidewalk, obviously there are a considerable number involved

o On Connaught Street alone—one short block east of Mary Street—there are six pupils who attend Dr. Phillips School, three who attend St. Gregory's, and seven who attend O'Neill Collegiate. If one block can produce 16 student pedestrians, it seems the projected figures submitted to your committee fell short of the real total

Aside from student pedestrian traffic, with which, of course, we are chiefly concerned, there are no doubt many adults who find the lack of sidewalks for these few blocks a real inconvenience

Mary Street is a very busy traffic artery, and this traffic is bound to increase as Oshawa grows. We therefore strongly protest the lack of sidewalks in the area, and respectfully request that Council reconsider this matter immediately

Lillian Hayward, President
Dr. S. J. Phillips Home and School Association

Evans has left army but he still fights battle of the bulge

Concentrate on the job at hand . . Going,

Throw yourself into the work . going,

Persevere under all hardships . . . going,

And it's bound to get better . . . gone

Brian Evans thinks people in the Ontariopolis region are in lousy shape and he'd like to do something about it

Evans is a bit of a physical fitness nut, to put it mildly. He holds a brown belt in karate, subsists mainly on health foods and goes through a punishing workout every day

"I got involved in judo, karate and combat training in the RCAF and the American Army," he said recently "I never realized how lousy I felt when I was out of shape until I got into condition."

Now, he's so enthusiastic about physical fitness that he has talked some of his friends in Oshawa into working out with him and they're all walking advertisements for his lifestyle

"If I had my way, I'd open a physical conditioning studio that anybody who wanted to get into shape could attend free of charge," he said

And he's setting the wheels in motion to do just that by applying for a federal LIP grant to provide the necessary funds to open such a studio.

"What really got me thinking about this was seeing so many guys my age (he's 26) with big beer bellies. They walk up a flight of stairs and they can hardly breathe."

To illustrate his conditioning, Evans and a friend, Al Bathe, went through a few karate routines for This Week's photographer

The demonstration consisted of throws, dropkicks and karate chops that, if the two opponents had been serious, would have resulted in one of them being maimed or even killed

"However, I'd like to stress that we're not interested in training somebody who wants to go around crippling people," said Brian after the workout, hardly even breathing hard.

"My aim is to improve the terrible shape a lot of people are in. Not only will they feel better physically, but their mental attitude will improve when they realize they've probably added years to their life and can do a lot more without getting tired and winded

The most impressive part of the karate display was a board-splitting demonstration Bathe used his hand, Evans used his head!

It's a combination of physical conditioning and concentration," said Evans afterwards, seemingly none the worse for wear. "I normally don't like doing it since it's nothing but grandstanding, but it does demonstrate what you can do if you're in shape."

Bathe didn't fare so well. While Evans walked away from the head-splitting incident with as much as a blemish, Bathe's knuckles were skinned and raw

"I keep telling Al that he isn't ready for this kind of stuff yet, but he's stubborn," said Evans

But despite his skinned knuckles, Bathe spent the next 20 minutes going through more karate routines with Evans that verified what a tremendous conditioning process the sport can be.

And if Evans is successful in getting his LIP grant so that he can offer the course free of charge, the first applicant will be a paunchy newspaper editor who wouldn't mind shedding 15 or 20 pounds.

Guest conductor leads symphony out

By Jo Aldwinckle

Guest conductor, John Lubbock, drew a completely satisfying performance from Oshawa Symphony Orchestra for its final concert of this season, on Sunday night at Eastdale Collegiate

The young English conductor who is on a brief visit with his parents at Scarborough, exerted firm but gentle control

Thus relaxed, the players produced an evenness of tone with good balance

It was an easy program to listen to and the audience obviously enjoyed the familiar works,—Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony Serenade for String Orchestra (Elgar) and Prokofieff's "Classical Symphony

From the sonorous opening by the cellos and basses, to the gentle entry of the family of strings, the first movement of the "Unfinished" swelled gradually to the long notes of the woodwinds, sustained by a beautiful rocking movement

The horn and bassoon made dramatic utterances while the melody flowed around them

The mood of the symphony changed with the second movement. A melancholy figure persisted. The plaintive voice of the flutes, violins and clarinets came again and again and the symphony closed with the early woodwind melody, mightily augmented.

The Serenade for Strings by Elgar brought a taste of spring. The first movement was as bright and cheerful as a May morning; the second more solemn and soulful.

Mr. Lubbock's interpretation produced the lyrical quality of a pastoral tone poem

Like fireflies winking in a summer night, there is mischief in Prokofieff's "Classical" Symphony and the orchestra found expression of this light-hearted mockery.

In this little symphony a delightful theme soon emerged and continued in various disguises

Prokofieff "made waves" in the musical world of his youth with his radical innovations After exposure to contemporary discord and eccentric measures, audiences today find Prokofieff's "waves" enjoyable ripples

Government housing is life in a goldfish bowl

By Hilda Ann Duguay

Government housing throughout the country is becoming more and more prominent because of the high cost of living and the housing shortage

Even in areas where private homes are available, most people are wary to rent to people with large families for fear of damage, or the rent scale is too high for most family budgets

For these reasons, government housing is a life-saver and possibly the last hope for many families that may be forced to split up and separate as they are thrown out in the street with no place to go

Since the rent is based on 25 per cent of your gross income minus $2 a child, government housing gives families a sense of security as people should be able to pay their rent and it has to be a pretty drastic reason for people to be evicted.

Life in government housing is definitely not peaches and cream or the happy ending that families wish it to be

Like others, I awaited my turn on a long waiting list and was finally allotted a four-bedroom townhouse in a new project. It wasn't long however, before the excitement and pride became tarnished as the problems of the neighborhood began

A housing project is a small community literally jammed in together with a mixture of races, creeds and colors; illiterate people next door to those well educated, sex perverts and chronic alcoholics next door to religious families and permanent welfare recipients content to live off the fat of the land, next door to hardworking people trying desperately to make ends meet.

Only 10 per cent of the project is allotted to families dependent on some form of government support, but unfortunately outsiders don't seem to know this and the entire project bears the stigma of poverty

The term "low-rent" is a sardonic laugh to most as 25 per cent of your income (gross can hit well over $160 a month for men making $4 an hour or better. It's very discouraging when every cent extra can cause your rent rate to rise while your welfare neighbor sits in his backyard enjoying a cold beer on a hot afternoon

Those on welfare or mothers' allowance pay $85 for the first two members of a family and $5 more for each additional member. Since only 10 per cent are allowed, this makes finding suitable accommodations very difficult for women left alone to raise their families

Mothers who are alone seem to be constantly watched and gossiped about. Wives seem too concerned with the morals and private life of the "lone" female parent and many husbands are a little too friendly and helpful

For every car parked in her driveway, you can bet the gossips have a field day and if a car is there overnight you can bet the Mothers Allowance, the Children's Aid and the Housing Authority have been reported to on the immoral behaviour of the "lone" woman

Editor's note: To those people with large families or with financial problems, government housing can be a godsend or a last-ditch effort to find accommodation when no one else will take you in. It's a solution, but a far-from-perfect one. The following article was submitted to This Week by one of the residents of a government housing complex in Oshawa. We feel it graphically illustrates the feelings of someone forced by circumstances to seek such accommodation.

Trouble is that gossips never bother or care to find out if the car parked overnight or anytime for that matter is possibly a relative or a friend of a neighbor who had no place else to park

If she takes an occasional drink, she is branded a drunk. If she has prescriptions delivered, then she is branded a drug addict and if she dresses neat than she is branded a tramp on the make

Do I sound cynical? I guess I am, but I have really seen these things happen. People can be so cruel As a result the children turn cruel too

If a father is taken away to jail for one reason or another, the neighbors make the wife and family feel they are guilty too. So many times children suffer because of the conversations overheard by other children

Since purse strings are tight, there is an extreme amount of jealousy as your neighbours feel you must be cheating to be able to afford a new appliance or car

Frustration, a lack of relaxation and entertainment, very few luxuries, all these lead up to constant bickering and unfortunately, the children's attitudes reflect the adults and there is constant fighting among everyone, every age

We are close to a creek and woods which give some teenagers a golden opportunity to gather together with a case of beer, a bottle of wine and most unfortunately, dope too

Pregnancy among these unmarried teenagers is probably a direct result of this and lack of things to do doesn't help I sometimes wonder where there parents are

In some communities, and I hope some day in all, the families are able to set aside petty grievances and form a Tenants Association.

This is truly a golden opportunity for people to show they are definitely not "society rejects" as some outsiders would like to brand them but they are intelligent conscientious hardworking citizens trying to make a future for themselves and their community

There is talk of an incentive program where the rent is applied as home payments, feeling homeownership will encourage families to feel pride and less frustration

After three years here. I feel I have come to a better understanding of human nature as I have truly seen the daily struggles, trials and tribulations of different family situations

AS DIRECTED

Sometimes you will see this on the label of your prescription in place of specific instructions for taking the medicine. It is there because your physician has already told you how he wants you to use the prescription. With some medicines we will double check with you to be sure you have the directions correct.

It is also important to remember that "as directed" today may not be the same two months from now and you should be careful to check with your physician before requesting a prescription be refilled after much time has elapsed

Oshawa bikers have a list of no-nos to follow

by garnet cowsill

There were more bicycles than cars sold in Canada last year.

In Oshawa, police expect more than 30,000 bikes will come out of winter storage during the next few weeks as cyclists try to work out that saddle-soreness on those long spring rides.

The Oshawa police department warns that under the Highway Traffic Act, no person is permitted to ride a bike that is in an unsafe condition, or to endanger the rider or operator of any other vehicle.

Constable Tom Homes, of the department's safety bureau says there are 24 sections under the Act, and a number of city bylaws dealing with bikes.

If you do not comply with them, you could be taken to court and fined between $5 and $75, he says.

Under the Act, all bikes must have a white light showing in the front and a red light, or reflector in the back if they are being used at night.

Every bicycle or tricycle must have a bell or horn on it to warn pedestrians of their approach.

An unsafe bike would be one without brakes, handle bars or a missing pedal, or one with extended wheel forks.

A police officer can at any time stop you and give you a ticket for "carless driving." This would include weaving from side to side on the road, going too fast and riding with "no hands."

A cyclist, just like a motor vehicle operator must obey all traffic signs, signals and lights. You must also yield the right of way when turning, proceeding from a stop sign, coming from a driveway or when approaching pedestrians at a crosswalk.

When making a left turn, you must first ensure you can do it safely. You must also give the appropriate signals for turning and stopping.

All bike riders must ride in the same direction as an arrow points on a one-way street.

No cyclists shall drive their bikes through, around or under a railway barrier when it is down to stop traffic.

No person while riding a bike shall grab onto a truck or car and allow himself to be towed along the road.

No person shall ride another person on his or her bike that is not meant to carry more than one person.

According to city bylaws dealing with bicycles, all bikes in the city must have a bike licence. These can be purchased at any bike shop in Oshawa for $1, and are valid until the bike is sold or given to a new owner.

No person shall ride his or her bike on any sidewalk, pathway or footpath, or in any city park that is used for public recreation.

No person shall ride a bike on any pier or wharf.

No person shall carry anything on his bike in such a way that would interfere with the safe operation of the bike. This would include milk jugs, groceries, or any other thing unless the bike has a proper carrier.

No person shall leave his bike lying on any city sidewalk, park, or against any window, in front of any doors, stairs or in such a way that will injure someone if he fell over it or had to walk around it.

Infractions of the above city bylaws carry a $5 fine.

As for the police department's views on bike safety, Homes says:

"We feel no boy or girl should be permitted to ride a bike until they are nine years of age. By this point the child can read or has heard of a bike accident which makes him a little more safety conscious.

He says the bike bought for a child should fit him. A parent should not buy a bike larger than his child on the pretext that the child will "grown into the bike.

"How many times have you seen a child riding such a bike and not being able to reach the pedals properly, or when they stopped, they couldn't reach the ground with their feet and fell?" Homes asks.

He says the department has found that parents buy bikes for their children and then don't spend any time either teaching the child how to ride the bike, or teaching any rules of the road.

Homes feels children should be taught general rules of the road, what traffic signs mean, and how important it is to know hand signals.

"We see parents letting their children put extended forks on their bikes," he says. "This type of bike is not safe and cannot be operated safely.

Most of the problem says Homes is that people are just not aware of the bike regulations. For instance, at any time, a police officer can stop a bicycle operator and perform a safety check on the bike.

"We go out and try to stop the problems before they start," Homes says. "It's really helped.

Dale DeGrey graduated from bicycles to minibikes. He takes part in a small event at Pleasure Valley Ranch on Simcoe Street North this Saturday.

Durham students attend press function

The first students to represent a College of Applied Arts and Technology during National Press Week were invited this year from Durham College.

James Chaplin and James Hilts, both first year communication art students, attended the wind-up functions last weekend which were conducted by the Toronto Men's Press Club.

Those participating were key figures from across Canada.

Sir:

What do you say about a seven-week-old kitten that dies?

Easter Monday, my young family and I set out for a kitten. We felt the Ontario Humane Society on Thickson Road was a reliable source

Upon choosing a frisky, orange tabby, we paid our $3. The young woman there informed me that if our kitten should get sick, we could come back for a replacement She also said the kitten should be innoculated next week

Two days later, the kitten was innoculated at $8 for distemper and checked for worms at $3 Unknown to all, the kitten had been purchased fighting a losing battle with distemper and on the Saturday became limp and sleepy

For $6 more, she was examined by the vet and humanely destroyed. The vet advises that we should wait one month before bringing another kitten into our home in case of infection

Therefore, the kind offer of a free kitten must be declined. I understand the remaining kittens at the shelter are showing signs of distemper too

My issue here is not the $20 spent and lost in six days but the original purchase of a sick pet and the following heartbreak for my family and myself

Why can't the society give their animals vaccinations and pass the cost on to the purchaser of that healthy animal?

Mrs. Dale D. Roy

This Week contacted Helen Allen, manageress of the shelter, and read her Mrs. Roy's letter. Mrs. Allen was noticeably upset and sympathetic towards the Roy family for the unfortunate incident.

She said, however, that veterinarians, let alone laymen, find it impossible to tell whether a young kitten has a distemper virus and the litter brought into the shelter obviously had such a virus.

She added that the girl who had waited on the Roys had done a good job in advising them to have the kitten innoculated and in warning them that the kitten might take sick.

Mrs. Allen said she felt very sorry about the incident since it was unfortunate for all concerned, including the shelter. She added that she realized saying she was sorry was of little comfort to the Roy children.

The shelter manageress said she would be happy to replace the kitten when the month is up and would insist that the Roys take a kitten that has remained healthy for at least two weeks after its distemper shots.

Sir, Last year the Oshawa Unemployment Insurance Commission informed me that I owed them $200 in overpayment. This was later changed to $400 and later still up to $700 I maintain I owe only the original $200 and am not disputing that The UIC says not so, but the Ottawa branch backs my claim of owing only $200 Could you look into this

This Week contacted the UIC offices in Oshawa and Ottawa through the help of Ed Broadbent MP, and as far as both offices are concerned we're sorry to say all is in order on their part. To end on a good note however, the UIC admits that it owes you $10. Maybe that's some consolation.

Sir: I have recently sold my house and asked the Oshawa PUC to work out my hydro bill The bill came to $81 18 for the last two months and I felt this was too high I have approached the UIC but with no result

Benitor Dutella Oshawa

This Week checked with the PUC and the bill, although an estimate, is not considered by them to be out of order. A spokesman for the PUC suggests there might be a fault in the wiring or a leak in the water heater causing the extra consumption of hydro. The PUC itself has no responsibility beyond the meters themselves. Sorry.

Do you feel you have reached a dead end in your attempts to make a business, government department or other organization see your side of a problem? Why not contact This Week and let us look into the matter for you?

National church president married in Whitby on Sunday

The marriage of Pastor J. W. Bothe of Oshawa, president of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Canada, and Genevieve Carolyn Johns, former assistant director of Admissions and Records at Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Mich. was solemnized Sunday with Pastor A. W. Kaytor president of the Alberta Conference of Seventh-day Adventists and a cousin of the groom officiating

The wedding took place in Kendalwood Seventh-day Adventist Church in Whitby

He was assisted by Pastor Philip Moores president of the Ontario Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, and by Warren and Jerry Johns licensed ministers of the Michigan Conference of Seventh-day Adventists and sons of the bride

Mrs John's third son Gordon, a senior medical student at Loma Linda University in California served as an usher, as did Larry Bothe of Oshawa son of the groom

Other ushers were the son-in-law of the groom Duane Clark of Sedro Wooley, Wash. and Wayne Culmore, fiancee of the groom's daughter Sylvia

These eleven young people, children and in-laws of the bridal couple all joined in singing "Praise Be to God while their parents signed the wedding register

Other musical numbers were two vocal trios —one by the three daughters-in-law of the bride, and the other by the two daughters and a niece of the groom. Their selections were "Together Life's Pathway We Tread," and "Oh Perfect Love"

The matron-of-honor was Mrs. Richard Myers of Berrien Springs Mich., mother of the bride's daughter-in-law Michael Bothe of Oshawa, brother of the groom, served as best man

Pastor J. W. Wilson, president of the Maritime Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, acted as master of ceremonies at the reception held at the Holiday Inn

The bridal toast was proposed by Pastor Kaytor, and other toasts were given by Pastors A George Rodgers, administrator of the North York Branson Hospital in Toronto and Darren Michael, barrister for the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Canada

Mrs. J. W. Bothe signs the register following her marriage to Pastor J. W. Bothe, of Oshawa, president of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Canada.

Excuses for skippingare not valid

Church-going is more popular today than ever before but there are many who still abstain for various reasons.

Going to church for worship gives you strength, going to hear the word of God gives you direction and going to receive a challenge to work gives you purpose for life

The Bible commands that we go to church when it says: "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together as the manner of some is "

The church does not mean a building but a place where those of like faith meet to worship God

A lot of people say "I'm as good as most people that go to church-so I don't need to go!"

But may I suggest to you, that if all those that you compare yourself to, are hypocrites, and are not serving God, you may be equal to them alright-equally lost in your sin and smugness

God ordered a temple built so His people could have a place to come and draw near to Him God has provided that many places of worship be built for the same purpose

Modern-day miracles of God providing funds for churches to be erected, are in themselves proof that church-going is still God's plan for you and me.

Be sure in your search that you find a church that lifts up Christ as the Son of God and the answer to the world's ills

Any person or organization whatever name they have over their door, is not worth its salt if it treats Christ as just another man. Steer clear of them.

Christ said: "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me."

Go where you can be challenged to leave your sinful life and live pleasing in the sight of God, where you will continue to grow in the things of God

If you are not progressing in your faith you are going backwards but God says: "Draw near to me and I will draw near to you."

I'm sure you will catch the meaning of the following which is an illustration of excuses offered by non-church-goers but has been given in a way that everyone will understand.

Football in the fall hockey in the winter: baseball in the summer Your pastor has been an avid sports fan all his life. But I've had it!

Want to know why? 1. Every time I went, they asked me for money 2 the people I sat with didn't seem very friendly. 3 the seats were too hard and not at all comfortable. 4. I went to many games, but the coach never came to call on me. 5. the referee made a decision with which I could not agree.

6. I suspected that I was sitting with some hypocrites-they came to see their friends and what others were wearing and not to see the game. 7 some games went into overtime, and I was late getting home for my snack. 8. the band played some numbers I never heard before 9. it seems that the games are scheduled when I want to do other things. 10. I was taken to too many games by my parents when I was growing up. 11. I recently read a book on sports and now I feel that I know more than the coaches do anyhow.

Sound familiar? I hear it all the time This Sunday or anyday-go to church

Rev. Oscar Simpson

Mother's Day

Homecoming Sunday at Calvary Baptist

The Board of Deacons was declared Sunday, May 13 (Mothers' Day) as Homecoming Sunday at Calvary Baptist Church in Oshawa

Letters and brochures have been sent to hundreds of former members, adherents and friends of the church urging them to "Come Home" to Oshawa and to Calvary on that date.

In addition, all civic Officials have been invited Mayor Jim Potticary along with many Council members will be present to share in the occasion.

Rev Robert Lytle of Metuchen, N. J., pastor of the church for seven years, will speak at the evening service, and the present pastor, Rev. Arthur Larson, will bring the message in the morning worship service

Calvary Baptist Church in Oshawa conducts one of Canada's largest Sunday Schools and operates a fleet of eight buses that are used to reach many people who otherwise would not be involved

May 13 is the climax of a six-week Bus Contest. It is expected that over 500 will ride the buses that day, and that the total Sunday School attendance will exceed 1,000

It all will begin at 9:45 am. Civic Officials and other special visitors will be given a tour of the Sunday School facilities, and then the staff and the student body will meet in the auditorium for presentations and a time of giving thanks to the Lord for His goodness.

The 11 a.m. morning worship service will be a great time of praise Again, special visitors will be recognized. In keeping with Mothers' Day, a gift will be presented to every mother present in the church.

In the afternoon, a time of fellowship will be held as the congregation gathers to renew old acquaintances and share God's blessing in His people as He has lead them to many different places and situations

Pictures and slides of former days at Calvary will be shown

FAITH OUR TITLE DEEDS
Part 4.

Since the time that God first caused Moses to take up his pen to record the events found in the book of Genesis He has progressively made known His will and purpose to those who were His own Always the revelation that God gave was relevant to the times and needs of His people

The Law was given by God to His people Israel at a time when they were in need of a law The books of the Psalms and Prophets were added as the right time and need appeared Thus God has never left His people without a revelation needful to their circumstances God continued to add revelation to revelation until He had fully made known His will and purpose With the secret of His will at last made known through the pen of the apostle Paul God brought revelation to a close The Bible therefore contains God's complete revelation and what is needed today is not revelation but illumination

One of the problems associated with the study of God's Word has been the tendency to treat all the Bible as if every part of the Bible is as relevant for all times as for a specific time When we read and study the Scriptures we must recognize that while it is all God's Word it is not all written directly to and for all believers of every age This does not make the Bible any the less true, it simply recognizes the fact that what God has spoken at one time and to one people is not necessarily true for all times or for all people We must be prepared to read and observe the "address on the envelope" that God has put on every revelation that He has given Only as we do this can we truly exercise faith—our title deeds

In the eleventh chapter of Hebrews we see an illustration of this

In the 5th verse we read that "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death." If faith was simply a sincere belief then this verse would mean that Enoch sincerely believed that he would not see death and was translated In that case the sincerity of his belief would have obtained for him his translation As we have seen however this is not the Biblical meaning of faith When we read the words "by faith Enoch was translated we should understand that Enoch was translated not because he sincerely believed but because God had promised him translation and therefore Enoch had "title deed" to translation If God had not promised translation to Enoch no amount of sincere belief would have obtained his translation

In this same chapter we read of Noah who "by faith" received a safe passage through the waters of tribulation Noah unlike Enoch was saved in the midst of the destruction of water that came upon the earth Noah was not translated as Enoch had been but he was saved in the midst of the flood by the same means as Enoch received his translation—by faith

Just as Enoch had received "title deed" from God to a translation, not seeing death, so too, Noah received "title deed" to a safe passage through the midst of the flood Both were saints of God and yet they received different "title deeds" Enoch believed God concerning his own translation because that is what God promised him Noah believed God concerning the safe passage through the flood because that is what God promised him Had Noah preferred to be translated rather than receive safe passage through the flood no amount of sincere belief on his part would have secured it for him He had received "title deed" to his safe passage and he believed God for this We as Christians must realize that there are promises in the Bible that were never given to us and no amount of sincere belief on our part will make them so We must get to know what out "title deeds" are and receive these by faith

The generation gap not in the ODAA

People from walks of life ranging from factory workers to doctors, ages 17 to 70, work together each year for the Oshawa and District Art Association's Art Show

"Our membership covers just everybody," says Janet McGhee, president of the association. "They all work together with one common interest. There is no generation gap in the art classes with everyone interested in each other's work."

May 4 marks the 6th annual show of O.D.A.A in which all members are invited to exhibit works of art to be juried at the Whitby Station on Henry Street in Whitby

"You can see the difference each year at the show, not only in the quality of the art, but in the different ways of expression," says Mrs McGhee who also instructs one of the art classes of the association

She says the members are taught traditional techniques in oil painting for instance but that after these basics are learned, they can then start to experiment with acrylics and use rags, paper towels or cheesecloth as tools

"So many people come into class with the idea that they must paint with a little brush," she says. "With new ways of painting the members may be able to work faster and therefore not become bored."

Mrs. McGhee says that many of the association members are becoming quite professional in their work and that some are selling just about all they paint to the point where they could probably make a living at it.

"Some paint just for leisure but some are working artists who take the time to go to the Toronto galleries to see what's going on and meet with other artists."

For a fee of only $2, a person interested in art can join the association and many people come to the classes and workshops held weekly in Oshawa from Ajax Pickering and Bowmanville.

The art show will be on display at the Whitby Station from May 4 to May 27

Guess where

Reponse to contest requires rule change

This Week is unfair to slowpokes.

Rather than have pickets carrying such signs parading up and down in front of our offices, we have decided to change our rules in the Guess Where contest run every week.

The response to the contest has been so great that it seems unfair to pick the correct entry with the earliest postmark as the winner. Not only does this discriminate against those who are at the end of a carrier boys route, but it also acts against those readers who cannot get to a mailbox right away

Therefore, beginning with this week's contest, we intend to toss all the entries into a drum and draw letters until we get a correct answer

Get pollution off your chest.

Ontario is a fast-growing province—more people, more vehicles, more factories, more machines every day.

With that growth comes the threat of damage to our environment. Pollution of all kinds

The Ministry of the Environment is Ontario's guardian of our air and land and water

Here's who we are and what we do

Air Pollution.

1. We monitor the air for pollution and order corrections if unacceptable levels occur

2. We track down strange odours in the air and many things you can't smell and eliminate them if they are dangerous

3. We investigate suspected air pollution injury to people or property

4. We are responsible for noise pollution and are creating enforceable noise control measures

Land Pollution.

1. We deal with all the leftovers of our affluent society—the industrial waste, processed organic wastes, and ordinary garbage And regulate its transportation and disposal

2. We study recycling as an aid to reducing quantities of waste and to avoid depletion of our natural resources

3. We control the use and application of pesticides which are unacceptable for pollution reasons

Water Pollution.

1. We protect all of Ontario's water sources from pollution

2. We develop and control surface and ground water resources.

3. We watch all potential sources of industrial and agricultural water pollution

4. We plan, build and finance modern sewage and waterworks facilities for Ontario municipalities

5. We supervise all private waste disposal systems

Ontario has some of the most comprehensive legislation in North America to protect our environment. But it will take the effort of everyone to solve our pollution problems

Won't you help?

Whiskey Howl lives up to name at Spruce

The Whiskey Howl at the Spruce

This past week at the Spruce Villa (Whitby) Whiskey Howl was holding forth in "Rock and Loud" style

The crowd for a Wednesday night was fair in size if not totally taken with the musical offering When the list of Rock and Loud is written, first name under loud will be Whiskey How for sure

The brass section trombone and sax were different from most rock groups that play our area but even this change from the norm could not save the overall sound

The vocalist "sang" but I could not understand anything he uttered Whiskey Howl's wardrobe reminds me of the good old days of show biz when an act would go on tour with up to $5,000 invested in stage outfits

Well, if Whiskey Howl's wardrobe was to be stolen, I am sure the cost of total replacement would run to approximately $35 at any Sally Ann thrift shop. Musically and otherwise, Whiskey Howl is loud and extremely casual

Country music fans should make note of two dates for upcoming shows. On May 6 at 8 p.m. the Oshawa Country Jamboree at the Legion Hall features Lynn Jones and Ron McLeod plus the Channel 11 Gang. May 13 at 8 p.m. in the Oshawa Civic Auditorium, Donna Fargo, Hank Williams Jr., Jan Howard and a solid array of country pickers will be on hand

Turning to the Tom Kingston Show at Jim's Sage Door in Whitby Kingston's back-up trio is a good unit that could well make it on its own This was proven in the first part of each set this past Wednesday evening The lead guitar player and keyboard man (brothers) could with a little guidance and polish rate well as a soft rock or uptown country group

Tom Kingston himself is weak, his jokes are flat, his imitations of Tom Jones and others are poor

Possibly the real Tom Kingston did not come out this particular evening and a great talent may be hiding If so it's well hidden

Eating out...

The Georgian Hotel on Champlain Road in Oshawa features a large room which tended to be just slightly noisy, but the overall atmosphere is pleasant and restful

Dinner began with tossed salads, crisp fresh and well balanced in content

The Thousand Island dressing was mild tasting and not overly plentiful

My guest chose prime rib of beef as her main course and although to my eye it appeared a little rare, I was told it was anong the finest she had enjoyed anywhere. It was juicy and cooked just right

The only complaint was that the vegetables were not piping hot

Myself, I ordered Wiener Schnitzel Well this was a meal to please a fatman's tummy—lean thin veal and a light crisp crust and I must add so large a slice that it totally covered my plate

I had the same comment as my lady on the vegetables, they were not really hot but in no way did they detract from the meal

Dessert, which I seldom have as regular readers have noted, was rice pudding, my personal favorite when ice cool and thick Well, cold it was but thin also. Service was casual to unattentive The coffee was hot and strong and plentiful The small weaknesses of service and dessert only went to prove that the Georgina is staffed by human beings, who in general serve choice food well prepared

Total bill for two was $12 10 including two drinks

The Georgian Dining Room should be on your dining out list A treat for your tummy and your pocket book

Male chauvinists meet under cover as respectable group

Alex Cosens (left) and Rudy Maeder of the Oshawa Toastmasters Club will have trouble convincing their wives that this isn't the way they spend their nights out once the ladies find out what the club has in mind for the Ontario Summer Games on the July 1 weekend.

In another daring piece of investigative journalism (Erik Watt eat your heart out) This Week has uncovered a plot almost as earth-shattering as the Watergate affair in the United States

We have learned from a usually reliable source (who doesn't want his name used for fear of reprisals) that an organization, which up until now has been held in the highest esteem by the community, is not exactly what it seems.

To most of us, the Oshawa Toastmasters Club has always represented all that is good and true about Canadian manhood.

When these men got together every Wednesday evening, they probably told their wives they were meeting for the sheer joy of developing their linguistic talents within the fellowship of other like-minded individuals

However, This Week has learned from a source close to the club that it is planning something nefarious. Members have been secretly planning to entice 50 or more young ladies to their den of iniquity.

"They're planning to judge a beauty contest," our source said. "They'll be judging Miss Oshawa Summer Games Beauty Queen—but they're trying to keep the plot from their wives"

The Toastmasters he said are asking an estimated 126 groups, clubs, schools, park associations and ethnic organizations in the city to enter a girl of their choice in the contest.

"It's not the money they'll be making" the source said. "In fact, they won't be making any. It's the way they're going about it ... secretly to stay out of the divorce courts"

Clubs and groups who enter their queen in the contest, he says, will be asked to pay a $5 entry fee which will go towards gifts, prizes and flowers for the winners. Members will also seek public donations for their evil plot

"If you don't believe me, get a reporter down to the Durham College lecture theatre at 3 p.m. on June 9," he said. "That's when these Toastmaster guys will hold contest registration and preliminary judging."

He said the club plans to choose 10 luscious finalists who will be introduced Sunday, June 24, between 8.30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. during the Oshawa Fold Arts Council folk festival to be held at the Civic Auditorium.

The winner will be chosen that night and crowned.

"She'll be on national T.V. and everything as she represents Oshawa during the Ontario Summer Games," he said.

That's not the end to the scandal.

He said when the Toastmistresses, the female half of the club, found out that members of the Oshawa Police and Fire Departments, St. John Ambulance, army air and sea cadets and the boy scouts will be acting as escorts for the young finalists, they began fighting with the male members to help judge the contest.

"The women in the club are just as bad as the men. The men want to get a good look at all those girls, and the women want a look at the male escorts."

The source said if This Week needed any more information we should contact Toastmaster Alex Cosens at 728-7515.

We phone Cosens and asked if the club was indeed planning to judge the contest without their wives' consent.

"No comment!" was his reply.

This Week has also learned that when one of the Toastmasters discovered the press was onto his club's plot he made hasty arrangements to leave the country.

More on this in later issues

A good man to know

Travel agents, stung by the public confusion in distinguishing legitimate agents from "fly-by-night" operators who left thousands stranded last year, are out to improve their image.

"We are looking for ways to tell the public what the travel agent can do for them," says Edward Bryant, general manager of the 524-member Canadian arm of the American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA).

"There has been a great deal of confusion But the strandings in most cases were not the fault of travel agents," says Bryant. He blames the problems on "carpetbagger" operators who lack the professional credentials of the travel agent, who must be certified by an air, steamship or rail line in order to gain carrier appointments

Travel agents must also be certified by the Air Traffic Conference which regulates North American flights, and by the International Air Transport Association for international flights.

Travel agents help the public plan their holidays—everything from air travel to hotels, car rentals, theatre reservations, tennis games and on and on—and work to give them the best holiday deal for the least money. All this at normally no cost to the individual because travel agents receive commissions from the services they sell, not from the traveler

"The travel agent is a valuable person to know" says Howard Steen an Air Canada sales representative, who deals daily with some of Canada's 950 or so travel agents to acquaint them with Air Canada's vacation products

"Packaged vacations are becoming increasingly popular in the airline business," Steen says They can be purchased cheaper as a rule" For the travel agent the packages are added to hundreds of different options he can offer to a customer, depending on the person's budget.

For Air Canada and other airlines the travel agent is a valued partner representing a large number of outlets across Canada

Air Canada is instrumental in providing training courses for travel agents covering ticketing procedures, the complex world of tariffs and other technical training as well as the travel products the airline is offering Air Canada also organizes travel agents' familiarization tours to a wide variety of destinations to give them firsthand knowledge of the travel products they will be selling

"A qualified, experienced travel agent will know a great deal about the place he's offering trips to—the best hotels, recreation facilities, prices," says Steen

"He's a travel-wise globe-trotter adds Bryant

But airlines will not appoint an agent —which means he doesn't get commissions —until he has proven he is reliable

"We live in a democracy You could go down the street and open a store and hang up a sign saying you're a travel agent," says Steen. "But if a man opened with no experience, he would not receive ATC or IATA approval or be appointed by an airline This is so the public can recognize qualified people"

Agents receive that experience by working under approved travel agents for several years before starting their own agencies. "Even then it takes a year—it could run to two years—before a travel agent is accredited for commissions by the airlines. He has to prove that he has financial backing, that he's reliable"

Travel agents are taking steps themselves to create a self-regulatory body of the style other professions have. Now each province has a branch of the Canadian Institute of Travel Counsellors which oversees a travel agent's training

But ASTA has submitted proposals to provincial governments to let them set up a more formal body which would license travel agents "to give them professional status. Legislation is pending which may make possible a self-regulatory body

Bryant hopes the proposed body could strengthen the code of ethics now administered by ASTA through its consumer relations and ethics committee

The code is designed "to protect the public against fraud . . . or unethical practices," Bryant says

So while the public may be unsure of how the travel agent fits into the travel scheme, the agents themselves are quite emphatic in distinguishing between themselves and the non-accredited operators

And to repeat, says Steen, "One of the things the public is not too aware of is the answer to the question Do they pay more by booking their trip through a travel agent?

"The answer to that is a flat no. They might even save money"

Fanfare trip your magic carpet to Europe

By Tom Douglas
Editor

Everyone has his bad days and good days, but there are very few times that I'm sorry I'm on the staff of This Week.

One of them occurred a few weeks back when Publisher Peter Brouwer announced an arrangement with Air Canada whereby two lucky people will get free tickets to any of the airline's overseas destinations for participating in Fanfare for Oshawa.

In addition This Week will kick in with $200 spending money. The sad part of it all is that staff members are not eligible.

Moscow, Copenhagen, London, Prague, Zurich, Frankfurt, Prestwick, Vienna, Shannon, Brussels, Paris?

What the sight of a chocolate eclair or a strawberry tart will do to a pastry lover just reading theses names does to me. I drool every time I think of them.

Like so many pastry addicts we travel nuts are gluttons. Of the countries in which the above cities are located the only one I haven't visited is Ireland. But I'm just itching to get back for another visit to any one of them.

How great it would be to return to Moscow. To dine on Hungarian partridge in the opulent surroundings of the pre-revolutionary Metropole Hotel. To gaze at the multicolored onion domes of St. Basil's Cathedral. To visit Gum department store. The Bolshoi Ballet and the Moscow circus. And of course to buy vodka and caviar at ridiculously low price in the duty free shop set aside for foreigners.

And Copenhagen. Tivoli Gardens will be in full swing by the time This Week makes its draw on June 20. The Canadian National Exhibition is a fall fair in Toronto by comparison.

And what an odd experience it is sitting at a cafe table sipping a cold Carlsberg while a pretty young thing across the way lights up a cigar. Women lib is old hat in Denmark.

As for London there's no greater way to spend a day than by strolling through Hyde Park with fish and chips wrapped in a newspaper listening to the soapbox orators at Speaker's Corner.

Or standing at the bar in a pub with a Pinta while barmaids insult the customers goodnaturedly, the men play darts or Shove Ha'penny and the girls sip their Babycham or pink gin.

Prague to me only brings back memories of being shunted back and forth in a railway car while stonefaced soldiers called it a train line and look under the beds for anyone trying to escape to the west.

But I understand it is a beautiful city and if the Czech pavilion at Expo 67 was any indication I'm sure a week or two there would be fantastic.

Summer in Switzerland would be a terrific holiday. While Zurich itself left me cold it seemed like any other big city. Lucerne was the most beautiful place I've ever been.

With snowcovered mountains in the background terrified cows lazily on the lake while you stand on the flower covered horse feeding bread to flocks of white swans.

And there is no greater feeling than to fall asleep under a light but very warm eiderdown quilt with cold mountain air and the sound of cowbells drifting through the window of your chalet.

If you choose Frankfurt as your destination wait until the end of September and travel on to Munich for the opening of the famous Oktoberfest.

Oshawa and Air put on rather good beer tents, but there's nothing like the real thing with thousands of happy people sitting at tables, their steins waving in time to the music of the Bavarian band singing Ein Prosit at the top of their lungs.

The Edinburgh Games in Scotland would be another great local point for an overseas tour. Even if the sound of bagpipes reminds you of a lovesick seagull singing a duet with a fire engine, the pageantry of the Edinburgh Tattoo with innumerable bands from all over the world marching together on the castle grounds will bring a lump to your throat.

Music lovers and riding enthusiasts would no doubt choose Vienna as their destination if they were fortunate enough to have their names drawn in the Fanfare promotion.

Whether it's at the State Opera House or merely from the violin of a streetcorner musician the strains of beautiful Strauss waltzes are heard throughout the city. In addition there are houses in every district in which Beethoven, Mozart, Mahler or one of the Strausses lived.

A must for visitors to Vienna is the famous Spanish Riding School with its white Lippizaner stallions. An actual performance is a bit expensive but there are afternoon practice sessions you can attend for a small sum.

If Brussels is your choice the best place for your first view of the city is the Grand' Place (the town hall square) where the Hotel de Ville or city hall is set in a surrounding of fine 17th century mansions.

The square is usually crowded with small stalls where hundreds of farmers from the outlying district sell their wares including row after row of beautiful flowers.

For the hardier types a walk up the hundreds of steps inside the city hall tower provides a breathtaking view of the city. And within walking distance of this plaza is the famous Manneken Pis, the statue of the little boy doing what comes naturally.

So much has been written about Paris that no doubt everyone feels this beautiful city is an old friend. Paris means a lot to me since I spent a year in Metz about 200 miles to the northeast and I was able to visit the capital almost every weekend.

Whether it's a night at the Moulin Rouge or a quiet dinner of escargot, Fondue and vin ordinaire the thrill of shopping, view from the top of the Eiffel Tower or a stroll among the painters of Montmartre, a visit to the Louvre or a trip down the Seine in a bateau mouche, Paris is one of the most interesting and exciting cities in the world.

In a way, I suppose it's just as well that members of This Week's staff are not eligible for the Air Canada trip because if I won, it would be difficult to decide where to go.

But should I win and don't have anybody to take along with you call 576-4450 and ask for Tom.

Home of Composers—Vienna, world's capital of music, has a right to the title. More than half of the world's master composers were born, lived or kept homes in or near the city. This view taken from Vienna's City Hall shows the twin spires of Votive Church

Bob Stirling liked Mortie until he started criticizing Charlie

When in MPP snaps his fingers 14-year-old Bob Stirling comes running

Bob son of Mr and Mrs William Stirling of 898 Oshawa Blvd N in Oshawa is one of 20 page boys in the Ontario Legislative Assembly

I m planning on being a politician when I grow up and this is one way to get used to it Bob says

Since the 1968 federal election Bob has been keenly interested in politics

He learned that he could become a Queens Park page from his parents so he wrote a letter to Oshawa MPP Charlie McIlveen last year asking him how to apply

That he filled an application in July 1972 and was appointed for a six-week term beginning April 2 last January

One of the requirements for becoming a page is that one must have an 80 per cent school average Pages are selected from Grades 7 and 8 from anywhere in Ontario

Bob is currently staying with his grandparents in Toronto to be closest to the Legislature He will not attend school during his six weeks at Queen s Park but he along with his 19 comrades is tutored for five hours a week

A pages general duties consist of attending to MPP s needs during legislative sessions

We take glasses of water or messages from the press to members or run to their offices for something they want Bob says They snap their fingers and the closest page to that member gets what the MPP wants

Two groups of four pages sit on either side of the throne in the Assembly while another 12 sit at the back dressed in black pants white shirts and Eton collars and ties

Monday to Thursday they begin work at 9 a m and quit at 6 p m On Fridays however they begin at 8 30 a m and finish at 1 p m Sometimes a couple of the pages may have to work evenings from 8 p m to 10 p m For this they receive $5 a day and $2 40 for travelling expenses as well

Some of the debate is boring but most is pretty interesting Bob says

The most interesting debate he says was one by NDP MPP Morton Shulman on the Mafia

The most boring debate I heard was by one NDP backbencher I don t know what his name was or what his speech was about now but it was about two hours long

Bob refused to comment on Treasurer John White s budget because he was in class when the minister presented most of his debate on the issue

So far Bob says polite calls he is a Conservative but I could change It is sort of hard to say which politician he admires most but he says he likes Premier William Davis federal Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and Charlie McIlveen.

He says McIlveen is quite active in the Legislature and always there "Some of the other members aren t because they always come and go

I used to think a lot of Mortie Shulman." Bob says But then he started speaking against Charlie McIlveen But I guess he speaks what he believes

He says he has never personally talked to Premier Davis or attended him because he s never there Bob says the premier only attends the session s question and answer periods but hard is ever stays for debate

His hardest errand was given to him by provincial Liberal Leader Bob Nixon who asked him to get him a copy of The New Yorker Magazine from the Assembly Library

I wandered around for about 10 minutes because I didn t know where the library was, he says

MPPs are not expected to give pages tips for any errands they may run he says, even though he has received a package of Certs from one member

I look upon it as a job but it s also a lot of fun Bob says I get to hear the news before anyone else It s not bad being out of school although that s not the reason I picked it

Bob says he is also learning a lot

I m learning what it takes to become a politician It takes a bit of brains and a good vocabulary And you have to know how to be able to talk for a long time about something or nothing at all"

Bob Stirling hopes to enter politics and is getting a sneak preview

Bicycle test

The province should legislate mandatory driver tests for people wishing bicycle licences says Joe Reid Oshawa Safety Council president

Reid says a child should not be able to ride a bike until he is nine years old and then he should have to pass a department of transport test

The test he says should be similar to a motor vehicle driving test Even though people don t consider it as such a bike like a car is a motor vehicle he says

He says he does not think bike drivers tests and licences should be legislated through city bylaws

For instance he says if Oshawa was to make drivers test mandatory a person from Whitby where there was no such bylaw could drive a bike in the city

I don t see much hope of licences coming about if the municipal level unless the province handed down the legislation he says

Oshawa ombudsman

Consumer assistance bureau acts as a business-community go-between

By Garnet Cowsill
Staff Writer

Feel like you're being ripped off by high pressure salesmen or a local business?

Although Oshawa does not have a better business bureau you can complain to the Chamber of Commerce consumer assistance bureau.

"We are not a better business bureau and we don't try to be" says Joan Saywell chamber co-ordinator of the bureau. "There is no better business bureau in the city. It's not large enough to support one."

Few people know there is a place to channel complaints about local businesses or magazine salesmen because the bureau has not been highly publicized.

It was however established by local business through the chamber five years ago.

"We handle any complaints regarding the signing of contracts the purchase of goods pseudo-charitable promoters generally everything the police department doesn't handle" says Miss Saywell. "An interesting point is that we get about five calls a day."

Since the service first began it has expanded until now there is a file for every business in the community which the bureau received a complaint about.

Many of the complaints she says she receives are not against local businesses but against the door-to-door solicitors. Usually callers ask how they can get out of a contract they have just signed with a magazine salesman.

You can "cancel" such contracts within 48 hours of signing "if you send a telegram a registered letter or post a letter in front of a witness within the time period saying you wish to abort the deal she says.

The contract however has to be for an agreed amount of more than $50. If the same time it is wise to cancel your cheque she says.

"The problem is most people don't read what they sign" says Miss Saywell. They are told "It's only a standard contract" sign it. High pressure salesmen intimidate people into thinking they're stupid if they don't know what's in a standard contract and so people do sign them."

In most cases Miss Saywell says a complaint to the bureau can be settled on the phone. If the consumer is still not satisfied that a reasonable adjustment or settlement has been made then there are formal complaint forms that can be filled out.

"We assist people in the community with any complaints against the business community if they are unable to effect their own adjustment" says Miss Saywell. "We attend to arrange a settlement by working with business. But we must have the unemotional objective facts from the consumer."

The bureau will only begin to handle formal complaints from the consumer she says if the customer has already complained to the company or business first.

She says the bureau has no power other than to bring the complaint formally before the business as a business.

If there is no reply forthcoming from the business regarding the complaint the bureau will then issue another one. If there is no reply to that one it is registered on the company's file that the consumer hasn't received a settlement.

Then she says if another consumer phones to ask the chamber about that particular business she can tell them there is one or more unsettled complaints against them. She cannot however divulge the nature of those complaints.

Ultimately the bureau can recommend to the chamber board of directors that the business if it is a member with several unsettled complaints against it should have its membership taken away.

According to chamber bylaws any complaint deemed valid registered against any member for which reasonable explanation or settlement is not offered in a reasonable time is to be brought before the board for examination.

"It is not our intent to harass merchants or anyone else" says Miss Saywell. "We are a go-between with no legal power at all."

Even though the bureau does not have any legal powers consumers who call to get satisfaction. According to Miss Saywell 40 per cent of the complaints are settled satisfactorily.

Although the bureau cannot offer the consumer an opinion about local merchants it must decide whether the complaint is a reasonable one which could receive a reasonable adjustment.

Joan Saywell acts as co-ordinator of the consumer assistance bureau

Washington visit

Broadbent sees agreement on modified auto pact

Autopact modifications will mean cheaper cars and job security for the average auto industry worker

But these modifications, says Oshawa-Whitby MP Ed Broadbent, should benefit both the United States and Canada. After two days in Washington talking with top U.S. executive and legislative officials about the autopact Broadbent says the U.S is now willing to maintain pact safeguards if they are two-way.

Although there is reported opposition to the autopact, Broadbent says the Americans are now recognizing the benefit of it to both Canada and the U S

The Americans, he says, now agree the most important safeguard for the average Canadian autoworker, Canadian production-consumption balance, could be maintained

Along with this safeguard, Broadbent proposes abolition of the 15 per cent tariff on American cars bought by Canadians in the U.S., and says if the duty is dropped, Canadian car dealers will be forced to lower prices to compete with the cheaper U S car resulting in a more competitive Canadian — American market

This, he says, will mean production will probably increase in Canada, which in turn means more jobs, increased seniority and job security for the average autoworker already employed

From the price standpoint, it means a reduction of anywhere from $200 to $300 on new Canadian-built cars.

Broadbent says the removal of the tariff should not apply to used cars or overseas imports, and that a Canadian government decision on the removal must be made as soon as possible

The Americans, he says, want more competition in the North American auto market to maintain a balance in automotive production consumption, and that if modifications to the pact are not made soon, the U S. may well take steps to jeopardize the pact, or may pull out of it entirely

The equalization of car prices should also have a dramatic effects on the degree of investment in auto companies both here and in the U.S. In the past there was increased U.S. investment in the Canadian auto industry but with the initiation of the American DISC program this has been reversed to some extent with an increase in American home investment taking place

The modifications to the pact, says Broadbent could decrease the continuing objections to the pact from the American side so that all that would be needed to maintain the pact in a manner beneficial to both countries are the safeguards already built into the pact

The revised pact must be ready to be presented to the U.S. Senate by September of this year to put the agreement back on a safe footing

Broadbent

Woman enters all-male domain

by Jo Aldwinckle

The recent announcement by General Motors of Canada Ltd of the appointment of Patricia Ellison as supervisor of the department of Owner Relations is significant in that for the first time, a woman has been selected for this post

Owner relations, explains Pat, "encompasses product information and consumer complaints with direct contact with the consumer It differs from public relations which is, in effect company communications through the media

With her background in industrial public relations, Pat is well-equipped to manage her new responsibilities A graduate of the University of Toronto she joined General Motors in 1952 as Frigidaire Canada's home economist.

Much of the early part of her career with GM was concerned with product demonstrations to consumer groups and dealer training

With the termination of GM's appliance operation in Canada in 1970, Pat became supervisor of information services at the GM Delco plant in Scarborough Last summer she moved into the public relations department in Oshawa

Of woman's place in the automotive world Pat says "The car has become a way of life yet there is still the 'little woman' syndrome attached to women car owners and drivers

"I think though, that woman's influence has had some part to play in the introduction of such features as power steering, air conditioning and automatic transmission, but women themselves are not as safety conscious as they could be

"For example, a woman will fasten a baby into a carrier beside her, yet allow older children to climb about and fiddle with window and door handles while she is driving Few mothers are concerned about safety education in the family car

"I would like to see women taking a general course in auto mechanics They should really know what's under the hood and how to maintain it

"I'm glad to know that many girls, today, are not pursuing traditional careers. They are entering architecture, chemical engineering, business administration and consumer-oriented fields. This is great Maybe we shall see women automotive engineers some day."

Pat has some thoughts concerning the average car owners

"Every new GM car carries a warranty for either 12 months of 12,000 miles," she says, "but the owners just don't read it. If something goes wrong with the car, they frequently get a lawyer to send us a letter. They want instant service.

The proper approach is, first, to go to the dealer; through him to the zone office and, if necessary, from there to "Owner Relations", Oshawa.

"When you consider, for example, that there are 21,000 parts in a Chevrolet assembled by mass production and allow for the human element in the assembly, the percentage of malfunction is extremely low."

Pat's parting advice was: "Read the fine print in the warranty If there's something wrong with your GM car, go to your GM dealer at once"

Pat Ellison, supervisor of owner relations at General Motors, decries the 'little woman' syndrome connecting with female drivers.

St. Mary's CYO leaders in minor hockey

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

What a difference a couple of years make said Ron Boission hockey chairman of St. Mary's teams in the C.Y.O. League

Boission, an outstanding organizer of Church House League sports, was commenting on another successful season for the St. Mary's teams. The St. Mary's Pee-wee's had just completed another unbeaten season thus making it 72 games in a row without a defeat

"I remember a few years back when we couldn't even afford a banquet for the kids. It seems that minor hockey people consider the C.Y.O. setup as a second rate operation

"However in recent years our league has developed a lot of excellent talent"

The most recent player who has been successful is Terry O'Reilly now a member of the Boston Bruins of the N.H.L. Boission saluted the entire executive of St Mary's for an outstanding job with the hockey clubs

All teams received St Mary's jackets and trophies went to the pee-wee winners In all over 200 players are enrolled in the St Mary's program

Jack MacInnis, the tireless sports chairman at St. Mary's, honored Boission for his long years of service in aiding minor hockey at the Parish. Don McGarry and Bob Gallagher, co-coaches of the unbeaten pee-wees, also had the league's top point-getter in Billy Noonan and the MVP Terry Gallagher

Former Oshawa General defenceman Jack Lynch, now a member of the Pittsburgh Penguins was a guest speaker for the championship banquet and recalled the days when he was a minor league player in Barrie

Lynch, who is in Oshawa lobbying for his upcoming hockey school scheduled to start in Oshawa on July 30, had the kids firing interesting hockey questions which he handled in professinal style

Lynch said pro hockey is just "super" and would recommend it to any youngster. Joining Lynch at the head table were Rick St Croix and Larry Hopkins both members of the Junior "A" Oshawa Generals

Father Gignac the St Mary's Parish priest also received a team jacket as he is one of the association's top boosters

Members of St. Mary's CYO have a lot to cheer about as their peewee team ended another successful season undefeated. More than 200 boys in the minor hockey program were on hand over the weekend to receive awards.

OTC set for a busy schedule

Tennis Anyone?

It won't be long before the Oshawa Tennis Club will be set for another busy schedule at their location on Ritson Road North

Regarded as one of the more active clubs in the province, the O.T.C are planning a work party for this weekend to help "cleanup" the tennis club and get set for the opening scheduled for May 8 which will be the open house

President Terry Keys has an outstanding hard-working executive going for him this year including Bill Goodall, vice president, Peter Wittenburg treasurer Linda Morison, secretary, club director Beverly Whale and tennis director Ron Guiltman

Ken and Dalphine Ives will again head up the junior development program and the club coach again is Brian Barker

With the growing popularity of tennis with outstanding courts at North Oshawa and Baker Park, the O.T.C will be hosting the Ontario summer games the last week of June

Another major highlight will be the Junior Davis Cup championships scheduled for July 16, 17 and 18

O.T.C are accepting memberships for the upcoming season

Former president Dave Kentish claims that this season will be the largest ever in competitive tennis since the club opened

His daughter, Julie, now 14, gained international acclaim last summer and was ranked fifth in Ontario and eighth in Canada last year

This summer young Julie moves up into another age bracket and great achievements are expected from her

Tennis buffs are urged to be on hand this weekend as the volunteers will be at it housekeeping the course

This Week plans an Expo trip

Yep it's baseball time again and the Montreal Expo's of the National Baseball League and This Week readers are again teaming up for another baseball excursion to Montreal.

After a successful trip last season, This Week are currently organizing a trip to Montreal for Saturday June 16 and Sunday June 17

The Los Angeles Dodgers will be playing the Expo's on that weekend.

Complete details on the trip will be forthcoming on our next issue

Who says sports writers are in lousy shape?

So you say sports writers aren't in shape eh? Well let me tell you different

Most sports page readers consider sports writers have a life of glory attending various sporting functions and having a great time of it on the banquet circuit

Well this is right, however we stay in shape

Here's a perfect example. Last week, my family and I were sitting down enjoying a peaceful summer type supper. It just happened to be Brownie night in our household whereby yours truly has the opportunity of playing baby sitter for a couple of what seems to be long hours

My youngest daughter, Dana, who will be three at the end of the month, decided to take a rain check as she was enjoying playing with our next door neighbor's kid

Prior to supper, she had been nibbling anyway like most kids do before supper and she decided that playing outside was more fun so she decided to cancel out on the regular food

This is common Thursday anyway We had just finished a good hearty meal when the back door bell rang, the way Dana always does it Ding, Ding, Ding, etc

We considered it was her just playing again with the door bell My wife answered the door and my next door neighbor was trying to tell my wife of a possible mishap

She had noticed that Dana had decided to become a mountain climber on my next door neighbor's TV aerial and there she was about 50 feet up in the air, yelling "Hi mommy"

My wife seemed voiceless ushering me to the doorway with a loud scream

She couldn't explain that my daughter had started a new sport, TV climbing

Suddenly I became another Jim Thorpe. Between the property line dividing my neighbor's property and ours is a wire fence about four-feet high and with one sudden leap I cleared the fence and immediately began to climb 5 feet on the aerial.

Boy was it a long way up. Meanwhile my

jim shaw

daughter wasn't scared as she kept saying: "Hi daddy, hi daddy"

On the way up the TV aerial I kept reminding my mountain climbing daughter not to panic. She wasn't It was myself I guess I was trying to convince

Almost to the top, now, I started to think of a friend of mine who installs TV aerials as a sideline job and how he marches up and down aerials during installation

It's truly scarey at the top All of a sudden the aerial starts to move back and forth and now am I scared about the whole situation

Right at the top now I grab Dana and bring her down to the bottom of the fence. A sigh of relief, still huffing and puffing, we reach the bottom safe and sound

Now comes the hard part down with the pants and a good old fashioned spanking. She now realizes that climbing a TV aerial is BAD I'm still wondering to myself as I write this column of how I jumped the fence in one leap and climbed that aerial

I guess sports writers are in good shape after all

CITY OF OSHAWA
GARBAGE COLLECTION BY-LAW 222-68
GUIDE TO HOUSEHOLDERS

To keep garbage collection services as effective and as economical as possible it is necessary that the by-law requirements be observed. The co-operation of all house-holders is requested.

Following are answers to questions which arise most frequently in this regard. For further information please call Refuse Handling Section at the Sanitary Landfill Site, 725-1435.

1. Q - When are the Clean-up Weeks?
   A - The "Spring" Clean-up Week will commence the week of May 28th and the "Fall" Clean-up Week, October 15th.

2. Q - How many plastic bags or receptacles will be collected on normal weekly collection?
   A - A combined total of eight (8) receptacles or plastic bags per residence will be picked up, once per week.

3. Q - What will be picked up?
   A - Garbage, which includes all household waste except such things as discarded furniture and appliances, building materials, liquid waste and manure.

4. Q - Must garbage be in receptacles or containers?
   A - Garbage must be drained (if necessary) put into either plastic bags or wrapped in paper and placed in proper garbage containers with handles and covers that fit. Containers must weigh no more than fifty (50) pounds when loaded and be kept clean and disinfected. Brush etc. that will not fit into containers will be collected if securely tied in bundles not larger than 2' x 2' x 2' and weighing not more than fifty (50) pounds.
5. Q - Will garbage be carried out?
   A - Receptacles and bundles must be carried out to the curb by the householder before 7:30 a.m. on the morning of collection. Receptacles will be returned to the curb by the collector. Unacceptable containers and contents, as well as material refused by the collector, must be carried back by the householder.
6. Q - How often will garbage be picked up?
   A - Garbage will be picked up once a week and on the same day each week (except for occasional disruption of schedules by holidays).
7. Q - How do I dispose of articles not classed as garbage or not picked up under normal collections?
   A - Such articles may be disposed of, free of charge, in private automobiles ONLY at the City disposal site on Ritson Road North, and unloaded at locations as directed by the staff

The hours of operation of the Sanitary Landfill Site are as follows:

	April to October	November to March
Weekdays	8:00 A.M. to 8:00 P.M.	8:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M.
Saturdays	8:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M.	8:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M.
Sundays and Statutory Holidays	Closed	Closed

Special "Clean-up Periods" for private residences will be provided during the spring and fall. Such periods will be advertised in advance in the local press.

8. Q - Is it permissible to burn garbage?
   A - No.
9. Q - Is it acceptable to use 5 gallon paint cans, lard pails or like containers for garbage setout?
   A - No. Containers such as these are considered as garbage and will be disposed of with contents.

10. Q - Are bushel baskets acceptable?
    A - Only for grass, hedge clippings or like material. Not for household waste.

Duffers have a wide choice of golf courses

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Actually golfing this early in the season is a rarity but most club managers claim that their courses are in excellent shape with only a few wet spots.

Due to an early spring, the groundskeepers have been able to groom the greens and fairways. An excellent comparison is that the courses are as good as they would be in mid-June at this stage of the season

In our area all clubs are predicting banner seasons with the Grandview Course located in the east end of Oshawa announcing that it is officially closed for the season as a new housing development has taken over the grounds.

Meanwhile golfers can still practise at Grandview but no upkeep will be done

Despite losing the old Grandview course which offered many challenging holes Oshawa will be welcoming a new club called the Oshawa Airport Club located on Thornton's Road North

Last fall the club planted seed creating a late opening for this year John Elmhurst who has worked at the Pickering Dunbarton club has taken over as manager at the new Oshawa club

This new golf club will of course suffer from growing pains however great things are expected from this 18 hole 4,400 yard course

It will be a par 61 covering 11 par 3's, and seven par 4's. Green fees will be $3.50 on weekends and $3 during the week

ANNANDALE

Things look just "super" at Annandale as greenskeeper Paul Featherstone has done his job in making the grounds in "A" one condition

Manager George Kadaja reports his 5,712 yard par 70 setup is raring to go for the pro or duffer

After a good season last year, Annandale has rebounded to be one of the top golf courses in the Ontariopolis area

The 18-hole course has 3 par 3's, 14 par 4's and one par 5 with the longest hole coming in the 5th at 433 yards and the shortest on the 15th at 113 yards

There are six water traps

A club with excellent banquet facilities Annandale is located at Church Street in Pickering

Martin Barrack will be the teaching pro this year Telephone 942-3210 Green fees are $5 weekendsand $4 on weekdays.

COUNTRY LANE

As usual, manager Larry Heffering has done his homework in getting his Country Lane course in top shape

The enlarged lounge proved successful with the patrons last season and Heffering is again banking on his capable assistant Brian Peters to do another bangup job this year

Located at the Fourth concession near Lynnbrook Park (telephone 655-3263) Country Lanes has 18 holes covering 5,102 yards

The par 64 set-up has 9 par 3's 8 par 4's and one par 5 with the longest hole being the 17th at 530 yards and the 16th the hole proving the shortest at 165 yards

Country Lane has lots of watertraps Weekend fees are $4.50 and weekdays $3.50 A good place to golf with friendly surroundings

ERINLI-BOWMANVILLE

Leave it to veteran Les Smale and you know you'll be playing on a good course

That's the comments of many golfers who enjoy touring over the 18-hole course on the Taunton Road Smale has his club in top form and has already had a couple of busy weeks

The 6010 yard setup is a par 71 with 4 par 3's, 11 par 4's and three par 5's

There's a challenge on the 9th with a best water trap facing you Smale a one man gang at Erinli, boasts a 540-yard longest hole on the 3rd and the shortest the 4th at 120 yards

Special attraction are the five-day weekday membership at $60 with an added attraction of a heated swimming pool to cool off after a good round of golf

Further details by contacting Les Smale at 263-2293

Surprises expected as lacrosse opens

By Jim Shaw

Surprises should be the rule rather than the exception in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior "A" schedule this season

Thursday the Oshawa Green Gaels a pre-season favorite to be a top contender despite a lot of rookies in the line-up, open up the season in Toronto against the Etobicoke PCO's Etobicoke along with Oshawa, Peterboro and Bramalea should be first division clubs however Mississauga, St Catharines Rexdale and Lakeshore will supply plenty of surprises

Gaels hope to improve coming off a poor winless record of last season Coach Ron Pither is seeing his first full season with the Gaels after taking over from Bob Hanna mid-way during the last campaign.

Pither has high hopes and is counting heavily on his rookies to mature before too long Balance will have to be the key for the Gaels if they are going to finish in the first division like Pither is predicting

Despite a poor pre-season record, Pither isn't discouraged as he feels it's just a time to test out the newcomers in competitive action.

Gaels will be counting heavily on goaltender Tom Christie probably the best in the league to make them respectable. Christie who inked his sixth Junior "A" contract last Sunday will be the number one man.

Bob Flintoff will probably suit up as the back-up netminder Murray Cawker who probably should be named captain will miss the first three weeks of the schedule as he is attending school at St. Lawrence University while Tom Rorabeck has decided to retire; however, Gaels are hoping that he will change his mind

At present, Johnny Reed, Jeff Rorabeck, Tom Wreggitt, Terry Lloyd and Jimmie Browne look like the first line Those five players rank as good as any in the league

Reed, Lloyd and Browne should score at least 75 goals each and have the earmark of being a potent power-play.

Another setup has Doug Bannon, Stan Cockerton Joe Greentree and a pair of rookies Paul MacDonald and Larry Patton Bannon, Cockerton and Greentree will give this unit poise and if MacDonald and Patton develop the way Pither is hoping, it gives Gaels an added plus

Jeff Mason, Paul Langely and Marty Renion seem to have the inside track for jobs on the third line with other rookies filling out the line-up.

For years Gaels have been a fast break give and go offensive minded club however Pither is counting on a strong running game with plenty of checking to produce victories

Gaels first home game comes up next Monday night at the "Aud" against the Mississauga with the face off called for 8 pm

Senior soccer teams lack facilities for coming season

Oshawa s 10 senior soccer teams are looking for a place to play this summer

Last year the Oshawa Soccer Association senior league operated out of the Civic Fields complex but with the Summer Games scheduled for late June the league will be forced to play games out of town if facilities are available according to the league president Jessie Buxcey

Teams entered in the league include the Gulf Thistles (formerly Azzurri) Adria Bilknas White Eagles Kickers Italis Tune-ups, Wanderers Dunlop Rangers and Molise

A total of 126 league games are scheduled with the Ontario Cup Lancaster Cup Ritchie Trophy, Buxcey Trophy Carling Awards and the U A W Trophy available for the winners

According to president Buxcey the Oshawa Association are seeking alternative sites in the city to play Meanwhile Oshawa has entered a team in the 1976 Olympics providing they can advance as Ontario champions

Oshawa have an under 21 club and are entered in a tournament scheduled for the C N.E. in Toronto on May 20 against Toronto and Newmarket in a roundrobin play-off

The club is lacking financial supporters and are currently running a $100 bond drive with tickets now on sale from the players and executive of the club

Vikings gain tie

Oshawa Vikings Senior Rugger club gained a 6-6 tie against Peterboro Pagans in a spring rugger game at Lakeview Park on the weekend

Vikings who held a 6-3 half time lead on the rain soaked field just couldn t hold on for the victory

Brian Brittain registered a try and Tony Saramak attempting a comeback countered with a three point conversion

Saturday, at Lakeview Park Vikings will be hosting Toronto Scottish in another game Later this month Oshawa will be journeying to Montreal for the annual Quebec Seven-aside tournament.

Pitching is the key for two Legionaire clubs

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

They claim that pitching is the key to any ball team and the two Oshawa club the Junior and Intermediates both sponsored by the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No. 43 are hoping that this statement is true

Last winter the Atlanta Braves rebuilt their entire pitching roster by acquiring eight pitchers during the off seasons However in Oshawa the key has to be pitching rather than hitting

The Juniors operated by General Manager Jim Lutton with his coaches Bernie and Vince McGuire along with Gord Johnson are looking for a big season in the Leaside Junior Baseball League

Here pitching has to be the key The Juniors are high on Clair Osborne, a six foot four inch right-hander who fires aspirin tablets according to Lutton.

He is just great and has great potentional providing he can come up with another pitch to go along with his fastball, said Lutton.

An other member on the starting rotation is Doug Stone a sophimore and the son of Ted who formerly pitched professional ball in the Boston Red Sox organization

Lefty Ab Taylor is the question mark hurler. If Taylor can shed some of his extra weight the Junior could be pennant winners in the league which has East York, Scarboro Village, Scarboro Highview, Queensway, High Park and Scott's Colonels

Should any of the starters falter, Randy Rogers will be set for relief When Rogers isn't pitching he'll be playing the outfield as he owns a booming bat

Other members of the juniors are catchers Jim Miller and Joe Reid while Lorne Kennedy also from Little Britian seems to have the inside track on the backstop job

Infielders include Dave Sheridan, a slick fielding rookie at first, Ron Steeves and Mike Noonan will probably share second base, Les Kiraly has been a suprise at short and seems to have his weak arm corrected for throwing from the hole position

Third base seems open with Wayne Tuttin and Bob Villeneuve bidding for employment

In the outfield Kend Rudge, Bob Harding, Marty Blake, Brian Roy, Larry Dart and Neil Oke want jobs with Rudge already having nailed down the right field post

Besides playing in the Leaside loop the Legionaieres will operate in the E.C.B.A. League with teams from Whitby, Peterboro, Kendall Port Hope, Keene and Franford

The league opens on May 7 at Kinsmen Stadium against North York Yeeman

Taking a look at the intermediates, the players should take a tip from manager Dave Waite.

During the winter Waite who also does some pitching went on a conditioning program and dropped from 235 pounds to a well-rounded 185 pounds and looks like he's in the best shape ever

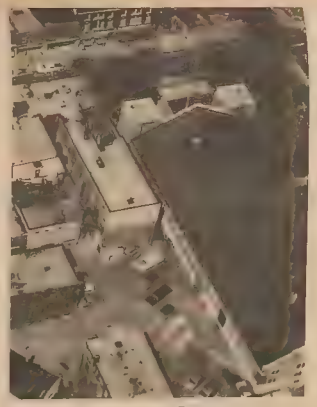
My guess is:



Here's where....

Correctly identifying last week's Guess Where entry as the Ontario Regiment Armouries on Simcoe Street North was worth $10 to Dieter Schmidt of 320 Central Park Blvd. North in Oshawa.

Youngsters clean up

Just 25 cents can help clean up Oshawa.

For a total of 20 hours spread over the period from May 9 to 12 the youth of the Rossland Road Free Methodist Church will clean up parks, streets, and creeks around the city, at a price.

The young people are looking for sponsors for their project the proceeds of which will go towards youth activities around the city and to a refugee fund sponsored by the church

Sponsors are asked to call 725-1280.

College brass charged with weak management

Charges of weak management and poor leadership have been levelled at the administration of Durham College by the college's faculty association

In a letter May 3 to Dr Gordon E Willey, college president the association said that an administration directive on summer teaching would be subject to official grievance procedures.

The issue involves an administrative decision to have faculty members in the college's Applied Arts, Business and Technology divisions fill in for vacationing teachers in the Retraining division where mature students upgrade their secondary school education.

The faculty letter said that until the issue was resolved, the members of the association recognized their obligations. They added that it was not the basic issue of summer work that they were objecting to, but "the way the faculty has been treated"

"We feel that the manner in which the forthcoming summer schedule has been handled is unfair," the letter stated "There was no faculty participation in arriving at an equitable method of selection. In fact, not only was there never any genuine consultation or discussion, but there was not even adequate information provided"

The letter, over the signature of faculty president Don Michie, said that although the faculty believed the decision to use post-secondary teachers in Retraining was made in January, this was not communicated until May 1

"Answers to direct questions were evasive and contradictory," it continued, "apparently the chairmen (of the three divisions) have neither participated nor been fully informed in the decision and selection processes

Their sole significant contribution seems to have been to provide statistical information Again, normal areas of responsibility and lines of communication seem to have been ignored."

Stating that communication was virtually non-existent, the letter said this concerned the faculty "because this type of approach can only turn division against division, teacher against teacher"

"... We fear that you and Dean (Lister) Robinson have isolated yourselves to an extent that you cannot understand many of the important issues that are crucial to fair decisions," said the letter

The association said that some of its members were assigned five to seven week blocks of teaching but were not informed of this until May 1 "about two weeks before teaching is to begin and in the midst of exams and promotion meetings which virtually means starting out completely unprepared

"We are concerned that we teachers are not considered responsible enough to work with our chairmen for the best interests of all concerned," said the letter

"We are concerned that this approach and the added teaching load are not good for the health and mental well-being of teachers and the well-being of the college

"We are concerned most of all because we feel that this is one of a number of examples of weak management and poor leadership throughout the college

This Week attempted to reach Dr. Willey for his comments on the letter, but unfortunately he is out of the city until Thursday. We would hope that he will be available for comment on his return

Transitway is scuttled

The King Street transitway is dead

The project which would have turned the downtown portion of King Street into a mall-type avenue where only buses and service vehicles were allowed, died Monday following a recommendation from the board of control

Approximately 20 months ago council approved the project in principle and since then it has been heatedly debated three consecutive times and tabled three consecutive times

"The matter was before council this year, and it was apparent that the idea of a transitway was not desirable," says Con Allan Pilkey "The board felt it should not have this appeal standing because the planning staff might reconsider it was still approved, and the (rescinding) recommendation now gives indication that we do not wish to proceed in that direction"

editorial

Public interest at stake

The most difficult decision for the editor of a responsible newspaper to make is whether printing a story will do more harm than good

If so, the best thing he can do is kill it. But if the public's right to know outweighs any embarrassment the story might bring to individuals, then the editor's duty is to print it

Such a decision faced This Week's editor in our current edition. A reporter was given a copy of a letter to Dr. Gordon E Willey, president of Durham College, from the president of the college's faculty association, Don Michie.

The letter accused the administration of the college of weak management and poor leadership for the manner in which it assigned summer teaching loads to faculty members

The letter claimed that although the association had heard some time ago that a new policy of faculty members replacing vacationing Retraining teachers would be implemented, queries from its members were treated evasively and no official notification was made until May 1

And this is where the public's right to know comes in. The letter states that the faculty is expected to begin teaching in Retraining within two weeks but is involved at the moment in marking exams and in promotion meetings and so this teaching will have to commence with virtually no preparation.

In other words, the college, which is funded in the main by public money, is allowing students to be taught by teachers who admit that they will be inadequately prepared to teach.

And all this could have been avoided by the administration if it had informed the faculty of its decision earlier

Whether the faculty itself is being treated fairly by the administration is something that the two bodies should work out between themselves

But if students are being made to suffer because of poor direction by the administration then something should be done about it

We trust that the college's board of governors will look into the matter for the sake of the taxpayer who foots the bill for this institution and for the sake of the students who apparently are caught in the middle

Voluntary

To keep on improving this newspaper and to cope with the rising cost of newsprint and production, This Week will be switching to a form of paid circulation at the end of May.

But - - don't panic. Paying for the paper will be voluntary If you can't afford 50 cents a month or if you feel a month of This Week isn't worth 50 cents, or if you feel your carrier boy is not doing his best to give you top-notch delivery service, and thus doesn't deserve an extra bonus, we'll still deliver the paper

During the next couple of weeks all This Week carriers will be out to say hello to all our readers - personally. They'll give you a card with their name and phone number on it. Please file it, so you can call the carrier when you're going on vacation or when you want him to put the paper inside the backdoor instead of the front, or in the milkbox

All carriers will be equipped with a booklet in which we've asked them to list all their customers names and addresses.

Then, at the end of the month, they'll be back to ask you for the 50 cent voluntary delivery charge.

Readers are asked to please make sure they get a receipt from the carrier. It comes in the form of a coupon that has a minimum value of $1 off on a choice of items from various Oshawa and area merchants

Our carriers are looking forward to a great campaign. We hope you'll be with them - and with us as we strive to keep improving This Week - now and next week and for many weeks to come.

Arrogant?

If there's anything the Davis government needs to avoid at the moment it's the impression that it is arrogantly disregarding the wishes of the people of Ontario.

And yet, despite the McKeough conflict of interest fiasco, the Fidinham debacle and the about-face John White was forced to make with his energy tax, this is the message that many people are getting

For instance, the two per cent hike in the province's sales tax had not even been approved in the Legislature when stores across the province began collecting it.

The seven per cent sales tax isn't another McKeough affair that might be long forgotten by the time the next election rolls around. It's going to be with us to jog our memories even as we stop off for a pack of cigarettes on election day.

V.P. announced at This Week

by peter brouwer

This is probably as good a place as any to tell all This Week readers about our new V.P

He's no executive in a blue pin-stripe suit

We don't have any V P s around this place and as for the blue suits, I don't see too many of them either

V.P. is short for "Voluntary Pay"

Please let me explain.

This Week has been arriving in your home or apartment in Oshawa and Whitby for the past three years. In Bowmanville, Ajax, Pickering, Bay Ridges, West Rouge and Brooklin, This Week is about two years old

We've made a lot of friends during these three years. And that's really what has brought all this on. Hundreds of readers over the years, have come forward saying, "We'd really like to pay for the paper." There have been times when I took a suggestion like that with a grain of salt.

But, it was food for thought. And so, in February, This Week commissioned an independent survey among readers to see if they really meant what they said, and to ask them how worthwhile they felt our efforts were The survey brought in some very positive facts indeed

Combine that with the fact that we are anxious to keep improving This Week editorially as well as delivery-wise. And add to that the constant increases in the cost of newsprint and production

Producing and delivering This Week on a blanket basis from Bowmanville to Bay Ridges is a pretty expensive proposition. But we intend to keep doing just that, and thus the "voluntary" system.

Readers who cannot afford to pay 50 cents a month to receive This Week, will still receive it. We realize how tough it is for many pensioners and unemployed to make ends meet, and to whom even 50 cents could present a problem. Many in this category don't read a daily newspaper simply because of the expense, and they depend for their local news on This Week or radio.

Readers who feel This Week isn't worth 50 cents a month to them will still receive the paper also. And so will those who feel their carrier isn't doing a good enough job to warrant payment. Our carriers are well aware of this

And there's the other side of the coin. One thing This Week's advertising customers like is that we do go door-to-door and not to only a few thousand readers in the area. This aspect of our total coverage we will retain.

During the next couple of weeks all 445 This Week carriers will be out to visit all This Week readers. They'll hand you a business card with their name and phone number on it. And they'll ask you for your name to put in their route book You'll find our kids a pretty good bunch. I personally met nearly 300 of them this past Saturday, and the "other half" is coming to the office this coming Saturday

We show them slides of the good carrier vs the bad one. They'll ask you where you would like to have the paper left - back door, front door, milk box And when you're away on vacation, all you do is call them, and they'll stop delivery for a couple of weeks Up until now, because many readers didn't know the carrier's name, this has been difficult.

So what will you, the reader, get for your 50 cents?

Very careful delivery of a better product. That's a promise. Besides that you'll get a receipt in the form of a coupon that will entitle you to a choice of goodies worth a minimum of a dollar each

Please watch for further announcements. This is it - in a nutshell

Rivalry between newspapers isn't a new thing. It has been going on since the first time two papers competed in the same town. Quite some years ago one Washington paper, competing with the Washington Post was called a 'yellow dog'....right in a Post editorial. The other paper hesitated not in replying that its attitude would continue to be that of "any dog towards any post." That little bit came to mind when we found in the Oshawa Times yellow pages on Friday something about that Thomson newspaper excelling this week and every week. And we thought dailies were supposed to excel every day! Also, until then, they had always referred to us a a local weekly. Ah, recognition at last!

And by the way, This Week will continue to stick to its policy of keeping a step ahead of the times.

Jim Shaw, our sports editor, tells us that another Boston tea party took place last week when the Boston Bruins spirited Phil Esposito out of the hospital where he's recovering from a knee operation It seems they missed their old buddy and since their year-end party was only a bottle's throw away from the hospital, they went to get him. When his cast wouldn't fit in a wheelchair so the story goes, they wheeled him out in his hospital bed

It's more fun and games in the Ontariopolis region over municipal budgets as Ajax council sits down to discuss its tax rate at a meeting next Monday. The other council meeting this month will be held on the 28th.

Las Vegas has its one-armed bandits in the form of slot machines, and Oshawa has its parking meters. Does anyone know of any other city in North America where drivers have to feed these monsters until nine o'clock at night?

Overheard in an area bar: "Sure I'm the man of the house. My wife makes all the little decisions like whether we'll buy a new car, where we're going on our vacation and who takes out the garbage. I make all the big decisions like whether we should pull our troops out of Viet Nam, whether the States should impeach Nixon and things like that."

There was a rather ironic item in the Toronto Star over the weekend. A U.S. state department of health study has found that the women's liberation movement apparently has produced a sharp increase in suicides among California women. It's the price women are paying for becoming more involved outside the family and in the working arena, they study revealed.

This Week has 445 goodwill ambassadors

Every time I pass an elementary school, I get a strange feeling. There's a moment's twinge of nostalgia, followed by a wave of relief

You see, I started out my career as an elementary school teacher and I enjoyed it. Youngsters of 10 and 12 years of age have an innocence and candor that make you aware of the tremendous responsibility you have as a teacher, not only to fill their heads with learning, but to instill in them the right attitudes for living in this complex world

But I had always had the urge to write, and when the opportunity presented itself, I jumped at it, figuring that since I had my teaching certificate, if I didn't like the journalistic field I could always return to teaching.

Well, I'm still writing, but the sight of an elementary school, as I said earlier, fills me with nostalgia and I wonder for a moment how my life might have been different if I had stayed teaching

But then, I get to thinking how complicated the teaching field has become in the time since I left it. A shrinking birth rate has given the boards of education the whip hand with fewer jobs available so that in too many cases, they treat their teachers like hired hands whose sole purpose is to do the board's bidding.

So-called "enlightened" educators have decreed that exams and grading and any form of discipline warp a youngster so that we have students coming out of our educational system hardly able to spell their names

And who gets the blame? The teacher, although in most cases he has little, if any, control over course content

by tom douglas

So my feeling of nostalgia when I come upon a school building doesn't last long. To paraphrase Gilbert and Sullivan: A teacher's lot is not a happy one these days.

However, with my teaching background, I was more than slightly intrigued with an assignment Publisher Peter Brouwer gave me last Saturday As he mentions in his column above, we are instituting a voluntary pay subscription system for This Week at the end of the month and I was asked to help explain the set-up to the boys and girls who act as out carriers.

My initial reaction was one of apprehension Would I still have rapport with youngsters after 10 years away from teaching? Would they greet the news of a change in our delivery system with groans of protest feeling that it simply meant more work for them? Would they even be able to understand what we were getting into or would the meeting end up a disaster with groups of 50 or 60 youngsters milling around without a clue as to what it was all about?

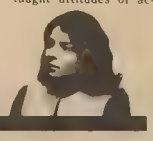
Happily, the series of meetings we held with the carriers whent off even better than we had hoped for. What all of us at This Week learned is that we have a bunch of intelligent and enthusiastic carriers

And if you haven't already discovered it, I think you'll be pleasantly surprised when the youngster who delivers your paper calls on you in the next few days to introduce himself or herself and to give you his card

Mental health week

Children must be taught not to fear those different

by jane milne



An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure

This ancient truism has perhaps no greater meaning than in the area of Canada's number one health problem - mental illness

I feel that our community needs to look at itself and see if we are really raising our children to be the healthy citizens of tomorrow," says Suzanne Hopkins, executive director of the Ontario County Mental Health Clinic

With Statistics Canada showing that one person in 6.5 born in 1971 will succumb to the serious problems of mental illness compared with the one in 10 of 1961, Mrs Hopkins says that preventive techniques in dealing with mental illness are extremely important

"We feel there is a need to start at an early level in educating parents when their family is young," she says.

The clinic new holds seminars throughout the year for the public to participate in discussions on subjects like housing and preparation of the five-year-old for kindergarten

"It's easy to get the people out to these seminars who are already interested," she says "The difficult part is getting to those who are not interested but who would benefit"

She says the raising of children requires no qualifications on the part of parents and that this most difficult job should be reinforced with education and the access of knowledge on how to prevent mental and emotional problems

"I can see ways that our association can respond and that is by carrying on the services we already provide, such as our educational programs and our White Cross programs"

Mrs Hopkins says the attitudes of parents which are so important to the development of a child are not taught in school nor is there an emphasis on the importance and need for closeness in family relationships.

"I have sent advertisements to the board of education about our seminars and the director has given us some very good ideas on the need, for example, of preparing pre-kindergarten children but there is still a great need," she says

On the positive side she says people no longer have the attitude of horror when someone consults a psychiatrist or receives treatment in a psychiatric ward that they once had

"The child must be taught attitudes of acceptance and understanding regarding mentap illness at an early age rather than learning to ridicule those who are different from them."

She says that if parents put fear into the child's mind then the child is going to react with fear and become afraid of mental illness or of those who are different

One cause of mental disorders, she has observed, is if a child is different from his peers in size or with perhaps something like a lisp and is treated as different"

"Asking for help when you are having a problem is a sign of strength," she says "Attitudes such as the ones put forth by parents who say stand on your own two feet often result in people shying away from available services or in seeking knowledge

Mrs Hopkins says the family of today where the parents are separated or the mother has to work has taken its toll and is often very hard on the children

"It is as hard on kids to be with only one parent as it is on the parents" she says "The mother is at work worrying about the children, perhaps not making enough money to get by and then rushing home to cook supper and do the washing We live at such a fast pace with no time to relax and stop to take stock of what it is we want to accomplish or to just be with our family"

"We can show understanding, friendliness and be non discriminatory to those who are mentally sick," she says

Mental Health Week began May 6 and ends this Sunday.

Paradise is.....

Resort living all year round

Relaxing in the Rossland Park Country Club

Let's face it - even if you get away on a two-week trip every year to some exotic island or take a European tour that still leaves 50 weeks of facing the same routine day after day back home.

And if that's the case, shouldn't the place you live be as pleasant as possible so that it doesn't seem like 50 months rather than 50 weeks between vacations?

Many of the people moving daily to Rossland Park are doing so for that very reason With all the facilities Oshawa's finest rental complex has to offer the long hot summer and the cold dreary winter are things of the past

We can't say for sure but we think it's a pretty safe bet that some of our residents have decided to use their savings for a new car or a color television rather than for a trip once they realized they could get much of the same pleasure out of staying at home

There's swimming in our lifeguard supervised pool tennis on our two spacious courts trail riding at the Rossland Park Equestrian Centre and evening parties in our beautiful Country Club

And the nice thing about it all is that membership in our recreational facilities is included in your rent - which starts as low as $170 a month.

By having all the recreational facilities in the world in little comfort of your own house or apartment leaves a lot to be desired

Happily this isn't the case at Rossland Park The finest in materials and workmanship has become the hallmark of Karsinger Construction developer of Rossland Park And the best supervisory staff available is on hand to see that this reputation is maintained

With summer almost upon us now is the time to get in on all that Rossland Park has to offer Why not join us in Paradise?

Paradise is also a Rossland Park

Oshawa controller

You can't always give the public what it wants

According to Con. John McLaughlin, decision making is like eating pie.

To ensure personal bias doesn't interfere with a politician's decision you cut the pie and let the other guy have first choice, he says.

"I try to exercise an unbiased judgment," he says "I think the human tendency is to lean over backwards to avoid any bias."

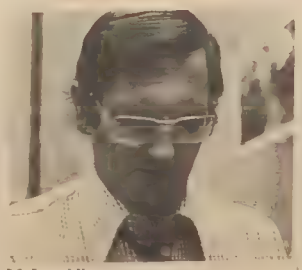
McLaughlin admits that on certain issues he does have personal leanings and he expresses his opinion on those issues, bias an all, because he believes that is the reason he was put on council

"But opinions change with information," he says. "I have changed my mind on some issues"

As a former alderman, he says he didn t understand the full operational manner of the board of control and doubts if all current aldermen do.

"The budget is a good example," he says. "The board of control gets a broad view of the budget procedure because we handle it step by step. But council gets it all at once."

He defines the major function of the board as the budget process. He says, however, that its actions are still under the scrutiny of council "Collectively we try to do what is right for Oshawa."



McLaughlin

A councillor cannot always be sensitive to the public, he says.

"Public opinion is an indication of public needs, but you can't always give the public what they want" he says "One way of measuring the effectiveness of what you are doing is whether the public on a whole agrees or disagrees."

He says he doesn't always agree with some of the delegations that appear before council, but that politicking is unavoidable, especially when there are large numbers of people in the galleries.

"Personally, I don't think politicking matters a darn when it comes to election time."

McLaughlin says he agrees with the way in which the city has prepared its regional brief.

"The board of control was directed to get the wheels in motion and I think we'll offer the best possible brief for Oshawa . . . which will achieve the most for the citizens."

He says he doubts if regional government will be effective in the near future because it will cause inefficiences and duplication.

"It will work out satisfactorily with time," he says. "By the turn of the century it will all be set up and working well in whatever form it takes and I think we'll all be better off for it."

McLaughlin toys with Novel

Could Controller John McLaughlin write that great Canadian novel?

There's a chance. He says he's kicked around the idea for a historical novel for 15 years He s just never gotten around to writing it.

"The only thing that's stopping me is inertia," McLaughlin says. "I've had the idea for a book in the back of my mind for years now. I've just never sat down to start."

If he was to ever write one, McLaughlin says his book would be historical, but fictional, "with a smattering of sex here and there"

The period would be between the conclusion of the First and Second World War during the "great boom years" in the Canadian economy. The setting would be the east coast, where Mc Laughlin hales from.

"It would be about average, everyday-people —with the odd exception —fighting for survival in an everday setting," McLaughlin says "I probably wouldn't get past the first chapter."

He says he's always been fascinated with that particular time period because "people went from unprecedented prosperity into the depression and while

Salary debate turned into mud-slinging

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following are some direct quotes and paraphrased excerpts from council and public debate on the controversial salary increase.

Various groups and some of the electorate are opposed... It is incumbent to give those pressure groups' some indication that we'll be cognizant of their representation"---Ald. Cliff Pilkey.

"I can't think of any issue that has generated so much press publicity... the raise was untimely, secretive, undemocratic and the original intent of the motion was lost"---Ed Kolodzie.

Your're narrow minded, Mr Kolodzie, in more ways than one' ---

You're narrow-minded, Mr. Kolodzie, in more ways than one"---Ald. John DeHart.

"You can play with figures all you like Mr Kolodzie, but I suggest to you that what you ought to be talking about is actual figures... No one I negotiate for (in union negotiations) gets a $3,000 salary"--- Ald. Pilkey.

"Your group (Oshawa Council of Ratepayers' Associations) does just not represent the citizens of this city --Ald. Mike Lisko.

"Some of your arguments were facile (Mr Kolodzie) In fact, they were rather dumb! ---Ald. Jack Wiley.

"There is a lot of difference between two per cent of a bicycle and two per cent of a Cadillac"--- Ald. Pilkey.

"How much of a newspaper's editorial content reflects the comments of the citizens? I suggest you take your reams of paper and use them for show and tell. Some people are so narrow-minded they can look through a key hole with both eyes."--- Ald. Wiley.

"You're a manufacturer in Ajax, Kolodzie, do YOU have a union shop? '--- Ald. Keith Ross.

"I resent that remark I believe you took this opportunity tonight to knock me. Remember that I'm having to defend myself against 17 people, and that's quite a task. I invite any one of you to come to a ratepayers' meeting and do the same."--- Kolodzie.

"I'm just a regular citizen and what I have to say has been approved unanimously by me. Last council wanted to vote itself a raise too, but our sin was right out in the open. For what you are about to receive, the Lord might be truly thankful... Former alderman Bob Moon.

"I have always enjoyed your way with words and sell it for

"I have always enjoyed your way with words, Bob. But sometimes Iwish you'd package your way with words and sell it for fertilizer. '—Ald. Lisko.

These young men no sooner find themselves on council then they are so overwhelmed, so selfishly egotistical, so arrogantly self-centered.. pompous aristocrats. "---Moon.

"'You can't paint everyone with the same tar brush" — Ald. Bruce McArthur

I'm not going to justify whether I'm worth it or not"--- Con. Graham Coulter.

"No one who was invited to those closed meetings was forced to attend"---Lisko

"I would like to defend publicly the right of this council to hold caucus meetings."--- Con. John McLaughlin.

'It is unfortunate council cannot deal with things in a different way" ---Ald. Alan Dewar

I for one am not going to sneer at anyone's remarks; I'm going to put them all in the hopper and see what comes out"--- Ald. George Drynan.

"Well gentlemen, we've had six or seven weeks of it not...People say it was done in secret, some things have to be . We have to be able to let our hair down There has been mention made of my automobile and chauffeur...I'm the chief magistrate...I don't think this is wrong We're not a small town and I'm trying to upgrade this city- Mayor Jim Potticary.

"I don't think the elected people have been harsh on the electorate ' -- Pilkey.

It was a legal motion everybody had a chance to speak on it --Potticary.

A lot has been said that didn't need to be said tonight former alderman Alice Reardon.

I'm willing to listen to anyone who has constructive criticism to make But I'm not willing to listen to any more ---Potticary

"It's the difference between two percent of a bicycle and two percent of a Cadillac," and that's how Alderman Cliff Pilkey summed up the salary debate

Students learn of community

More than 50 Donevan Collegiate students abandoned the classroom to investigate what services the community has to offer as part of their Man in Society course last week

The students, in small groups, visited as many community services as they could during the one-day excursions, including the alcoholic unit at the Whitby Psychiatric Hospital

At the unit, the patients volunteered to show the students the facilities available, to talk about their individual problems and answer any questions the students might have.

Other groups visited Hillsdale Manor, the Oshawa Day-Care Centre, the home for mentally retarded children in Ajax and the men's hostel in Oshawa

The idea of the outing was to give the students first-hand knowledge of community services from the standpoint of availability and operation

Back in the classroom the students are required to write a report on their experiences, and a few will make presentations to the whole group some survived, many didn't.'

He says he probably won't get to try his hand at the book until he retires, but that isn't bothering him. "It took Richard Bach nine years to write Jonathan Livingston Seagull."

Besides his desire to write, the controller says he's never had any real ambition to do any more than he is right now

"My main ambition is to do the best I can and not necessarily financially. I've never had any ambition to be prime minister, or anything like that."

The quiet-spoken and somewhat reserved councillor is considered one of the most knowledgeable council members by some of his colleagues. He says he disagrees with the statement

"Some people think while they talk," he says, "I'm the type that thinks before I say anything."

When he first ran for council as an alderman in 1970, McLaughlin said the reason was that he was "talked into municipal politics."

At that time, he says, many of the old councillors had decided not to run for re-election and he was "urged to make a contribution along with other responsible citizens"

"Any lawyer has more than a passing interest in politics and I'm no different," he says. "I guess the profession has something to offer politics, at least more so than other professions."

He says the first pre-requisite of a politician is to have the ability to get elected and "you're not much of a politician if you can't"

Very candidly, McLaughlin says his drawing power at the polls was the fact that he is a lawyer

"Lawyers can get elected," he says. "That was the plus I had going for me. You usually get votes from your personal contacts and the broader base of contacts you have, the more votes you will get."

Married with three school-age children, McLaughlin says he doubts if he will run for regional council.

"I might consider running as a local councillor (if the province grants the city's recommendation of having local councillors once regional government arrives)," he says. "I guess it's all a matter of weighing the sacrifices as far as family life goes and the satisfaction of public office

Shoppers in pyjamas, insomniacs and just plain folks visit Ranch

by Garnet Cowsill
Staff Writer

One of the livelier nightspots in town isn't a nightclub, it's a supermarket

Ranch Supermarket, 1188 Simcoe St. S., open 24 hours a day, is like a magnet for insomniacs needing hardware for their hobbies, pet lovers, and shift-workers who don't like to be rushed when they do their weekly shopping

Joan De Rosie, the graveyard shift cashier at Ranch for about a year, says most of the customers are people who are on shift and don't want to get up in the morning to do their grocery shopping, people who have been out to town and need to replenish their milk supply at home, or people who are leaving for the cottage and want to get some shopping done before they leave at 5 a.m

But insomniacs, you ask?

Well, Mrs. De Rosie tells the story about a man that came rushing into the store at about 3 a.m. looking for a can of spray paint

Apparently, she says, the man couldn't sleep so he decided to work on his son's bicycle which he had torn apart in the basement. He got it together again and decided to finish it off with a paint job before going back to bed

Unfortunately, Mrs De Rosie says, the man had to wait until the next morning because Ranch doesn't sell paint, even though it sells just about everything else

A majority of the goods the store sells between midnight and 5 a.m. she says, are bread, milk, breakfast cereal, cigarettes and pet food

Picture this if you can

A man comes into the supermarket, again at about 3 a.m., dressed in an overcoat and pajamas

"Where's your dog food?" he asks hurriedly

These are not unlike some of the typical people who frequent Ranch in the wee hours of the morning. But there are the more regular customers who Mrs. De Rosie says she can spot as soon as they come in the door

Most are General Motors shift workers just getting off work who have the midnight "munchies" and decide to stop in for a bottle of coke and potato chips to eat after they get home.

Mrs. De Rosie tells him where it is and he takes off like a shot up the aisle and is back in seconds with a single can of Dr. Ballard's best

"Our dog ran out of food and he's barked so much the whole family is awake," the man explains sheepishly. "I thought I'd better get him some food, or strangle him!"

And he disappears in the night as quickly as he came

Most people don't believe me when I tell them I work in a supermarket in the middle of the night," Mrs. De Rosie says (And it isn't hard to understand why)

What do people buy at 1:30 a.m. ? These are some of the items bought while a reporter stood at the cash register interviewing Mrs. De Rosie

Two rose bushes, a loaf of bread and tomatoes; two cans of dog food, two cans of cat food and bird seed, one package of Cheerios and two packages of cigars, one large tin of tomato juice; one roll of tin foil and two chocolate bars, bread, brownies, cheese and butter; two grapefruit, sardines, cat food and bird seed

At about 1 a.m., one lady came in dressed in an evening gown and bought one frozen pizza, one bottle of coke, one cake, a loaf of bread—and panty hose!

"We get a lot of people coming in for aspirins for their headaches in the middle of the night or ointments for the baby," says Mrs. De Rosie. "Then there are always the working girls who come rushing in at 7 a.m after they put a run in their nylons and need a new pair before they go to work "

Ranch, by the way, is the only 24-hour supermarket in Oshawa, and store Manager Ed Novinka says this is what has contributed to its success

"I think it's the 24-hour concept that's done it. People can come in during the middle of the night and they don't have to wait in line or feel like they're rushed At a conventional store, the meat and produce section is usually ripped out by 6 p.m. Here, it's always there and people have a pretty good choice of goods at 3 a.m."

One couple came in at 1:30 a.m. and bought $52 02 worth of groceries. Asked why they did their shopping at that time in the morning, the woman said it was simple: "Because we both work nights."

A MOTHER'S DAY THOUGHT

How do you best describe Mom? All the songs that have been written do not really express how wonderful she is. For, to each of us there is a something so special about our own mother that nobody else's words can say it for us

If one special attribute above all others had to be chosen it would certainly have to be the seemingly infinite capacity to soothe and comfort her dear ones when they are ill. At these times she never seems to get tired or cross and is always right there with a comforting word and your medicine. We consider it our privilege in this pharmacy to help Mom

"A great many people have chosen us to be their personal family pharmacy. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty, and will do all we ethically can to live up to it. We welcome requests for delivery service".

City puts brakes on housing subsidies

By Garnet Cowsill
Staff Writer

No new housing developments!

That's one of the underlying policy precedents in Oshawa's current budget that may be equally important as any millrate decrease.

To create a more balanced residential versus commercial and industrial tax base, city council is trying to limit residential growth.

Non-residential taxpayers (industry and commerce) pay huge chunks of the municipal tax levy thereby lessening the burden to the residential taxpayer if there is a balanced tax base

In Oshawa, however, residential developments have surged in the past few years, and thus that tax burden to the homeowner is ever increasing

To slow down housing city council has allocated only enough money to service developments already on the planning books Any developer about to start a building project will have to wait in line until next year.

"The city wants to slow down residential development and encourage commercial and industrial development," says planning board chairman Ald. Bruce McArthur. "Right now there's a great (tax base) imbalance which will only mean higher residential taxes. As far as tax revenues are concerned, residential development is a dead

In the city's budget adopted last week, $97,000 has been alloted to help subsidize the servicing of housing developments. Servicing includes paving, storm sewers, granular bases, curbs gutters and other little extras

According to Con Allan Pilkey that money will just meet the expenses of servicing developments on the books now. If a developer comes to the city with plans in August, he says, that developer will have to wait until next year or pay for the servicing himself

"I think we are establishing a precedent," says Pilkey. "It's never been done before; in fact, it's gone unchecked. Now is the time to take a look at it The tax ratio is going the wrong way and that means a burden to the residential taxpayer."

That tax ratio Pilkey speaks about is currently 57 per cent residential and 43 per cent non-residential. It has been steadily worsening since 1969, he says, when it was 55-45.

Because city funds are used to service residential developments, McArthur says it costs the taxpayers more than $290 to service a single family dwelling and$300 for a duplex, while the city breaks even servicing apartment buildings. It costs more today, he says, because those figures are based on a 1968 study

Pilkey says the move was made at the right time because Oshawa probably had one of the most liberal housing policies in Ontario.

"If we want to, we can turn the taps and let the Toronto overflow in here anytime," Pilkey says. But right now the city wants to cool down home building

McArthur says the city has really run out of land for housing within the current corporate limits

"We've got about three years of land left for new development," McArthur says. He adds that regional government and expanding city limits will undoubtably give more land to developers to play with

"European money is coming in and buying up land in close proximity to the city," he notes.

Both concepts are equally justified and it will be interesting to see which one wins out over the other---shelter or economics

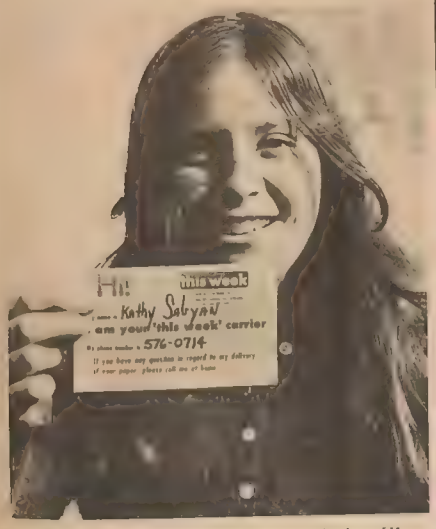
Meet Kathleen!

(Route 433)



Kathleen Sabyan, 1514 Oxford Street, Oshawa, is a daughter of Mr and Mrs. J. J. Sabyan.

Kathleen is one of 445 This Week carriers who will be out during the next two weeks to leave their business cards with you, the reader.

Kathleen-all-smiles, and her 444 youthful colleagues will ask you where exactly you would like them to leave your This Week - inside the backdoor, or inside the front, or in the milk box, or perhaps another spot most convenient to you.

Kathleen wants to make very sure you get your This Week on time, every Wednesday.

Kathleen and her 444 colleagues would also like to record your name and address in their carrier delivery books.

We at This Week hope you'll return Kathleen's smile and that you'll keep her card in a safe place. Her's and those of the other 444 also.

Kathleen and colleagues will be back at the end of May to collect from you a 50-cent voluntary delivery payment.

If you like the job your carrier does for you and the product the carrier delivers faithfully every Wednesday, we hope you'll become a paying reader. When Kathleen and colleagues come to collect they'll give you an official receipt that'll be worth a minimum or $1 off merchandize at a number of Oshawa and area retail outlets.

Wiley's arts centre is a great idea says Clancy

Sir

I am feeling good that Ald Jack Wiley and your paper are trying to get a performing arts centre for Oshawa

I tried to spark it in "The Oshawa Times" last election time, and got absolutely no response. This time I feel more optimistic. Let's get it rolling!

I am interested in the negative responses that Ald Wiley talks about Who are these negative people, and why?

The musical and artistic population of Oshawa has never been greater It's time for a 1,500 seat auditorium and rehearsal hall complex

The image of Oshawa needs a positive lift We all know about cars and factories and hockey arenas Okay, but there is more to life

And the citizens of this city deserve it. All in favor —say aye? All opposed—tell me why?

It's time, it's time, it's time

Mike Clancy

Letter to education minister

Sir

I am deeply concerned with the taking of God's name in vain in our English literature books in our schools this present day

It is a grave injustice, disrespectful, obnoxious and heartbreaking to the Christian parents and children in the province of Ontario

It grieves and saddens the heart and life of everyone who holds the name of Jesus in respect, purity and love

Honorable Mr Wells, may I request that you exercise your authority by having the taking of God's name in vain removed from all school books and all filthy language and all that shows and implies disrespect for God's name and Christianity or will you permit thousands of our youth to continue to profane the name of God through their studies and reading, which will result in some youth profaning God's name who would not otherwise?

Rev. R. H. James

Howl of protest

Sir

Concerning your article on May 2, on performance of Whiskey Howl

There comes a time when I wonder what gives people like you the right to voice an opinion about something you obviously don't understand

I am sure Harry Silver went through a great expense to bring Whitby-Oshawa-Ajax-residence something just a little different when he hired Whiskey Howl and group

I myself and perhaps a few other musiclovers were very happy with the performance Whiskey Howl gave

And it wasn't rock Jazz with a modern touch, yes—but not rock There was a group who still know how to improvise on any piece of music

As for Whiskey Howl's singing I would consider it something very special since 'Scat' is done seldom any better, if it is done at all these days

But look it up or listen to Cab Calloway once Whiskey Howl's version of Woody Herman's 30-year-old 'Caldonia' with just that particular voice was absolutely great

As for clothing—I've seen better and I've seen worse It wasn't meant to be a fashion show

Loud they were, I agree But give me that natural sound of horns any time over the winding—grinding noise of these new guitars amplified to their fullest

I should know I am working under these guys every night behind the bar

Henry

Sir,

Your writer's remarks on "Whiskey Howl" were fairly sad. He found the nail but damaged his thumb whacking it

Another vote for togetherness

Sir

We are in favor of daddies in the delivery room!

I had a baby boy in November My husband was with me all through the labor and it's a pity he had to miss the best part, the birth of his son

I wanted him with me but the hospital's rules at the time did not permit it

My friends and relatives in Toronto all had their husbands with them

At our pre-natal class reunion they were also hurt that the rules were lifted after their babies were born. I'm sure you will hear from some of them too

The hospital deserves congratulations on its improvements! What about rooming in now?

Dorothy Mattingby

Dangerous situation should be curbed

Sir: A child on a tricycle was poised at the top of a rise on a sidewalk sloping directly into Lakefield St in South Oshawa

The child could have ridden straight down the asphalt slope and onto the street, for there was no curb to hinder

Someday, unless there is preventive action, a child such as this may be hurt

Readers write

The solution is simple and inexpensive: place a stepped curb between the intersection and the roadway itself

When this situation was drawn to the attention of the city two months ago, the official answer was that children would go around the curb by riding down the boulevard instead

We of the South Oshawa Community Association do not accept this as a valid reply. We know that the parents in the neighborhood are concerned, because they have told us so

This is the situation in detail so that all the citizens of Oshawa may know

On the north side of Beaupre Street,there is a 45-degree, four-foot vertical drop on the sidewalk sloping into the Lakefield intersection, without curb

On the south side of Beaupre, there is a one-and-a-half-foot drop vertically into Lakefield, without curb.

At Gaspe Street, there is a one-and-a-half-foot vertical drop on the north side, and a one-and-a-half-foot drop on the south side, at Lakefield. This is a four-way intersection. No curb exists

At Laurentian, there is a two-foot vertical descent on both the north side and south side sidewalks into Lakefield There is no curb

We believe this situation needs proper attention before an incident makes the parents with placards an imperative

Dan Chappell,South Oshawa, Community Association

Bouquets for shelter

Sir

I work in Oshawa and read recently of the temporary animal shelter now in Oshawa and the fact of their having things to sell from donated goods etc

I had an unused bird cage so took it down there and found a beautifully clean and pleasant place to visit The volunteers that man this store are to be congratulated

There were quite a few cats there, mostly strays that had been brought in and as a lot of them were obviously not too straggly looking I would imagine had merely got lost

So anyone who has lost a cat recently and doesn't know of the shelter will find it at Simcoe and John right over from the band shell, and incidently, if you're getting rid of anything at all saleable take it to this nice little shelter

They'll be glad of it for their operating expenses and you might see something there you'd like to buy as well

They do stock new pet supply items as well, so the next time you need to buy a flea collar or whatever try there first

Jan Sullivan
Agincourt

Truckers' tarnished image

Sir: Several months ago the Minister of Transportation and Communications the Hon. Gordon Carton, Q.C., commented in the press on the lack of courtesy on the part of commercial vehicles and their apparent disregard for the convenience of other users of the highways

He particularly pointed to commercial vehicles driving two and three abreast on hills and bridge approaches thereby preventing the passage of faster moving traffic.

At that time, the minister suggested that unless the transportation industry, as a whole, policed itself and an improvement in the driving habits was noted, he would be compelled to institute legislation to correct the situation

Such legislation has now been enacted. Effective immediately, trucks are not permitted to use the left-hand lane whenever a freeway has three or more lanes in one direction

On high volume freeways with only two lanes in one direction, signs advising "Slover Traffic Keep Right" are now being erected

While supporting the new legislation, observations of Ontario Safety League staff members indicate that the use of the left-hand lane by trucks on multi-lane highways is actually less of an impediment to the free flow of traffic than is the thoughtless use of the centre lane

Pilkey says budget should be understandable

By Garnet Cowsill
Staff Writer

Why are budgets always prepared by bureaucrats, adopted by politicians, and left for the press to interpret?

Why are budgets always seemingly a mass of unrelated figures that the average working Joe could never even begin to understand unless he did a lot of homework?

Why can't representatives of the public and separate school boards get together with city council and explain their budgets in layman's terms to the public at a special town-hall-type meeting?

These were some of the questions Con Allan Pilkey couldn't answer in a recent interview

He did admit, however, that he wouldn't have been able to understand the city't budget if he hadn't been one of the ones who put it together

Take the public school board budget. One of our reporters who attended the meeting where the municipal apportionment was handed over by the board couldn't understand the presentation or relate to it as an average taxpayer in dollars and cents without poring over figures for hours

Whitby Mayor Des Newman says nobody, but nobody, knows how school boards figure out their budgets, and he admits he's in the same boat

All the discretion for arriving at the method of distributing costs, he says, appears to lie at the provincial staff level, and he suspects that the province "wants a complex system to adjust the impact on municipalities as they chose"

At the separate board level, according to Chairman Terry O'Connor, nobody even knew its budget had been adopted by the board until the press found out by accident two days later

Controller Allan Pilkey

In fact, Oshawa Mayor Jim Potticary was quoted as recently as last week as having said the city was still waiting for the separate school budget to be brought down. It was adopted March 26!

Both the boards' documents are equally as confusing and meaningless to the average man as the city's

The taxpayer is footing the bill. He's even paying for the budget document to be prepared--why can't it be in everyday language so at least he'll be able to understand it?

One good feature in the city's current budget was a chart showing which department got how much of the total millrate. At least a person could look at the chart and see where parts of his tax dollars were going.

It took another staff writer almost a full day of interviews to discover what the city's 53-page budget document was all about. Why shouldn't the people be afforded the same thing.

Why not a public meeting next year—in English!

Picked in its Prime

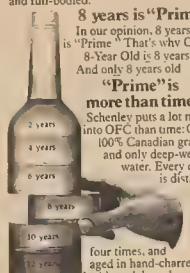
The more you know about whisky, the better for OFC 8-Year Old. The Prime Canadian.

For starters: New OFC 8-Year Old is aged a full 2 years longer than either of the two largest selling premium brands

Thus, age alone, should make us better. But any good distiller will tell you, it takes more than time to make a whisky prime.

The truth about age

2-year Old Canadian rye is pale, harsh and unmatured. Around 12, it's darker and has begun to take on a heavy 'woody' taste. In between 2 and 12, at one point in time, Canadian whisky is in "The Prime of Life": golden, mellow, smooth and full-bodied.



8 years is "Prime"

In our opinion, 8 years old is "Prime." That's why OFC 8-Year Old is 8 years old. And only 8 years old

"Prime" is more than time

Schenley puts a lot more into OFC than time: Only 100% Canadian grains and only deep-welled water. Every drop is distilled four times, and aged in hand-charred, white oak barrels for a full 8 years

Finally we blend after aging

Why after? So that, despite differences from barrel to barrel, OFC never differs from bottle to bottle. Or glass to glass 120 separate taste tests ensure it and each bottle carries this numbered back label This is Schenley's Guarantee of "Prime" 8-Year Old Quality "Prime Quality." Thousands are switching to OFC and taste is the reason.

Try OFC 8-Year Old. We think you'll find it a very rewarding experience.

Land ripoff

Industry gets eight times as much for money as citizen

Industry gets a break eight times over as far as the price of land in Oshawa goes. A brief submitted to the provincial advisory task force on housing supports landbanking for the Oshawa area. Mayor James Potticary has intimated that if the Oshawa Airport is relocated, the present site will be used for this purpose.

Privately-owned residential land sells for about eight times more than city-owned industrial land.

That in itself could be a prime agrument in favor of governments getting into land banking.

An Oshawa brief submitted to the provincial advisory task force on housing policy does in fact support municipal governments starting a land banking system.

The land banking principle is one that would allow governments to expropriate, or buy up, large tracts of land at low prices and bank them until a need for housing becomes apparent

Since the price of land today in the private sector is one of the causes of spiralling housing costs, the government could sell the land at just above cost price thereby keeping the cost of housing down

One negative reaction to this principle is the argument that a city is not in the real estate business. But in a way, it is

City Industrial Commissioner Bob Nicol says the city owns between 300 and 350 acres of land in Oshawa that it banks and sells to locating industries as they come into the area

There are two major holdings in the east and west of the city. Last year, he says, the city sold about 100 acres to industry and the Crown-operated harbour commission.

On the average, he says, the city sells an acre of serviced land to an industry for between $15,000 and $20,000. An acre is 43,560 square feet.

Lloyd Metcalf, local realtor says an average residential lot, zoned R1-b, was selling last week for about $20,000. The average lot in that zoning would range around 5,000 square feet.

The city sells eight times as much land for the same price!

"It is apparent that the spiralling cost of vacant serviced land, an increase of 135 per cent from 1965 to 1971, has been the major factor causing an increase in single detached home prices of 72 per cent during the same period," the city brief says.

by garnet cowsill

As a result, the brief adds, an increasing proportion of households are unable to enter the private housing market in Oshawa.

"There can be no question that a public land bank and pre-servicing program would result in lower prices to the public," the brief states.

The brief backs up this statement with six points:

There is no speculative profit on raw land prices and land can be bought well in advance of need and sold for acquisition cost plus carrying charges. Servicing costs would also be included, and the brief suggests the municipality could make a small profit as interest on its investment.

"Over the same time, between acquisition and sale, privately developed land may turn over a dozen times and raw land prices be multiplied 10 20 or more times, under pressure of market forces," the brief says

Secondly, governments can buy more cheaply with power of expropriation at fair market value without paying holdout prices.

Thirdly, because of its planning powers, governments can ensure that all of its land is marketed. It will always buy in the right place.

As a fourth reason, the brief says public holding costs are lower because it can borrow money more cheaply.

Public servicing costs might also be lower, it says

And, not only is publicly developed land cheaper than that developed privately, but large scale public land development activity has a moderating effect on private prices

"The knowledge that a large inventory of public land can flood the market any time that price increases get out of hand discourages excessive profit taking," the brief says.

The brief recommended that the province acquire sufficient land in the proposed area of Oshawa to meet the needs of homebuyers for the next 10 years.

It also recommends that the province make available land to the city at cost plus interest and carrying charges over a 25-year period.

Its last recommendation asks the province to ensure funds for pre servicing of publicly-owned land.

Sharp curve ahead

Bob James, 11, of Oshawa shows his prowess on a minibike during trials sponsored by the recreation department last Saturday. The department hopes to make the event an annual affair.

Home care frees hospital beds for seriously ill

by jane milne

An example of how several autonomous organizations can work together for one common goal is seen in Oshawa and district through the success of a Home Care Program.

Administered by the Oshawa-Ontario County District Health Unit and financed by the Ontario Department of Health the program involves co-ordinated planning evaluation and follow-up procedures under the direction of a physician who arranges for medical care for selected patients at home.

"We buy homemaking services or we buy nursing time," says Dr. Dorcas Beaton, medical director of the program

"We try to co-ordinate the needs of patients referred to us by physicians and we will get in touch with the Victorian Order of Nurses for example if the patients need nursing care," she says

Dr. Beaton says that 97 per cent of the patients the program helps are in need of nursing care with the majority of cases being post-surgical or orthopedic and the second largest in number, the circulatory cases involving people who have had strokes or suffer from cardiac conditions

"The problem could be just about anything," she says, "from broken bones to a terminal malignancy

All of the nurses whose services the program pays for are registered nurses and many have had additional training in public health nursing

The services of Red Cross Homemakers are also purchased for those few patients who are unable to rely on family members for help in light housekeeping or the preparation of meals

The criteria for patient eligibility for home care is governed by several factors which include insurance of the patient under the Ontario Health Insurance Plan, supervision of an attending physician and a medical condition which requires home treatment involving the services available through the Home Care Program

If a patient can be treated on an out-patient basis of if his needs do not include home nursing, physiotherapy, occupational therapy or speech therapy, then the program is not available to him

The homemaking service of the Red Cross is not considered in the above categories of professional service. This service can also be alleviated by the Red Cross 'Meals on Wheels' which provides housebound patients with nourishing meals

Barbara Harburn, administrator of the Home Care Program, says it is also important to involve the family of the patient and if the home is suitable to enable the required care to be given, members of the family are encouraged to participate

'Last year the program helped 652 patients in the area covered by the Home Care Program," she says and estimated that the length of care was 26 days

The advantages of home care includes the contentment of patients being in their own home, their activity and independence in familiar surroundings and of course the hospital beds which become available by shortening or alleviating the need for hospital care

Future counselling seminars hinge on region says Cardillo

The wait-and-see-what-happens-when-regional-government-takes-effect answer has been given again to the citizens of Oshawa

This time the subject is the future plans for discussion series on marriage and family life as was presented last February through March by the Oshawa Family Counselling Service

"We have given a report on the series to the city and the politicians are happy about it and have acknowledged its success," says Dr Ralph Cardillo, director of the counselling service

"The city wants more series in the future but it is dependent on a number of circumstances, primarily decisions of regional government for which everyone is waiting," he says

Dr Cardillo initiated the series along with his staff who worked on the project on their own time to see if ths community would respond and show a need for such a program

"More than 700 people in all attended and participated in the six-part discussion series, " he says. "Eighty-five per cent of the participants were residents of Oshawa while 15 per cent were residents of the surrounding area."

He says that th series which delved into interest areas concerning marriage and the family from engaged couples to retirement-age marriages, accomplished several purposes and in particular, gave a total of 750 people the opportunity to participate

Dr. Ralph Cardillo has been left wondering whether his highly-successful family counselling seminar program will be repeated next year.

"The series provided a construcive and relaxed group structure to supplement or replace in some cases, the counselling and therapy a significant number of persons were receiving individually," he says.

With the input of community resource people and speakers along with appropriate movies, Cardillo says the series provided solutions or at least positive answers for some people who had marital or family problems but who for some reason were unwilling to seek individual help

The churches also benefitted from the series by complementing their own programs of helping people in the areas of interest discussed by directing their members to certain parts or all of the series.

Dr Cardillo and his staff of social workers say the series did and could in the future act as a catalyst to other prominent organizations within the community "to enchance their efforts to promote the quality of married and family life."

The success of the series also pointed out how resource people within the community could share their knowledge and experience and Cardillo says he is encouraged by their response and that of the general public for future series

"The success gave us a basis for the need and desire for a future series to focus in depth on very specific problems and definite areas of interest affecting the quality of married and family life in ths City of Oshawa and surrounding area."

He says although the counselling service has not made a definite request for more money or an increase in staff, he is hopeful that regional government will do this and therefore make future series possible.

RELIGION

World is heading for calamity

The nations that forget God shall be turned into Hell The Bible proclaims this very plainly but forcibly

Nations are made up of individuals so it follows that if you as an individual forget or leave God and His principles of right living out of your life, you will create a life of Hell on earth for yourself

The final outcome will be eternal separation from God but the choice is yours so don't blame God if you miss Heaven

A small town got too big once and decided it didn't need any churches but such bedlam broke loose that they pleaded for them to re-open The reason is that the churches provide a foundation of right living -- thinking of the other guy and his property and feelings and a genuine love for your fellow man

I'm not going to suggest that every boy that is going to Sunday School will refrain from breaking a few windows but I do believe that the majority of people attending church and truly serving God will have more respect for others than those who do not.

Christian friend, be careful that you are living up to God's expectations of you. You represent Him and as a mirror reflect Christ to your world

Nations have told God they don't need Him and they close the church doors and open everything to the public that is against the character of God

For example they make drugs legal, give people licence to abuse their bodies in acts of homosexuality and lesbianism, make alcohol available to teenagers while having to admit that most deaths are caused by drinking drivers and most of them are under the age of 25

Pornography may be made legal if a lot of people have their way so they can make a fast dollar. An article in the "Star" was headlined with: "Law reformers want Ottawa to abandon controls on obscenity"

Before long, everything that is right and Godly and good for us will be abandoned because people don't use the brains God has given them and all they want are the pleasures of the moment but forget the outcome down the road

A member of our church ordered 10 Bibles from a local book store recently and after they arrived he was told the price was up 25 per cent above the quoted price just two weeks before when they were ordered

He asked them if they had increased the price of the "Happy Hooker" as well and they replied in the negative. Which proves the point that they make it easier for people to buy dirty books than to purchase the world's best seller-The Word of God

This man took his business to a Gospel book store where he won't be cheated or tainted

What all this amounts to is that as individuals you and I must be on guard to protect ourselves and our families from the filth of this generation that is attempting to close church doors and take the rest of us down the road to hell on earth and hell in eternity, with them

I say hell on earth because of the awful torment and misery caused by free love bringing venereal diseases-drugs causing suicide and murder and blown minds-alcohol which presents an endless list-filth in books, T.V. radio, newspapers which poison minds and gives a warped view of what God intended

Get with it, world-you're headed for calamity. You need God in your life and you can have Him through faith in Christ

FAITH OUR TITLE DEEDS

Some 4000 years ago God called forth an idolotious Gentile by the name of Abram from Ur of the Chaldees God made this man many great and gracious promises Among other things he was to become the father of the Hebrew people These people were to become God's convenant people and have the promises made to Abram confirmed to them through their fathers Isaac & Jacob

One of the promises that God made to Abram involved the land of Palestine "I am the Lord that brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees to give thee this land to inherit it (Gen 15 7) In verse 18 of the same chapter we have the boundaries of that land given

God re-confirmed the promises He made to Abram in chapter 17, adding further details "And Abram fell on his face and God talked with him saying, 'As for Me, behold, My convenant is with thee, and thou shalt be the father of many nations And I will establish My covenant between thee and Me and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan for an everlasting possess on And I will be the God "!

Neither Abraham or his seed did anything to merit the great gift of God they received these promises by the grace of God through faith That is God spoke to Abram promising him these things and Abram believed GOD, and thus by faith received "title deed" to the promised land There was no merit on Abram's part, or on the part of his seed that followed him they received "title deed simply by believing God concerning the land It was by grace through faith

All the "title deeds" that God is pleased to give are given and received in exactly the same way This is true of personal salvation God desires to give the gift of eternal life to every person, He is not willing that any should be lost However "title deed" to eternal life cannot be received on the basis of merit(for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God)not "title deed" to eternal life must be received in the same manner that Abram received the land, by grace through faith God has made all the provision in the Lord Jesus Christ, He has paid the penalty of sin for all of mankind All that is necessary now to receive title deed to eternal life is to believe God concerning the gift in Christ Jesus our Lord

"GIVING THE GLORY TO GOD"

Getting their backs into it

Meredith Cutting and eight-year-old Yvonne Solty are two of the students turning themselves from landlubbers to old salts at the Whitby Sailing School.

Visit Paris?

Two dozen young people from across Ontario will have the chance to visit France for three weeks this June as part of an exchange program

The Ontario ministry of education, who will pay the group's air fair from Montreal to Paris, will select applicants representing academic, business, technical and agricultural interests who are between the ages of 18 and 25 years of age, who have a good command of spoken French

While in France, the young people will be guests of the French government and will be billeted in private homes and youth hostels with the purpose of the trip being to observe first-hand the cultural, economic and political aspects of France

Application forms, which must be completed and returned by May 15, are available from the Cultural Exchange Programs, Ministry of Education, 15th Floor Mowat Block, Toronto M7A 1LA

Contact this week

Sir:

About a week and a half ago, I entered into an agreement with Peleshok Motors in Ajax to buy a 1964 Chevrolet, in mint condition with only 24,000 miles on it, for $532 When I went back the next week to pay for the car and pick it up, I was told it was no longer for sale It seems the contract is not final until the owner of the dealership signs the agreement

The reason given me for not selling me the car was that they had decided not to sell it at all and were going to store the car. I don't feel this is fair and I wonder how many times this happens to others when buying a car

This Week contacted Harry Peleshok Jr. and was told that they had indeed decided to keep the car for sentimental reasons. It seems that next year is their 10th anniversary in business and they want the car for display when the 1974 models come out.

You'll be happy to know you're not the only one who wanted that car. The dealer tells us they've had many calls about it, and even had an OPP officer write out a $700 cheque on the sopt, but he didn't get it either

The dealer apoligizes for the trouble to you, and informs us he has offered you any other used car on the lot at trade-in value. He says he had offered you a 1965 Mustang at $500, fully serviced and with the usual warranty. All you have to do is drop over.

Meanwhile, the '64 Chevy is still on the lot, but is not for sale.

Do you feel you have reached a dead end in your attempts to make a business, government department or other organization see your side of a problem? Why not contact This Week and let us look into the matter for you?

General Motors thought you'd like to know how your car or truck is built...so come and find out... just for the fun of it!

A MECHANICAL HAND
See the hoist that swings each matching seat cleanly, precisely into each car body General Motors has a hand in all the ways of better car building Even a mechanical one

"ICING ON THE CAKE"
See the metal finishers shape fluid metal into concave welds with a deft touch of the torch and a wooden spatula—just like icing a cake

OUR ASSEMBLY LINE IS A WELL OILED MACHINE
It has to be one of the great wonders of our automotive world Follow a car or truck Any car or truck from start to finish Watch the components come together Amazing!

SOUND WAVE WELDING
Sonic welders, using the principle of molecular disturbance, bond clear and colored lamp lenses in the North Plant plastic division

MERRILY IT ROLLS ALONG!
The roll test A simulated road test that checks each car's mechanical performance before it leaves the plant. Just like going up to 50 miles per hour and standing still!

THRILL TO THE BODY DROP!
Watch in amazement as engines and bodies meet and match the chassis Thrilling achievements are all in a day's work at General Motors

THE "ELECTRONIC FINGER"
See the "magic finger" of the massive Keller Duplicator trace a pattern to guide cutting tools on a huge block of steel in North Plant Fabrication.

THE WATER TEST
Each car passes through an incredible deluge. General Motors quality control experts run a tight ship. So they fish for holes and leaks so you won't have to Visit the colorful new car and truck display.

Oshawa Transit will be running buses from downtown to the GM Southplant via Park Road every half hour starting at 6:15 p.m.

Donna Fargo, school teacher turned country singer and songwriter of Happiest Girl in the USA, and Funny Face fame, visits Oshawa Civic Auditorium Sunday May 13 along with Hank Williams Jr., Jan Howard and a fine supporting cast.

In Redd's opinion

Bleeding hearts and stomping boots

Starring at the Starlite room in the Genosha Hotel Oshawa this past week were the Rod and Carol Duo

They offered country folk and light rock and on the whole were quite listenable Rod, the male half, sings well and combines well with Carol in duets and harmony Carol as a solorst is a little weak and the whole act would come off better with fewer attempts at comedy

The odd layout of the room tends to mess the sound and required quite a lot of volume adjusting from song to song depending on the type of number played

Well, the Canadian talent bleeding hearts are at it again, this time led by "Stompin Tom Connors"

Tom feels that he was slighted by not being offered a spot on this year's CNE Grandstand Show, but he was offered a spot on the band shell show and turned it down

Tom Connors is a talented performer without question

I personally recognized this fact as far back as 1968 while doing a disc jockey stint on a small radio station. I played his recordings as well as included some positive statements regarding Tom in a column I wrote at that time for Music City News (Nashville).

This was when he was recording for Rebel Records which was before Boot Records and before Dominion Records that he has recorded for since.

Tom, you have talent, you are in fact a unique talent but a talent of the "mass appeal", of a, John Cash you are not

By the way, John Cash's first appearance at the CNE was as part of a band shell show, several years before he made it to the (big time) Grandstand Show.

I for one, Tom, am sorry, as I am sure many other of your fans are that you have allowed this opportunity for some mass exposure to pass you by. You may someday regret it.

Redd Hill.

Lorelei at O'Keefe

Diamonds are still a girl's best friend, Carol finds

Carol Channing at the O'Keefe

By Tom Douglas
Editor

Only Carol Channing could get away with using a southern accent that sounds like Golda Meir playing Scarlet O'Hara

But get away with it she does as the star of Lorelei, the musical comedy playing at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre until the weekend

From the moment her delightfully raspy voice belts out the words to Looking Back, the first song in the production until she brings down the house with the well-known Diamonds Are A Girl's Best Friend, the audience is right with her

And well they should be since Carol Channing IS Lorelei Lee, the "little girl from Little Rock." Although Anita Loos didn't write Gentlemen Prefer Blondes for Miss Channing, she personally chose the blonde comedienne for the part when she saw her in another Broadway production

The production got off to a slow start—after all, it's hard to get laughs when the whole thing starts out in a graveyard—but it grows with Miss Channing

By the time she gets the audience involved in a hand-clapping session during one of her numbers in the first act, the whole thing is sailing right along

Happily, too, the production does not rely entirely on Miss Channing to carry the show, although she could well do it

The secondary characters for the most part are strong, particularly Brandon Maggart as Josephus "Bunny" Gage the zipper magnate, and Tamara Long, who plays Lorelei's fun-loving chaperone", Dorothy

Miss Long has the rare combination of being a comedienne with good timing, a pleasant singer and a passable dancer

Peter Palmer, known to moviegoers for his title role in the musical comedy L'il Abner, is enjoyable as Lorelei's sutor and eventual husband, Gus Esmond (whose funeral she is attending in the first number—the rest is a flashback)

And Dody Goodman is perfect for the part of the comical boozing mother of Dorothy's suitor

All in all, Lorelei is a highly entertaining production and one well worth fighting Toronto-bound traffic to see

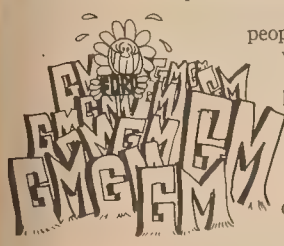
ANYONE BRAVE ENOUGH TO DRIVE A FORD IN OSHAWA DESERVES A BREAK.

A lot of breaks.
Because it isn't easy being the only Ford petunia in a GM patch.
(How many people do you know who drive Fords in the General's home town?) So we've got to make our Ford deals and Ford service practically irresistable.
Yes sir.
Suppose you're secretly interested in a Pinto, Torino, Maverick, LTD, Brougham, Mustang, T-Bird, or even a Ford truck.
What will we do for you?
First of all, we'll be handy.
Just two miles from Whitby, on Highway 2, on the west side of Oshawa at Thornton Road and King Street. You'll find your way there easily.
How will we keep you here?



Well, our prices will certainly help.
We Ford folks are trained to listen better.
And in Oshawa we've got to listen better, just to keep pace with the General.
But that doesn't mean our only aim is to sell you a car.
Once you've got one of our Fords, our new service manager works like the dickens to make sure you're happy with it.
If something goes wrong, Sam Dodd (the new service wizard we discovered at one of Canada's largest Ford dealerships) will find out what it is.
Then fix it.
And just to be safe, we'll phone you a few days later to make sure the trouble was fixed right.
Do you get the idea we're trying hard?
Then here's a couple more clues:

Ontario Bartending School

Plastic smiles and plastic fruit tools of the trade at Ontario bartending school during training

A fast way to become a liberated woman can be accomplished by following some simple instructions

Take one ounce of tequila, add a quarter ounce of creme de menthe and enough grenadine to turn it all pink

The women's liberationist" is only one of about 80 concoctions taught to the students of the Ontario Bartending School

by jane milne

Located on Dundas Street West in Toronto, the school has during the past 12 years graduated bartenders who work throughout the city in hotels, lounges and private clubs

"We won't take more than six students per class" says owner Ariel D'Angelo "Every student is taught as an individual because some are more advanced and at different levels"

The course usually takes between nine and 10 weeks with two instructors teaching the three classes

"We are planning to incorporate waiter and waitress instruction soon which will be independently run, says D'Angelo

Although the large variety of drinks made by the students look tempting, in reality they are made from colored water and garnished with plastic fruit The color indicates if it has been mixed correctly

"We do use real ice instead of plastic cubes used by some schools," he says

"We have to use plastic cherries and oranges because the sanitation inspector won't permit us to use real fruit."

He says the teachers, who have had extensive backgrounds in bartending, are able to weed out the students who "won't make it" as bartenders and that after graduation a good bartender should be able to earn, on the average, about $225 per week

"If the bartending job is in a restaurant, (a service bar) he can't expect the tips," says D'Angelo "The waiter or waitress gets the tip in this case."

Although the school is not obligated to place its graduates in jobs, he says the school is well known and receives calls from hotels requesting bartenders

In recent years more women have become students at the school and there are now four enrolled in the course

"The only job a woman will get however is in a busy hotel because it can afford to hire a boy to lift heavy cases of beer for example, to put in the freezer," he says "In a small place they can't afford someone extra to do this"

The tuition at the school is regulated by the Department of Education at $250 or $225 if paid in advance, and the student receives a certificate upon completion of the course

Students must be 18 years of age and we don't want anyone who cannot stand up behind a bar for eight hours a day or who has a drinking problem

D'Angelo says honesty, good English and cleanliness are also very important

In the actual teaching of bartending the students must have a good conception of mathematics, not only because it is important in measurement but so the student has an idea of what drinks cost rather than just copying from another hotel's menu

One of the instructors at the school, Dave Bain, says that whenever new exotic drinks come out he gives the recipe to the students just in case they are ever called upon to mix it

"While they are making drinks, I keep up a constant chatter like they will have to listen to when actually working," he says. "The main thing is to try to make them aware of these situations"

"A good bartender knows when you've had enough and tells you, how to pick up a glass keeping his hands away from the top; and of course he must have a good sense of humor."

The main idea Bain tries to impress upon his students is to listen with a smile and to sympathize with customers' problems in this way rather than with a statement

"A machine can pump out drinks," he says, "but its the personality of the bartender that builds up a clientele."

Doc's Queen's Park Diagnosis

By Dr. Charlie McIlveen
MPP, Oshawa

The budget has now been passed considerably altered from its original contents. I breathed a big sigh of relief when it was announced that the 7 per cent tax on energy was rescinded.

An energy tax currently exists in five provinces in Canada: Saskatchewan, Newfoundland, Quebec, Manitoba and British Columbia, but I would not hesitate to predict that no government in Ontario will ever try to reinstitute this type of taxation again.

I don't think too much of the 2 per cent rise in the sales tax either but it is a necessary evil if the province is going to supply the municipalities with the money they need to keep the property tax stable.

New unconditional grants to Oshawa this year will give our city $1,620,000 additional monies. This will directly lower our mill rate between four and five mills.

Indirectly the property tax-payer benefits by approximately doubling the tax rebate credits. This means anyone who received a tax credit of $100 this year will receive $200 next year.

In the maze of taxation at all levels — federal, provincial and municipal — only the federal government is satisfied. The provinces and municipalities have rapidly escalating costs for goods and services while the federal government has the rapidly escalating tax fields.

It seems to me it is time the three levels of government sat down to work out the tax-sharing agreements more equitable to the two junior levels of government.

To anyone visiting Toronto, I extend an invitation to visit me at Queen's Park. My office is 115 North Wing — come on in and say hello.

Buckles will move if price is right

Jane and Brian Buckles of Pickering aren't quite THIS serious about it all. They'll agree to the federal government moving them off their property to build the new airport, but they feel the price offered is far too low.

Home away from home.

Bus re-routing smooth

Don't get stuck in the rain waiting for a bus on Bond Street

In case you haven't heard Oshawa Public Utilities buses have been relocated from their Bond-Prince Street transfer point temporarily to King Street between Simcoe and Albert

The Bond Street transfer point was changed Monday because of reconstruction at the old point. It is expected road work will take between 18 and 19 weeks

Buses will stop on King Street East with the exception of the Simcoe-Park via Park Road and Oshawa Boulevard buses which will use Simcoe Street North between King and Bond

Public reaction to the temporary move was exceptionally good the first day says Cal Cathmoir Oshawa transit assistant superintendent

Although the PUC received its first telephone inquiry regarding the route transfer point change at 4:45 a.m on Monday Cathmoir says there has been no real flood of phone calls and no complaints

He attributes the smooth change-over to good pre-planning, city co operation from the traffic department and public co-operation

Cathmoir admits that he won't really be able to assess the situation until the heavy traffic and bus use Friday

Basically the buses are on time, except for the westbound bus which has to go around a lengthy detour but we'll be putting an extra bus on that route," he says

Denton Grant, chief bus inspector, says from the reaction he has been getting the shoppers like the buses back on King Street.

"They are confused because we changed it again," he says, "but they realize it's not our fault so they're not blaming us."

Grant, one of three inspectors at the transfer point ushering people to the right buses, says he hasn't received too many complaints. Buses are not creating any traffic tie-ups, he adds.

"Our drivers time themselves to the lights so they can pull out (into traffic) with a clear road. I don't think we're hampering traffic at all

Two of the merchants interviewed in the area both said they liked the buses back on King Street.

Spokesmen at Laura Secord's and Bassett's Jewellers both said they would rather see the buses on King Street One noticed increased business on the first day

Not only that, both agreed that it was going to be a lot easier during the next four months for them to catch a bus!

PUC's Ross Gibson checks reaction on new route.

Parking meters gobble up more

Ald. Mike Breaugh defines a parking meter as "a rip-off before you even get into the store"

City council Monday decided to increase that "rip-off" by 50 per cent, and in some cases, 100 per cent

Beginning "not earlier than Sept. 17" all on-street parking meters will be increased to 15 cents from 10 cents per hour, and all off-street parking lot meters will be increased to 20 cents from 10 cents per hour.

A report to the works and operations committee, where the increase recommendation initially came from, says that city officials expect a deficit to result from maintaining and operating parking facilities if there is no increase within the next year

City philosophy behind the present method of operating parking facilities is the person who drives and parks his car should pay for the facilities, and not each and every taxpayer

With this in mind, councillors adopted the recommendation

"There is no real profit made from parking facilities," says works and operations chairman Ald. Cliff Pilkey. "The money accrued is used to purchase additional parking spaces."

Pilkey told councillors that downtown merchants were not opposed to the parking meter increases and added that even the parking facilities at large shopping centres are not really free

"The taxes on shopping centre parking lots are put into the consumer prices," he said

According to city traffic co-ordinator Dave McMullen, 963 parking spaces will be affected by the increase. Last year, $160,000 was collected from the meters and it cost the city $107,000 for maintenance and operating expenses

Coward comedy

WHITBY -- Noel Coward's comedy 'Blithe Spirit' will be presented by the Thornhill Little Theatre at the Whitby Centennial Building on May 11 and 12.

This is the first time the Whitby Theatre Company has worked in association with an outside theatre group and plans are in the making to bring other theatre grops to the town

Gardening expert to visit Harry

BOWMANVILLE Internationally-known gardening expert John Bradshaw will make an appearance at Van Belle Garden Centre on Saturday at 12.30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m

Bradshaw has written numerous books on gardening and has his own radio and television shows on the subject.Van Belle Garden Centre is located on Highway 2, just west of Bowmanville

John Bradshaw says

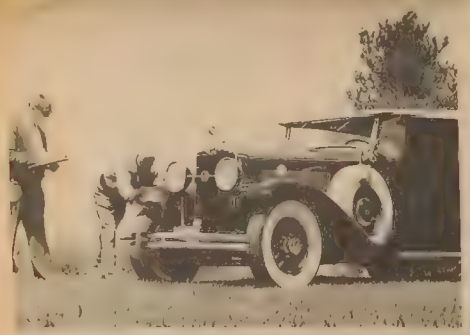
Senior citizens caught in

Trudeau-Davis squeeze



Al Statham of Oshawa (right) checks over his 1930 LaSalle Touring while Rae Stone of Pickering marks off a checklist. Statham's vehicle makes him eligible for membership in the Antique and Classic Car Club or America.

Trudeau giveth and Davis taketh away ..Acts 1 and 2

In case your memory fails you, let's go back a few weeks to the time the federal government brought down the 1973 national budget and to the triumphant claim that this year, our senior citizens were getting a raise. A raise? Yes, they got an extra $12 a month in their pension cheques

Soon after this, news reports broke in Toronto claiming that landlords with senior citizens as tenants were raising rents, for some mysterious reason Interesting.

The latest scene in this soon to be (hopefully) censored movie about politics in Canada, is the province's decision to raise the cost of extended care to senior citizens in public or private nursing homes across this great province of ours.

The raise in cost is

by john bell

only a lousy 50 cents a day, but if you figure it over a month, that's $14 or $2 more than the raise in pension given by the federal government

Or, if the poor old soul wants a private room, it can cost up to a buck a day, which simply means not only does all of the pension raise go, but the person can actually end up owing more than the raise. Of course, this would only apply to those rare senior citizens who are well off

But for the run-of-the-mill average senior citizen, it's just a slap in the face and more evidence supporting their claim that when it comes to them people just don't give a damn'

Maybe we should reshoot the movie with a new all-star cast who can think better than they act

Oshawa will be mini United Nations end of June

Oshawa should take on a real United Nations flavor this summer if all the invitations in This Week's Fanfare contest are accepted.

We are running a promotion for Fanfare Week at the end of June in which anyone who invites an out-of-town guest to the affair is eligible for a trip for two to any of Air Canada's overseas destinations.

In the raft of entries that came in during the past week, we found that invitations have been sent out to people in Russia Germany Ireland and the United States, as well as to people across Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. John Goreglad of 242 Elizabeth Street in Oshawa have invited Lena Goreglad from the village of Wytazy in the Pinsk region of the Ukraine

They say in their entry that the papers for the visit started to be processed eight months ago.

Gisela Grissell of 223 Vancouver Street in Oshawa is looking for a visit from Luise Jacob of Berlin for Fanfare Week and Steve Karnay of 179 Cromwell Avenue in Oshawa has invited Anton Ullrich of Neu-Ulm in West Germany.

Connie Millar of 1 Woodhouse Crescent in Ajax has extended an invitation to Elizabeth Millar of Northern Ireland

In addition, entries have reached us indicating that invitations have gone out to Comox, B.C., Lunenberg, N.S., Bathurst, N.B., Edmonton, Alta. and Sawyerville, P.Q.

Other invitations have been sent to people across Ontario in such centres as Lombardy, Toronto, Arnprior, Cannington, Kingston, St. Catharines, Sarnia, Northbrook, Lindsay, Bath and Sault Ste Marie

Whoever has their entry drawn on June 15 will receive $200 spending money from This Week in addition to the free trip

You can enter as often as you like. All that is necessary is to fill in the coupon elsewhere in this issue

Oshawa Little Theatre in its prime

The Oshawa Little Theatre will end another successful season with their production of the Broadway play 'The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie

Rehearsals are underway, with the lead being played by Judith Edmondson, for opening night on May 24. The play ends May 27, at the Eastdale Collegiate auditorium

GM holds open house

The miracle of mass production will highlight the largest open house program in the history of General Motors of Canada to be held on May 15, 16 and 17.

This year more than 50,000 visitors are expected to tour the truck and passenger car assembly plants in Oshawa and the component fabricating operations in the north plant

May 15 will be a tour for GM people and their families and friends, with the public tours on May 16 and 17 at 1 p.m., and 6:30 p.m. Refreshments will be served

Tabernacle celebrates

The Oshawa Calvary Tabernacle celebrates its second anniversary in Oshawa on Sunday.

To celebrate the anniversary Rev Fred Bradford of New Brunswick will speak to the congregation at both the 11 a.m and 7 p m. services

At 2:30 p.m. a musical program will be held featuring Rev Bradford and his family

Another lake level rise

Another rise in lake levels could cause a health problem because of damage to private sewage disposal systems along the lakeshore.

Dr. Ted Watt, environmental health officer for the Oshawa-Ontario County District Health Unit, says a limited survey of the lakeshore properties east of Toronto has been done by the unit, and that with one exception no real danger to health exists at the present time.

The area in question, he says, is the west shore area of Frenchman Bay in Bay Ridges, where residents have been told to boil their water before drinking it.

Watt says the unit is keeping an eye on the situation and hopes lake levels will not rise further.

Surveys have also been done west of Toronto by the ministry of the environment and local health units to determine damage to private disposal systems in those areas.

During the survey, 16,724 systems were checked and of those, 7,001 would not function properly. In the next phase, the survey will be extended east as far as Oshawa

ANOTHER FINE DEVELOPMENT OF

Valiant Property Management

Oshawa's tallest building invites you to come on up to luxury living

At the Rundle

Has it only been four ?

"Just name one time when you've backed city council," a controller recently asked me. I have to admit, I was stuck for an answer

It's been a little more than four months since city council took office The 17 councillors have had a pretty rough time

If you could ever read all the editorials and letters to the editor as well as articles quoting former councillors and ratepayers, you'd see how much fire they've come under

In the midst of all the criticism, to make matters worse, the politicking for the next election has already begun

But, let's face it, it has been a very challenging period in which to be a municipal politician

During the first two months of the administration, council didn't waste any time preparing the city's brief to the province, on regional government Well, actually it wasn't the city's brief, it was council's brief presented on behalf of the 92,000 residents of Oshawa

From the start, both the public and press jumped on council's back and questioned why the regional brief meeting were being held in camera

Then the people were really up in arms because two public meetings to get citizen input added nothing to the final, council-approved brief. That was because council had already considered the points made by the public in secret meetings and decided against including them in the brief

But since the people didn't know that, they thought they were being ignored

After the brief was finalized, things pretty well settled down to normal, and it looked like council was going to clean house and get down to business.

Then another controversy which almost overshadowed the approval of the 1973 city current budget -- salary increases garnet

cowsill

Again, most of the criticism came after council took it upon itself to handle the matter behind closed doors Sure, in the end, there was open debate. But that doesn't justify the initial secrecy

Well, it's all over, now Finally council can get back to running our city without all the criticism Maybe individual councillors have learned something, maybe not

In any event, it promises to be exciting on the political scene during the next four months. So far, about four aldermen have announced they will be seeking regional government seats The mayor will in all probability also stand for re-election

No doubt there will be double-barrelled politicking now! (And probably a little more criticism if you judge by council's past track record)

I am confident there are enough serious-minded councillors who will leave the politics for their campaign speeches But being the skeptic that I am, I predict those will be the guys that won't get elected

Nicknamed Magoo

East meets west as Japanese ballplayer involved

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

The far east moves west That's right, Japan's loss is Oshawa's gain at least from a baseball sense anyway

Masa Haru Ono is the talk of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association Intermediate League Ono a graduate of the University of Sapporo came to Canada three years to continue his education

In Japan, Ono graduated from a dairy college and wanted to continue his agricultural studies on a Canadian farm

At present he is employed on a farm near Columbus just north of Oshawa. He hopes someday to return to Japan but admits he enjoys Canada more and more every day

He played college baseball both as a pitcher and centre fielder and played on a championship team while in college. Regarded as small as far as baseball players go the 26-year-old Ono stands only 5 foot 4 inches and weighs 140 pounds but looks a lot lighter Actually he could be a better jockey than a ball player for his size

Ono,s coach is Dave Waite and he claims that Ono is a first-rate ballplayer

"He amazes me every time he plays," smiled Waite "Only problem is the language barrier between us Before he came to Canada he never spoke a word of English however it's improving

"We have a lot of funny things happen with him both on and off the field said Waite "The first year Ono arrived in Canada he wrote his dad or as he prefers honorable father to send over his glove and spikes so that he could play baseball However his father wrote back explaining that he was in Canada to learn farming and not baseball

"After countless letters, honourable father gave in and sent out his equipment last summer"

Masaharu Ono, an agricultural graduate from Sapporo, Japan, is taking post-graduate training on a farm near Columbus In his spare time, he plays baseball in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association and has become a hit with his teammates who have nicknamed him Magoo

Ono answered a newspaper ad for a tryout and telephoned Jim Lutton president of the league but Lutton couldn t understand what he was talking about over the telephone

Finally Ono appeared at Kinsmen Stadium one night late last season and requested a tryout

Ono s biggest asset is his quickness he gets under a fly ball very quickly and has the uncanny knack of judging a ball right from the crack of the bat

Last season as a late acquisition he managed to hit .312 and has great power for a little man

Before games or practise session he goes through a workout routine which would leave most Canadian players out of breath just watching him

Ono has had some fun with the umpires as well He has trouble understanding the umpire calling balls and strikes and on one occasion last season Ono had the count of 3 and 2 and he took the pitch which he considered a ball and raced to first base thinking that he had earned a base on balls

The umpire ordered him from the base path saying that he was called out on strikes Finally Waite had to come over from the dugout and try to explain to him

Ono who has a keen eye, challenged the umpire with a judo type move Another mishap nearly happened when a pitcher from Kendall almost a foot taller was challenged by Ono when he fired a bean ball at the Japanese standout

For weeks Ono seemed to be unhappy and finally confided in Waite that the rest of the ball players all had nicknames and he didn't so now he's called Magoo by his fellow players

Bernie McGuire, who plays third base alongside Ono, seems to be the only player able to communicate with him and it took Bernie a couple of times explaining what Tag Up meant after a fly ball

Every time now when Ono doesn't understand completely he and Bernie sit at the end of the bench until the problem has been solved

Three months ago Ono returned to Japan and was married and brought his wife to Canada

Besides being a top ball player Masa Haru Ono is an outstanding skier as well. He claims that skiing during the winter keeps him in shape for the baseball season. Ono is a real treat to watch in action and a great new Canadian

Lutton blasts city board

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Jim Lutton, president of the Royal Canadian Legion Baseball program, and general manager of the Oshawa Legionaires junior ball club, is again upset withthe city parks board

Monday night, Lutton was forced to cancel the home opener of the Leaside Junior League game against Scarboro York Steel for the fifth consecutive year

"I really don't know what I've got to do to make those guys wake up" said Lutton when interviewed by This Week

"The parks board had a copy of our schedule for three weeks and again promised me that the diamond at Kinsmen Stadium would be in playing shape for our home opener

"I called them last Thursday and they again reassured me everything would be okay It's disappointing to our fans and the players and we could even be subject to a fine from the league as we must let them know at least 24 hours before a scheduled game is cancelled"

On Monday morning, Lutton received a call from the caretaker stating that there was no water in the dressing rooms, he had no key for the caretakers room to line out the diamond for the game, the field was unplayable, dressing rooms were not clean and that 38 lights didn't work on the light standards

Lutton has appealed to city council for the past five years without any luck and it looks as if he has struck out again

Expo trip set for mid-June

This Week Sports Department and the Montreal Expos have completed arrangements for the upcoming baseball trip for next month at Jarry Park in Montreal

The Los Angles Dodgers and the Montreal Expos will be meeting in a weekend series in Montreal At present, final arrangements for hotel accommodations are still to be made so the price of the trip is not final

Last year, it cost $29 which included tickets to the game hotel accommodations and bus fare. A lot of patrons claimed that they would sooner have box seats for the occasions which would increase the price of the trip.

Applications for the trip will be taken on a first-come first-served basis and This Week reserves the rights to limit the number of fans for each bus

This high-stepper participated in the 12th annual Spinorama held at the Civic Auditorium in Oshawa on Sunday. Bands and majorettes from all over the area took part in the display, including the Toronto Lakeshore Ronettes

Burr's sleepless nights make fans happy

jim shaw

For the last couple of months Bob Burr has again been working behind the scenes towards the annual Green Gaels Sports Celebrities Dinner scheduled for the "Aud" next month

Burr, sports director at CKLB is also the chairman who lines up all the top talent so that "Joe Fan" can rub elbows with the best in sports today

Rapid Robert has been busy on the telephone signing up sports personalities for the gala June 4 evening On Monday night, tickets went on sale at $20 each and are available from any member of the Green Gaels executive or at the "Aud" box-office

Each year is a bigger problem that the season earlier is securing "name" talent. A natural of course is the top players from the hockey world as the Stanley Cup is still fresh in the minds of the fans in ths Oshawa area

The Green Gaels gathering has always had the longest list of head table stars of any sports celebrities dinner in North America Naturally with the long NHL season, Burr wants to secure the best possible talent

In years past Bobby Orr Bobby Hull Dennis Hull, Ken Dryden, Jean Beliveau and Gordie Howe just to mention a few have been on hand for the do It is difficult as most name players now have agents and Burr has to deal with them rather than the player directly

Burr's sleepless nights seem to go unnoticed on the eve of the big sports bash. Few people realize the trouble he goes through lining up such top celebrities. Highlight for the sports celebrities is the round of golf during the day and only former co ordinators of the event Terry Kelly and Ivan Richards realize the problems that Burr is encountering

Late last week Burr announced that Graham Leggat the former professional soccer coach of the Toronto Metro's, will be the Master of Ceremonies. Having Leggat as MC automatically means a successful night and Burr realizes the talent of the former Scottish Soccer ace behind the mike

On thing's for sure, anything the Gaels executive try always spells success and this years dinner should be no exception We advise you to get your tickets early

The Buxceys put the kick back in soccer

Jessie and Hilda Buxcey have to be Canada's Mr and Mrs Soccer. Jessie all is starting his second season as president of the City & District Association and his policy in the operation of soccer has made the game rebound locally.

His wife, Hilda has a similar capacity as she is the president of the minor program in the city. Both are ardent supporters of the European sport which has had a lot of learning years in Canada from the professional ranks down.

Jessie a carpenter at the GM North Plant, has quite a history in sports. A native of England Jessie was a member of the British Armed Forces and became an instructor in all sports.

At one stage he captured the light heavyweight boxing championship and was a victor in many cross-country walks.

Even today, Jessie enjoys taking long walks and this is one of the major reasons why he is a trim 5'10" 184-pounder.

He first got interested in the administrative end of soccer a couple of years back when he attended a soccer meeting to choose the annual slate of officers. At the meeting, he was offered the president's chair but declined the opportunity as his heart was more for minor sports rather than the senior level.

Finally the soccer body convinced Jessie to accept the president's job.

One of the biggest problems he had to overcome was that of the teams playing against each other. In the Oshawa setup like so many other soccer leagues all nationalities perform against each other and there always seems to be a large number of fights.

"Actually it's like the United Nations," explains Jessie when he talks about the soccer teams in Oshawa.

"Heck, we have English, Scottish, French Polish, Ukrainian, Germans and many other nationalities playing in our league"

The major point which Buxcey established was that when the teams

played on the field they should play their hearts out but after the game the same players can and should socially stick together.

"I guess my training in the army has paid off," says Buxcey, "as since I've taken over, we haven't had any serious problems of that nature"

For years now this same problem has hampered the growth of soccer in our area. Buxcey believes in open meetings and arranges to have them in his house and all are open-minded sessions and where they treat everybody as equal.

"Actually," continues Buxcey," I've got more respect for other nationalities than for my own."

In his house, the Buxcey's have three telephones and they are busy no mater what hour of the days.

"I feel that if you're going to do a job, you must work at it, to be a success and should any problems arise either my wife or I can solve the problems right then and there," he says

Les Digbey, the discipline chairman for soccer in Ontario claims that Oshawa has one of the best operated leagues to-day

Hilda Buxcey has quite a story behind her as she was the first lady soccer referee in Canada

Today a lot of females have taken up the whistles while others are now coaching. In fact, in Whitby the gals have even started a ladies soccer league

Aperfect example of the growth of soccer in Oshawa can be pointed out in the story behind a couple of African kids who were toiling in the minor setup a couple of years ago. Each year the minors have an exhibition game against the parents and the two young African youngsters were playing but their parents remaind in the car to watch

Jessie immediately delayed the start of the game and told the parents that they had to play or else

The explained in their country the blacks couldn't play soccer with the whites however Buxcey immediately explained that this was Canada and that we don't have such rules.

This is the kind of problems which Buxcey's are slowly overcoming with patience and strong rules in the games

This year in the minor setup Tony Parsons the registrater for the league reports that soccer is really booming. Already 42 teams have signed up and this isn't including the parks leagues operated by the N.A.S.C

In North Oshawa alone they have entered a total of 14 teams. With the 1976 Olympics, scheduled for Montreal, soccer hopes to develop a lot of young Canadian players to play in the Canadian National team

Like most organization, soccer is in dire need of more coaches and managers. With people like the Buxceys, soccer can grow to become Oshawa's number one sport but the Buxceys are for all sports and feel that Oshawa can support all types of sports in the city.

Junior draft

Middleton should go in first round

Montreal has to be the talk of the hockey world this week with the Stanley Cup game between the Chicago Black Hawks and Les Habs last night at the Forum and the Memorial finals pitting the Quebec winners the Ramperts Western Canada victors Medicine Hat Eagles and Ontario Hockey Association champs the Toronto Marlies

Hockey and more hockey comes alive from Quebec with the annual overage Junior "A" draft meeting. This is were the 16 NHL clubs pick the top overage Junior "A" players from Canada and the U.S.A colleges and many of the picks will be skating under the NHL flag this coming fall

Five members of the Oshawa Generals are eligible for the draft including 67-goal scorer Rick Middleton as well as Walter Johnson, Don Seiling, Guido Tenisi and Nelson Pyatt

Middleton should be going in the first round according to all scouting reports and should draw a handsome bonus in doing so. Only Darcy Rota from Edmonton Oil Kings scored mmore goals than Middleton this year in Canada, th

Middleton should be going in the first round according to all scouting reports and should draw a handsome bonus in doing so. Only Darcy Rota from Edmonton Oil Kings scored more goals than Middleton this year in Canada, that being 73

Montreal Canadiens have the inside track as GM Sam Pollock of Montreal has some of the first 22 picks thanks to some clever deals over the past few years

Middleton hopes that he doesn't land with Montreal, who are laden with top junior talent. The draft starts next Tuesday at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel and probably will run for a couple of days

Among the top juniors expected to go in the first round are Ottawa's Dennis Potvin, Marlies Bob Dailey, Hank Goldup, Paul Bordeleau, and two Western boys Tom Lysaik and Lanny McDonald along with Andre Savard from Quebec. Last year Jack Lynch was Oshawa's first round pick by the Pittsburgh Penguins

Legion ball begins second quarter century

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

One might consider that 25 years in business is a long time

This year marks the 26th consecutive season that the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No 43 are backing minor baseball in Oshawa from the Intermediate level right down to tyke

Like most sports, baseball has had it's ups and downs but the Legion program is the longest-operating setup in Eastern Ontario.

Actually, the Legion setup has an interesting and rewarding background and the future looks bright. At present Jim Lutton is starting his sixth season as president of the Legion ball program and he is one of the most knowledgable baseball men in the business today

Besides being GM of the Junior Legionaires, he is a former president of the parent body, the E.O.B.A. and a scout with the Montreal Expo's of the National League

Alfie Brisbrois, current business manager of the Legion, and C.E. Twinning were the backbones behind organizing ball in Oshawa. In those days in the 1940's, Oshawa had a strong junior club called the Hunt Club but the minor setup was a poor operation

Brisbrois was a jack of all trades operating the baseball program from his livingroom and even had all the equipment positioned all over his house

Many men have operated Legion teams and have spent countless years on the ball diamonds including Alex Walker, Alec Ferries Jr., Peter Musiak, Ivan Locke, Ernie Whiting, "Snowball" Wilson, Ted Roberts, Art Parry, Talbot Ryan, Bill Langton and Bill "Shorty" Campbell just to mention a few

Ted McComb has served in this program since it started as a player, coach, president, and at present he is coaching in the house league and is the immediate past president

Frank McCallum, former Oshawa mayor, is the honorary president of the association. Many great players have played under the Legion colors in the 40's and early 50's — Ted Stone, Nick Mroczeck, Bill McTavish, Ted Barnes, Ted and Tommy O'Connor were the standouts

In the mid-50's Johnny Ryan, Joe Melnick, Lorne Jeffs, Neil McMahan, Pete Bilenduke, Jackie Cole, and Bob Winter had some great seasons in junior ball

Ted Roberts, a former player, coached the juniors and boasted standouts like Butch Dowe Ted Whiteley, Ted Lutton, Dave Mitchell, Jim McConkey, Roger Reeson, Gary Newitt, and Danny O'Shea now a member of the St. Louis Blues in hockey

Jim Lutton by far the longest junior operator has had his name players in the late 60's and 70's in Tony Jones, Pat Waters, Ken Toffan, Erie Peterson, Murry Godfrey, Wayne Cookson, and Dave Ferries

Oshawa has captured many Ontario titles with the first coming back in 1955 in the midget division.

Oshawa has captured many Ontario titles with the first coming back in 1955 in the midget division. A total of five players signed professional contracts: Ted Stone with Boston Red Sox, Butch McMahon, Cincinnati, Johnny Ryan, Detroit, Gary Newitt, Pittsburgh and Murry Godfrey with Yankees.

Ryan was the most successful playing Triple AAA ball

The juniors have already opened up the schedule this season

Art Cawker ons of the mainstays behind the baseball at the Legion is currently ill and despite being confined to bed at the OGH is predicting another banner season this year as the Legion starts it's second leg on another 25 years

Jesuits featured in Durham films

A small band of Durham College students actually lived under the conditions of 17th century Jesuit-missionaries early this spring

We went up to the Sainte-Marie Mission in Midland with the idea in mind of seeing what life was like then and secondly to film a documentary on the mission community," says Bill Derby, history instructor at Durham

The nine students are studying native people in their second year communication arts course and were able to see for themselves the hardships and difficulties under which the Iroquois and Jesuit priests lived during the 1600's.

"The students all commented on these difficulties," says Derby. "We cooked as they did and lived as they did under the same cold and smoky conditions

One of the highlights of the trip was the meeting of a young Indian named Boyd Jamison who is 20 years old, the same age as most of the Durham students

Boyd Jamison was a good resourse person," says Doug Sawdon, one of the participating students. "He gave us the Indian point of view from way back then and how Indians feel about present situations."

The mission has been reconstructed as it was when the Jesuit priests lived there and Derby says the Durham group lived in the actual building, slept in the beds and cooked over a fire in much the same way

Photography instructor, Peter Evanchuk, also accompanied the students who used the mission setting for a half-hour documentary to be completed by the end of the school year

Students back at the school have been busy designing graphics, still photos and drawings to be used for the film

We had a bit of film left over," says Derby, "so we spent about five hours while up at Midland, making a silent horror movie complete with werewolf using old furs and robes for costumes that we found around the mission

Done strictly on an ad-lib basis, he says all members of the Durham group participated in it and showed tremendous enthusiasm

Although the mid-March weather was damp and cold, the experience at Sainte-Marie was termed a success by all.

Stratford on a Summer Day

Statesmanship needed

This is election week.

An election week the outcome of which could have a bearing on the lives of a very large percentage of This Week readers

The rank and file of the United Auto Workers of America, Local 222 is heading for the polls to elect new officers

"So that's fine, but what's it got to do with me—I don't even work there," will be the reaction of some

Well, if you feel that way, you're wrong

The words and deeds of the people at the top of one of the country's largest union locals matter a lot—to all of us.

This is contract year.

So far, indications are that some very level-headed negotiating has been going on. From where we sit it is difficult to judge just who is doing what is right. We would just like to make this point: there isn't really any differnece between union politics and local, provincial or national politics.

In both we need fewer politicans and more statesmen

We hope the statesmen will prevail and that in the end, in those final contract negotiation rounds, we will see statesmenship only, and on both sides of the table.

Everything stops for coffee at the Rundle

We too believe in coffee breaks

But . . . .

If you phoned city hall at 3:15 on Monday and asked for two different department heads, and were told on each occassion by the switchboard girl, "Sorry, there's nobody in, they're out for coffee"—wouldn't you be just a little frustrated?

What's happening?

Does the construction site truck drive up and in the same 10 minutes does everyone have to go?

Or is there a general meeting at 3:10 p.m. every day?

Or is this the way things go at city halls?

We know we can't operate that way in our own office. And we know you can't do it in yours.

Think of the poor switchobard girl being the only one to hold down the fort!

And think of the kind of an impression this creates.

Any out-of-town industrialist considering a move to Oshawa might have second thoughts if he called for information at such a time. After all, if city department heads drop everything for afternoon coffee, what must the rest of the city be like?

O'Connor wrong to lose cool

While This Week feels the editorial policy of the Oshawa Times often leaves a lot to be desired, we can't help but agree with them on one of their editorials last week.

The message in the editorial, while a bit garbled, was that Terry O'Connor, chairman of the Ontario County separate school board, acted rashly in censuring the Times over an incident involving that man with many hats, Ed Kolodzie.

As the Times relates it, O'Connor exploded when the Times' education reporter left a board meeting to talk with Kolodzie about the board's refusal to let him speak on a matter in his capacity as a Catholic parent.

In a way, we can't blame O'Connor for getting hot under the collar. Kolodzie, to say the least, is an irritant to politicians. Sometimes it's hard to decide whether his motives are altruistic or he just doesn't like people in public office.

But losing his cool at a reporter is beneath the dignity of the chairman of an organization such as the separate school board.

Providing the reporter in question did not disrupt the meeting when he left, we feel he was well within his rights to do so.

All too often, public officials feel they have the right not only to tell the media what they can and cannot report but also the manner in which they should go about doing so.

This is not to say that a reporter has the right to interfere in public proceedings or has a God-given right to all the information a public official possesses.

But as a representative of the public, a reporter has a duty to bring all sides of an issue into focus.

Anyone who criticizes him for doing just that, simply because the party doing the criticizing has not liked previous coverage he has received, is being unfair and the Times was justified in protesting

Histry of Canada and feetnotes

by peter brouwer

I'd better start this one off in the apology department. Apologies go to Ann Sabyan, wife of Jim Sabyan, mother of two This Week carriers

Apologies are for creating a situation that caused the Sabyan phone to ring until the bill was red hot

You'll perhaps recall a picture of a little Sabyan carrier in last week's paper. That was Ann (and Jim's) daughter Kathleen. Being the excellent carrier girl that she is, and what with her father being the fellow who's extremely good at photographing This Week carriers in action, we "used" Kathleen in an ad last week, to tell readers what This Week's new voluntary pay system is all about

Well, it turned out that several dozen readers decided to find out by phone whether This Week's Kathleen was for real. They found out she was. So did Ann But because she knew already she didn't think too much of being reminded by telephone

Thus the apologies

Long weekend

I don't know about your neighborhood, but I have a feeling that from mine there will be a huge exodus over the long weekend. I've seen some neighbors busy for weeks putting the tent in shape and others there are who started a couple of months ago to get the camping trailer off the blocks and back in good running order Let's keep our fingers crossed for some good steady summery weather We all deserve it after the recent lot of neutrality

We're going to try Emily or Balsam Provincial Park. They're close enough to be able to run home if it gets too cold or too wet Both are within an hour's drive from Oshawa. Who knows, we may see you there

So what do you do on a long weekend like this in a provincial park? The beach may be too cool for sunning, and the water . forget it

I'm going to spend most of my time with a guy named Charlie Farquharson He wrote this her "History of Canada" rendered to me on my birthday by my very literate sister-in-law who edits books and who looks down her well-shaped Prince Edward Island nose at us ordinary mortals who call ourselves newspaperman

Anyway, sis-in-law who is an ardent history fan decided a long time ago that my knowledge of our country's history left a considerable lot to be desired. Thus, on a number of birthdays books of Canada's history have been forthcoming Now I've been taking a peek at this latest one, and it would appear to be just my kind of literature. Actually, Charlie didn't write this "History." He told it to Valeda Drain Farquharson (she was a Drain on her father's side) when it was too wet to plow

The book ought to have a place of honor on your shelf of historic materials. It's the only history book I've ever seen with a complete set of feetnotes. Take the one on page 125, a Sore Feetnote. Here Charlie tells us about Lester Pearson's letting the old flag fall to let the Union Jack off," and the feetnote quotes Valeda (remember Valeda, she wrote the book, after Charlie agreed not to write it, because nobody's gonna read writin' when it's written rotten) anyway, the feetnote quotes Valeda as saying that "our flag looks like we was all running a Soopertest Gas Station

Really, Don Harron's book is the kind of thing you will like to take camping with you. Before you leave drop in at your favorite bookstore for Charlie Farquharson's 'Histry of Canada

As a matter of fact, if you're planning to stay home, it should be great to read on the porch as well

Winston tastes good like an Export "A" should? That's what it looked like during a hot air balloon display Saturday at Lakeview Park where the Export "A" balloon failed to get off the ground. The Bahamas Tourist News Bureau obviously believes that no news is good news. This Week periodically receives press releases from the bureau and the last mailing piece we got was an envelope with nothing in it.

With Fanfare for Oshawa Week and the Ontario Summer Games coming up shortly, we hope the people of Oshawa in general will be more polite to visitors than one of the employees at the bus terminal. An elderly woman was overhead asking this fellow last week where the city bus stops were located and he replied: "That has nothing to do with us Ask the boys in blue; they make more money than I do."

Oshawa's increase-in-pay debacle will very likely repeat itself next year, or even later this year when it is time to set salaries for members of the new regional council. An official of the provincial treasurer's office said last week there is "no way" the province will set the pay scale. This is something to consider this October when we all go back to the polls.

There seems to be something a little ghoulish about the practice of a "local daily" which solicits advertisements from people whose relatives have died every time a special day comes up. A case in point was the full page of Mother's Day tributes run last Saturday.

A butcher at Sunnybrook Supermarket in Oshawa was red-faced one day last week when a customer purchased $2.69 worth of steak and then asked for a pound of hamburger. Without thinking, the butcher wrote $2.69 on this package as well. It all got straightened out and obviously was done by accident, but it leaves on wondering how often these mistakes happen and how many people don't check their packages before they're rung up on the cash register. Meat prices are high enough as it is.

There's a thought-provoking statement in the May bulletin of the Ontario County Council of Home and School Associations. "Parenthood remains the greatest single preserve of the amateur."

It's interesting, if a little sad, that a student himself has reached the same conclusion that most of us have reached about today's educational system in the province. David Onley, a fourth-year student at Scarborough College, told the 113th annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association that the replacement of compulsory subjects in high school with a wide range of options is "sheer madness." He said many students are graduating from Ontario high schools without ever having taken a coursein Canadian history, biology, chemistry, mathematics or English.

A police agent or just a friendly Russian ?

A headline in the Toronto Star last week caught my eye: "For millions in Soviet Union Watergate didn't happen." The story beneath it explained that because the Russians are trying to strengthen economic and political ties with the United States, there has been a news blackout about the Watergate scandal

Which got me thinking about one particular Russian and wondering whether he has heard about Watergate -- either because he listens to Radio Free Europe or because his position in the government would give him access to such information

He first approached us in Gum Department Store in Moscow. There was my wife and myself and two travelling companions we had met on the Trans-Siberian Railway -- An Englishman and an Australian

It was the fall of 1971 and we were all rather paranoid. The British government had just expelled about 125 Russians allegedly for spying and Russia was making threatening noises about retaliating -- even to the point of kicking tourists out of the Soviet Union

Here we were, four members of the British Commonwealth, expecting at any moment to be picked up by KGB agents and taken to a dungeon somewhere for interrogation and expulsion

So when this fellow approached us and asked us in perfect English what we thought of the gigantic store, we were a little leery to say the least. I happened to mention that I found the prices rather high and he volunteered to take us to a duty-free shop several blocks away

by tom douglas

Our suspicions increased when we got to the shop and found it didn't open for an hour. Our new-found friend then invited us into a restaurant for coffee and grapes, for which he insisted on paying

He told us that he was originally from Albania but now worked in a government patent office in Moscow. He said he had never taken English in school but had learned to speak it by listening to Radio Free Europe. This only heightened our paranoia since I know that I could listen to Radio Free Moscow for the rest of my life without learning to speak Russian

Finally, when the duty-free shop opened, he made his pitch. Handing me a wad of American dollars, he asked me to buy a watch for his girlfriend. Russian nationals, he said, were forbidden to shop in these stores where everything sold for about a quarter of the price in regular stores.

Telling him we didn't want to break any of his country's laws, I refused the money and he said he understood.

Smiling sheepishly, he said he had to leave. As he walked away, he turned and waved and said: "Say hello to Canada for me."

Russian agent trying to get us involved in an international incident or just a friendly fellow interested in talking with Westerners? I'll never really know and I still wonder about it every once in awhile.

Chairman of Durham's board of governors is optimistic of administration - faculty accord

The chairman of the board of governors of Durham College has expressed optimism that problems existing between the college administration and its faculty association will be solved shortly.

Richard Donald told This Week that he had met with Don Michie, faculty association president, "and I think we can solve the problems as they have been described to me."

Donald said there was "nice rapport between the association and myself and the rest of the members of the board of governors" and indicated that a statement would probably be released jointly once a solution is reached.

The problems referred to were first brought to light in a letter from the association to college president Dr. Gordon Willey concerning the assigning of teachers in the applies arts, business and technology divisions of the college to summer teaching duties in the institution's retraining division

The letter, made public in This Week's May 9 issue, accused the administration of weak management and poor leadership —"one of a number of examples . . . throughout the college."

"I am going to have a further meeting with Mr Michie," said Donald, "but we have both agreed that the place for negotiation is in private and not in the columns of a newspaper."

Richard Donald.

Dr. Willey refused to comment on the association letter, other than to state that he feels it is an internal matter "and we shouldn t manage the affairs of the college on the front pages of a newspaper."

Meanwhile, This Week has learned that a Civil Service Association of Ontario representative at the college has formally notified Dean Lister Robinson that the summer teaching controversy is a matter of official grievance.

According to the faculty letter to Dr. Willey, the association felt that its members had been given insufficient notice of these additional teaching duties which began Monday, and would therefore be ill-prepared to take them on.

The letter said that although the faculty believed the decision to use post-secondary teachers in retraining (where mature students upgrade their secondary school education) was made in January, this was not communicated until May 1.

"Answers to direct questions were evasive and contradictory," the letter stated, adding that the faculty feared Dr. Willey and Dean Robinson "have isolated yourselves to an extent that you cannot understand many of the important issues that are crucial to fair decisions."

Spending your leisure time wisely

Recreation for everyone's taste is available at Rossland Park. The Country Club has a billiards room, gymnasium, fireside lounge, swimming pool and tennis courts.

It's one thing to have all sorts of leisure time and quite another to know what to do with it.

At Rossland Park, this isn't a problem. Oshawa's finest rental complex has taken a very modernistic approach to looking after the needs of its residents.

Rossland Park residents are active people and the recreational set-up of the complex was designed with this in mind There's something that appeals to just about everybody's tastes.

Even the billiards player, for instance has been looked after at Rossland Park where a cheerful yet functional billiards room has been set up. There's another games room where darts and table tennis can be enjoyed

For those wishing to use their spare time a little more strenuously there's Rossland Park's outdoor swimming pool and tennis courts Indoors, there is a large gymnasium and exercise room

For the horsey set the Rossland Park Equestrian Centre provides facilities for boarding your own horse or if you prefer you can rent a mount to take you trail riding through some very beautiful scenery

But if relaxation to you means settling down with a good book or getting involved in a game of cards, the fireside lounge of Rossland Park's Country Club is sure to please

Other features of the club are organized parties, Bridge lessons, art classes and a travel club where you can plan next year s vacation

However you like to spend your leisure time, Rossland Park is your type of rental complex. Why not join us today in paradise?

Paradise is also a

Credit info over the telephone

by garnet cowsill

It may be hard for a person to get credit now adays but it's easy to get that person's credit rating

New provincial legislation to license credit investigators and consumer reporting agencies was introduced a few weeks ago by Consumer and Commercial Relations Minister John Clement

Offering an increased degree of protection to the consumer, the Act will make consumer reporting agencies and their investigators subject to government registration

Will the act offer increased protection to the consumer, or is it just popular legislation because the average person has a phobia that credit bureaus are always gathering secret information on him?

Morris Hatt of the Oshawa Credit Bureau says he is happy to see the legislation introduced It won't make much difference to the operation of most credit bureaus, he says, because the association policy that governs such agencies "is almost in line with the wording of the act"

We believe that government evaluation and control of those engaged in the investigation of consumers will lead to higher standards of conduct," Clement said when introducing the Bill.

But, what's to stop individuals and groups independent of credit bureaus and government controls from getting consumer credit information?

Hatt says it would not be impossible, but it would be difficult for such a group or individual to get such information because credit bureaus and investigators use sophisticated coding methods to obtain their information

In other words, if someone seeking such information didn't use a code while soliciting credit information, the person giving that information might become suspicious and refuse to reveal what he normally would.

With the permission of one of my friends I decided to see exactly how much trouble I would have getting a credit rating for him without using any form of coding All I did use was a telephone

Representing myself as a credit investigator for a Toronto-based credit card firm and using a different name, I first phoned my friend's bank

After falsely identifying myself, the bank manager did not hesitate to give me privileged information about how many loans my friend had taken out and how he stood credit-wise. It was easy over the phone and no questions were asked, nordid the bank manager seem at all suspicious

Next I phoned an area department store where my friend has a credit card Here I ran into a little trouble. The accounts clerk I was speaking with would only tell me that my friend had twice purchased on credit and he was prompt in paying his debt.

Next I phoned my friend's place of employment. A few simple questions and I had found out how much money my friend was making per year, how long he had been employed by the firm and how stable his position was.

Now admittedly, because I said I was representing a credit card firm, the people I was soliciting information from could have thought they were doing my friend a favor by giving him a good credit rating and telling me how much he made and how good a job he has

But what if I were a blackmailer? I would now know that it was easy for my friend to get quick money from his bank. I would also know how much he was making and from that I could deduce how much I could "squeeze" from him with a threat

All in all, during the time it took to make three phone calls, I was able to obtain information that would in all probability be embarrassing to my friend if it was made public And yet, it took less than 15 minutes

Open house dry run

Record crowds of GM people, their families and friends toured three company plants Tuesday in a preview of Open House" which will be open today and Thursday for the public at the South Plant and the Truck Plant on Park Road South and North Plant Fabrication on Division Street

Tuesday's visitors included thousands of GM people from Oshawa as well as many from further points such as Port Hope and Cobourg Peterborough, the Beaverton area, Scarborough and all the region in between

A GM spokesman reported "startling" inroads Tuesday into the company's four-ton order of ice cream for Open House" but gave straight-faced assurance that he knew where there was more if the supply began to run low

The preview was also a kind of "shake-down" day for the guide and commentator force of 280 salaried and hourly-rated men and women who are stationed at special points of interest throughout the three plants

The company has estimated that total attendance at the three-day show may run as high as 50,000 and is bracing itself accordingly

The company said that visitors will find rest areas along the tour routes and that GM's medical facilities will be fully staffed to meet emergencies

Women in Ontariopolis can stand up and be counted tonight

By Jane Milne
Staff Writer

The Women's Movement and what it means to the women of Oshawa and district will be discussed tonight at 8 p.m at Henry Street High School in Whitby.

The possibility of organizing women of OSHAWA; Whitby, Ajax and Pickering will be the main topic at the meeting, as many women have, according to Judy Falkner of Scarboro YMCA, felt a need to be involved in women's movement activities or discussions with other women

The purpose of the group will be set by those participating, says Ms. Falkner who explains that the movement is unlike structured groups with chapters and regular meetings

It is a very broad kind of thing like Christianity," she says. "There are Catholics, Protestants and Fundamentalists with some people who don't really practice the religion by going to church every week but who live by the moral code of their religion

She says the women interested in the movement generally believe that things should be better for women and are conscious of the status of women

Sandy Steinecker from Toronto Women's Place will speak to the women along with Ms Falkner Both have been involved in the movement and have worked at directing women in need of particular services.

Women's Place is located on Dupont Street in Toronto and is a clearing house for feminist activities and a resource centre staffed by eight women under an Opportunities For Youth grant

The centre operates a book store and library and offers services to women who are perhaps looking for a sympathetic doctor who won't put them down and explain to them what their problems are rather than just giving them tranquilizers."

Women's Place also sends out speakers to schools and churches as well as holding lecture series on a variety of subjects such as basic home repairs, auto mechanics, secretarial skills and psychology

We have had women come to Women's Place from Oshawa in the past so I think the women of the area have shown a need to have something which will allow them to get together "

HOW MUCH IS GOOD HEALTH WORTH?

In ancient days monarchs offered half their kingdoms for a cure when ill and even then it was usually to no avail. Good health is, of course priceless

No amount of money can buy good health but common sense and care can assure you of a better chance at it When your body sends out a warning signal, answer this request for help quickly. Seek the advice of your physician and you probably will enjoy a healthier life.

"A great many people have chosen us to be their personal family pharmacy. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty, and will do all we ethically can to live up to it. We welcome requests for delivery service".

Has HH house here?

We don't like "rumor stories any more than you do But

There's this real biggie going around Oshawa the last few weeks

It concerns one Xaviera Hollander, of fame international, who is said to have purchased a house in either Beau Valley or in Maxwell Heights

Has she, or hasn't she That is the question Many say she has. But nobody says where

And nobody says she has not

Our solicitor points out that it would be very easy indeed for Madame X to buy the house in her lawyer's name

But we haven't even been able to find any likely lawyers

Let's leave it this way

If you have new neighbors, check 'em out

Fertilizer, smoking and comments bug resident

Sir,

Would you allow me space in your paper to get some of City Council's actions out of my system?

Council members loudly express criticism of speeches of taxpayers invited by council to speak in council chambers Why invite people to speak if members are going to be so ignorant and embarrass them publicly?

Council members pretend they want people to sit at the front of council and say what they think When Bob Moon asked to speak and was granted permission Ald Lisko had the nerve to say that what Mr Moon said could be bagged for fertilizer

Maybe Lisko doesn't realize that a few that sit near him in council could bag a lot of what is said and it would save the taxpayer's a great deal of money that is spent to fertilize the parks

Doesn't Lisko realize that he is paid at least twice by the taxpayers for being on council, committees and custodian or principal of a school? When a person is invited to speak before council, they are supposed to be treated as guests

Council members attack them outrageously with abusive insults . Dr. G Gillen was in council twice that I know of and spoke against having a sidewalk put in on Mary St North

One Monday recently a woman from the same neighborhood came to speak to council, but she wanted the sidewalk put in, the same vicinity. Ald. McArthur had the nerve again to say that at least she was better looking than the previous person that spoke

I didn't realize looks had anything to do with what a person wanted to get done More sense and less senselessness, please, council members!!!

Don't forget there will be more elections coming up and it is stupid actions like these that people won't forget, and I sincerely hope you won't be elected again

In smaller cities than Oshawa, council doesn't allow smoking by either council members or audience Why can't Oshawa do the same?

Anna Pope

Council pay and the poverty line

Sir

May I reluctantly take a stand on recent city council procedures

Reluctantly, because two-thirds of the eligible municipal voters are accustomed not to expect any miracles from within (This might be one of the reasons for introducing regional government)

Referring to the two-thirds electorate again, including those in and around the poverty line, what else could be more desirable than to establish guidelines for representatives financed with and through tax money, whereupon three times the amount of statistical poverty income should be a sufficient compensation for those representatives

These representatives would include directors and administrators of schools

With a debt of $550 on every Canadian, including children, eventually, however reluctantly by some, guidelines will have to emerge to the surface, if only to permit the "now generation" to exist, and what seems more important, to prosper internationally

Improved communications needed

Sir

In the minutes of the Oshawa city council meeting of May 7, 1973, "the Works and Operations Committee was requested to expand their study concerning costs in connection with Ontario Municipal Board hearings and to submit a further report to council

However, before this report was presented to council the city solicitor, Hugh Couch, at an OMB hearing on May 4 and May 8, asked the chairman of the Board that the cost of these hearings be imposed upon Doug Wilson and Ed Kolodzie

This request is symbolic of an attitude which discourages citizens from appealing cases

In contrast to Mr. Couch's attitude, I recommend a Report of the Select Committee on the Ontario Municipal Board 1972 in reference to citizen participation It includes the following items+

1 issues involving planning or capital It was stated at the recent hearing that the notices published in the paper are in legal terminology and are not written in plain language

2 " the municipality should release ALL relevant information reports

3 Ratepayers should have full opportunity to obtain FULL information from the municipality at a public hearing

4 "The government should endorse the principle of HELPING Ratepayers and others who want to study their council's proposals and perhaps appeal to the OMB

5. "the government and the OMB should encourage municipalities to find ways of assisting community groups to take part in local decision making ,and to keep the public informed

Readers write

These suggestions are in the interests of the local citizens The upcoming report on costs of OMB hearings, is just one way in which the city could favourably consider the financial position of its taxpayers I hope that these recommendations will be incorporated so that communication will improve

Letter to council on anniversary

Sir

I note with interest the decisions of city council to set up a committee for the purpose of some anniversary celebrations in connection with the 50th anniversary of the city status of Oshawa

To this end, may I humbly draw to the council's attention some personal thoughts which may be helpful to the committee in their work

First of all, there should be on file and in the clerk's office and if not, I have some specific records of the 25th anniversary celebrations in 1949 when the city carried out an Old Home Week type of program. This information could be very helpful to your committee

More particularly on my mind is the valuable reserve funds which were placed in the reserve accounts at the end of 1967, following the historical Centennial celebrations

This money, in the amount of $8,000 might well be used for the specific purpose of erecting a fountain and thereby completing the original plan for the development of Hills and Dales as a public park

May I point out to the council that, of the $8,000 in reserve funds there was a $3,000 donation, specifically towards the erection of a fountain by U A W. Local 222 and this donation could well be honored at this time

Further, it has been suggested that the committee might approach the technical skills and students of General Vanier School, who might assist in the project.

I respectfully draw these matters to the council's attention for whatever action that you feel may be warranted

Mad over Mosport

Sir:

The local paper is supposed to please, to a degree at least, its public

Since I'm disgusted with both This Week and The Times, it's time to air my beef Mosport Park opened a couple of weeks ago. I gained the news through a friend, who incidentally told me after the races were over

To some of the readers, this is nothing, but to me its a big deal

Mosport Park is one of our main attractions in the area It plays host to our local drivers as well as drivers known the world over

The attendance gets greater every year or at least it should. So why is it the local people can't get wind of when the events at Mosport are coming?

Advertisement is so great we usually hear of it the day before, the day, or the day after. I for one would like a little advance warning

A decent write-up after every race wouldn't hurt and I'm sure a few pictures would never come amiss either

The off interview with one of our local drivers would add a litte spice too. Its fine to cover the "biggies" but what about the smaller ones They deserve recognition too

Our local boys spend as much time, energy, and money on their cars as Mr. Stewart, Mr Andretti and the other do

So come on all you local sports writers, how about a little better coverage of the Mosport events?

If I can't rely on my friend or the paper for advance warning to these races, I'm sunk

Ruffed Grouse survey

Sir

I would like to enlist your co-operation in assisting us to carry out a research program on Ruffed Grouse supported by the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources

If you could bring the following information to the attention of your readers, we would be most appreciative

As a part of a continuing research project on Ruffed Grouse at the University of Guelph, we are attempting to collect a sample of eggs from the wild

The eggs are required to produce grouse for use in the research project

Due to the great difficulty in locating nests, it is necessary to have the co-operation of as many people as possible Any person locating a nest within 125 miles of Guelph is asked to mark the location, but not to disturb the nest. They should contact us by phoning collect to Pauline Corcoran (519) 824-4120, Ext. 2703 during business hours or at other times, Dr. A.L.A. Prettiest girl in County

Ontario County's prettiest girl has a month and a half to do something about it

Entries for the Miss Oshawa pageant must be submitted by June 30.

As in past years, the pageant will be the highlight of the Oshawa Fair, held from July 19 to July 22 at Alexandra Park. The campaign is now underway to attract Ontario County's prettiest girls to enter the contest

All entries must be residents of ths area, and submissions have to be received by Mrs. Gordon Brown of 62 Park Road South in Oshawa by June 30

This year, the fair will feature the usual midway attractions, as well as agricultural and livestock exhibitions

Get that mortgage now!

Right now, before the cost of mortgage money rises further, is the time for you to borrow money to buy that summer cottage or to build that dream home. Remember that, over the years, the value of houses tends to rise sharply. Some days nothing seems to go right. The co-ordinators of the great Oshawa balloon lift-off found that out Saturday when rain and high winds prevented the Export 'A' balloon from getting off the ground. At least one person was happy about it however. Alderman George Drynan had tried to stop the event at city council because he felt it would promote cigarette smoking.

Drynan's wish to scuttle flight is granted

Ald. George Drynan must have friends in very high places

Drynan objected in both committee and city council when the MacDonald Tobacco company asked the city if it could be allowed to hold a hot air balloon display in Lakeview Park as promotion for the great Export "A balloon race

Drynan, an ex-smoker objected on the grounds that the city would be supporting "tobacco pushers".

However, approval for the event was granted and Ald. Bruce McArthur showed up at the park Saturday to take a ride in the 65-foot contraption, only to be thwarted first by rain, and then by high winds

According to the promoter of the event, weather conditions had scuttled the display completely in nine other areas in the province He said he was beginning to believe there really wasn't any balloon, just the gondola, or balloon basket, which was demonstrated for the press

But at least the crowd at Lakeview Park got to see some of the exhibition.

After the rain had stopped, the balloon crew decided to give it the old school try and get the aircraft ready for flight

The press was called on to be part of the launching crew. The six-storey balloon was partially inflated and for 45 minutes a six-man balloon and press crew struggled to keep the thing on the ground for fear of "false lift-off

False lift-off would have seen the balloon only partially inflated launch itself to about 100 feet where high pressure above-ground winds would have taken the air out of it, causing the balloon to drop as fast as it ascended

In the end, the mission was aborted, and Ald McArthur breathed a little easier

It makes you wonder if Ald. Drynan, the only objector to the event, made a quick telephone call to the Wind God of the North Friday evening.

Peterborough set for tri-level

PETERBOROUGH -- The first provincial tri-level conference will be held at Trent University on May 28 and 29

This will be first the time

This will be the first time the municipal, provincial and federal representatives have met since the first national tri-level conference held in Toronto last November

The conference is being held to discuss problems faced by all three levels of government on housing, transportation and environmental management in relation to Ontario's urban and regional development strategy

Provincial treasurer John White will host the two-day talks, with federal urban affairs minister Ron Basford representing the federal government and Whitby Mayor Des Newman speaking for the municipalities

The tri-level meeting is expected to be the first of a series of provincial talks

JUST THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICE

BUYERS ALARMED

but not all lot prices are out of reach

Real estate brokers and buyers have become increasingly concerned about the alarming fact that good and reasonably priced building lots for residential and recreational dwellings have become scarce to the point where they just can't be found anymore.

It's a fact that if a lot does become available in Oshawa it will be sold for anywhere between $16,000 and $20,000.

In most cases one has to be outside a 25 to 35 mile radius of a large built-up area to find a suitable lot for a reasonable price.

Often such lots are found in developments close to the lakes in this area.

A case in point is Andimar Estates, a development of about 100 lots just North East of Omemee.

Situated in Pigeon Lake, this development was started about two years ago and has become quite popular with buyers from Oshawa.

This popularity appears to be due to the fact that a wide variety of lots is available at reasonable prices within such short distance from Oshawa.

At the time of this writing 55 lots, ranging from a half acre to five acres, have been sold in a matter of two years.

Some lots were sold for as little as $1900.- although the average price seems to be about $3000.- a lot.

And if the popularity is not due to the prices or choice of lots entirely, it must be the fact that although most of these lakeview lots are not right on the water, each lot has a boatslip located in a private park complete with harbor and a sandy beach entirely built for the lot owners only.

Andimar Estates seems to be the only development in that area using this novel idea.

The development is uniquely located on Pigeon Lake with good roads and highways leading to larger shopping and entertainment centres such as Oshawa, Lindsay and Peterborough and yet it is quietly secluded on the lake with an abundance of fish.

It would seem worthwhile for our readers who are looking for a lot for their year round home or summer cottage to drive up this weekend and let the owner show you what lots are still available.

The easiest way to get there is to drive along Highway 115 until you see a large highway sign saying Millbrook. Here you turn North and after driving approximately 10 miles straight North you will pass Emily Provincial Park. Don't stop yet. Go one more mile East and you'll see the large sign of Andimar Estates.

If you want anymore information phone the owner of the development, Bill Andringa, 723-1664.

Rustic footbridge ties the island to the main park area at Andimar Estates

Kolodzie and Wilson

Two thorns in side

Residents who object unnecessarily to city projects at the Ontario Municipal Board level have been accused of costing taxpayers thousands of dollars each time

Two such individuals are Ed Kolodzie, Oshawa Council of Ratepayers' Association president, and D. W. Wilson, tax analyst, charges Ald Cliff Pilkey

It takes 134 man-hours for the city to prepare a case to go before an OMB hearing, Pilkey says, and the average cost is $1,200. Because of inflation and rising labor costs, Pilkey adds that the 26-week delay of the project caused by the hearing may add 10 per cent to the initial program expenditure

In other words, he says, if a project was first costed at $12,000, an OMB hearing delay would add $1,200 to the final expenditure plus hearing preparation costs

There have been some cases, he says where Kolodzie and Wilson have objected to $800,000 projects

In that case, he says, taxpayers have to pay $80,000 for their objections.

It only takes one citizen to object to a project "maybe because he doesn't like the color of the ink the bylaw was written in" to have the OMB call a hearing. And then, the citizen doesn't have to show up and the city still loses money

Kolodzie has recently objected to the $139,200 Albert Street widening project on the grounds that it is "not needed" and the $99,930.33 sidewald debenture projects for 1973 on the grounds that the expenditure should be met with current funds

To my knowledge," says works and operations committee member Ald. John Aker, "I don't think Kolodzie or Wilson have ever been successful in their objections to the OMB"

City councillors do not object to residents objecting to city projects if they have "legitimate points to make, but many OMB hearings find in favor of the city and one or two citizens object unnecessarily, costing the rest of the city money

"If there is a legitimate request for a hearing I think it ought to go ahead," says Pilkey. "I don't care if they (Kolodzie and Wilson) go out and entice people to object, but when they blatantly take it upon themselves and the Oshawa Times gives them an open hand, that's totally irresponsible."

Insults and miles of walking beat

by garnet cowsill

One fight, one warning, one arrest, and the cop walking the downtown night beat goes home to bed

It can't be the most pleasant way to spend a Friday evening, but for Oshawa Police Constable George Scott, it's all part of the job

I met Scott at the police station at 10:45 p.m Friday where he was assigned the Area One beat, the downtown section of Oshawa from Simcoe to Mary and Athol to Adelaide Streets

It wasn't until eight hours and about seven miles later, after we had checked every door for an unlocked latch and I had walked through every back alley on the beat, that I left him

The sidewalks were alive with people Like most cities, Oshawa has its own unique night sounds: the muted medley of a band playing in a hotel down the street the snorting of buses and traffic, and the occasional yell from an overzealous pub patron who spots a friend two blocks away and tries to get his attention

Scott and I stood on the Four Corners for about 1½ hours

This was to be the most boring part of an almost routine shift

We just stood and talked for most of the time while Scott shone his flashlight at an occasional motorist to warn him that his headlights weren't on, or answered a brief question from a passerby

The curious thing about Scott was that while we talked, his eyes were constantly flitting in one direction then the next He never seemed to look me in the eye while he answered one of my questions

What are you looking for right now?" I asked

It was hard to say, he answered. He wasn't avoiding me with his eyes intentionally He had become conditioned to be constantly moving his eyes over the crowds and watching the traffic when he was working

At about 12 30 a m. we wandered over to a restaurant for coffee On-beat police officers are allowed two 15-minute coffee breaks, one before "lunch" and one after

We had hardly taken a sip from the cups (which I badly needed by this time just to stay awake) when Scott was notified by walkie-talkie that a fight had broken out at one of the hotels Needless to say, our coffee break had just ended

A cruiser was already at the scene when we got there and two suspects were being questioned by police. Scott and I went into the hotel to see if all was quiet in there

When we entered Scott was met with catcalls, jeers and a few niceties like— "Get lost, fuzz" etc. It bothered me, but it didn't even seem to register on Scott's face.

You can't let things like that bother you," he told me later "If you were to take everthing that happens on this job seriously, you'd turn out pretty bitter The insults and namecalling don't really bother me. I don't take them personally They just hit the uniform, and when I take it off, they're forgotten

The trouble at the hotel had died down and so Scott began his rounds That was the back breaking part of the job

We just walked around checking to make sure all the store, restaurant and theatre doors were secure We'd check the parking lots to make sure each man got his own car back when he came out of the hotel

It was up one street into the alley and around the block We just talked

What do policemen think about when they re on the beat?

The usual things that you or I would daydream about. Scott's trying to buy a little farm outside of town, and we talked about that We talked about our wives and the child Scott and his wife are soon to have

We talked about anything and everything to keep the night and loneliness away and to make the hours go by quickly

It was about 2.30 a.m and there were still crowds on the street as we headed back to the station for lunch A car squealed its tires behind us and left the lights at a high speed. Scott flagged it down

He checked the driver's licence and made sure he wasn't driving after drinking too much The driver was about 18 and said he had just gotten the car and he still wasn't quite used to driving it and that s why the tires had squealed

Scott let him go after warning him he had better learn to drive his car a little better

We went back to the station While Scott ate his sandwiches, for a blessed half hour I rested my feet Then it was back on the beat

We walked around and around, up one street through a black back alley, and down the next street, constantly checking doors and windows

Scott told me how, after an uncle of his, a policeman, had died he had joined the Metro Toronto police force 13 years ago. He remembered one of his first nights on the job when he didn't have a walkie-talkie and the nearest call box was blocks away and he was checking a back alley

There was a sudden and deafening noise at the end of the alley and he drew his pistol in a cold sweat He stood there shaking for a few minutes asking who was there before he realized a cat or a dog had just knocked over the garbage can

After we had run the gamut of conversation again, it was time for another coffee and so we headed for the Genosha We were almost ready to leave when Scott noticed a young kid sitting at one of the tables taking pennies and dimes out of a bloody paper bag and counting them When the kid left the coffee shop Scott decided to question him

It was 4 50 a m The 15-year old juvenile was cooperative He admitted being involved in a break and enter He had 30 or more packages of stolen cigarettes and four or five dollars in change Scott called for a police cruiser and we went down to the station

I was allowed to watch as Scott patiently tried various angles to get information from the juvenile. The kid didn't want to take the "rap himself and admitted there was another person involved

I was surprised. As I sat there I began to realize that the kid thought it was all a big joke some kind of game he was playing He didn't even think Scott would charge him

We took the kid down to the hospital Apparently flying glass had cut a nasty gash in his finger Scott notified the juvenile's parents at the hospital and then took him back to the station

By this time it was 6 30 a.m. Scott said he was going to make his report and then head home for bed, which sounded like a pretty good idea

He apologized for not giving me a more exciting evening It was routine, he said, a typical night on the beat

Constable George Scott had the overnight beat in Oshawa's downtown area last weekend and spent part of his time giving out information (above) and checking the locks on the doors of the various downtown business (left above).

Conversation with a juvenile suspected of theft

"What have you got in the bag, son?"

"Stuff."

"What kind of 'stuff'?"

"Just stuff."

"How about letting me see it. What did you break into to get this?"

"I didn't break in anywhere. Like, this guy gave it to me."

"What guy?"

"I don't know. I just know his first name."

"Come on. A person just doesn't give you all of this for nothing. What happened?"

"Oh alright. I'm walking home with this guy see, and we're passing this store. So the guy picks up a rock and says 'Do you want to break in it's easy'."

"Seventy-seven to station. Can you send a car to the Genosha. I have a possible break and enter in custody."

" . . So he throws the rock at the window and the glass breaks, but not all the way. So he kicks the rest of it out."

"Is that how you cut your finger . . . when you were breaking in?"

"I didn't break into anything. Say, you didn't call for a cruiser, did ya? You aren't going to arrest me. I didn't do anything."

"We'll just take you down to the station and find out where you got this stuff."

"You can't arrest me. I'm underage."

"How old are you?"

"I'm fifteen."

"What's your name?"

The boy tells the officer what his name is and where he lives

"Okay, get into the car, son."

Above are excerpts from a conversation recently between Oshawa Police Constable George Scott and a juvenile who was taken into custody and later charged with possession of stolen property

Derek Gordon was top speaker in the Grade 9 and 10 category of the Canadian Legion public speaking contest held in Oshawa. The 13-year-old champion is a student at Catholic High.

Council refuses to reaffirm its belief in democracy

by garnet cowsill

Democracy is like a prayer; it's useless without faith

When city council was asked to publicly reaffirm its faith in democracy last week, it refused

"Be it resolved that this council hereby confirms its belief in participatory democracy and will continue to welcome and consider on its merits, advice from any resident of Oshawa on any matter requiring council's decision."

That was the motion Ald. George Drynan introduced so that the public would know "that we affirm our belief in the value of citizen input and our willingness to consider advice on its merits"

It was a simple motion of principle and not one requiring any action at all. And yet, some councillors surprisingly dismissed Drynan's plea as "meaningless"

Perhaps councillors thought that if they approved the motion, they would be publicly admitting they were wrong in letting debate, such as was witnessed during the passing of the salary increase bylaw, become a little too emphatic

"It seems to me that the accounts in the press (over that debate), while I can't complain about their factual nature, might tend to discourage residents," Drynan said after the motion was defeated.

"It takes a great deal of courage for any person to go to city council and present his views in public, or even to write a letter to a member of council. The events of last week could very well destroy something of extreme importance – citizen input."

Drynan said he is confident that most politicians, at all levels of government, are anxious to know what the public thinks

Drynan said he is confident that most politicians, at all levels of government, are anxious to know what the public thinks

"There are always the feelings of isolation that the elected feel after a campaign is over, and we value those few constituent communications.'

He said he only wanted to make it "a matter of record...a statement of "let by-gones be by-gones" so the public would know it was not putting its head in the lion's mouth by coming to council".

"It was defeated," the alderman said, "for very much the same reason as a few aldermen resorted to emphatic language during the last meeting: there is a feeling of resentment among some councillors towards the public, and that resentment still lingers"

Drynan said he was disappointed that the motion did not get through because he thinks it was a motion that "reflects the inner-meaning of council...and one sincerely felt by council as a whole". but maybe he would have been wiser to delay the motion "until some of the sensitivity had vanished"

I was disappointed when the motion was lost too, maybe because I am the same sort of idealist as Drynan

But perhaps there is a different side to the coin. Although the mayor didn't admit he was wrong in allowing the debate a couple of weeks ago, he did tell aldermen that they have had their "last show"

"There is no way anyone is going to sit beside me (presenting public views) and offend this office or any office down ther (councillors) or the public—or he'll be asked to leave these chambers."

That, of course, is a rule of democracy Sometimes I think democratic ideals are more important.

Doc's Queen's Park Diagnosis

By Dr. Charlie McIlveen M.P.P. Oshawa

As a member of the public accounts committee, I am privileged to sit in on the discussions of many fascinating parts of public life

This week was taken up with overdue student loans. I will deal with them later in my column and next week I hope to deal with the log books of Ontario Government aircraft

The auditor has tabled a report that from 1958 to 1967 the Department of Education provided loans to students beyond the secondary school level. Loans were repayable to the department of education with a 4 per cent per annum interest, the first payment falling due April 1st the year following graduation.

There is a balance of approximately $1,250,000 from 3,000 borrowers Of the 3,000 borrowers approximately 600 are in arrears for over two years and the accounts had to be turned over to the central collection agency of the Ontario Government

Approximately 40 borrowers have been written off to a total of $15,000. deemed uncollectable because of deaths and leaving the country, etc. This points out that not even all university graduates are doing well five years following graduation from university

When the minister of colleges and universities assumed the student awards for post-secondary students in 1967, because of the difficult experience the department of education had collecting these accounts, the awards are now made and collected through one of our chartered banks.

I would be pleased to supply any post-secondary student desiring details about student loans information on request

Doubleparked

Hey, buddy, have you got change for a quarter? This is what 11-month-old Paula Pitten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Pitten, 185 Grenfell Street in Oshawa, seems to be saying as she parks her buggy beside a meter near the Four Corners.

New airport would save money says Potticary

A new airport may save you money.

Although there are other intricacies involved in the decision to relocate the current Oshawa airport, saving the taxpayer money is one of the points city officials are taking into consideration

How?

Well, according to Mayor Jim Potticary, the city wants to raise the industrial tax base and lower the tax burden on the homeowner

A larger airport that will be able to accommodate jet aircraft will become a great drawing card for new industry to locate near the airport

Potticary says that planning officials are concentrating on developing the downtown sector, which will create "fast assessment", and bringing in more industry, which will inevitably pay huge taxes.

"You'll find a slowdown of residential development this year," Potticary says, "but I don't think this policy will stay in more than three, four or five years Just until we see where we're going."

Right now, he says, the non-residential tax base (commercial and industrial) makes up only 41 per cent of the total, and he would "like to see it come up a little more"

The current 485-acre airport site will be relocated and expanded to somewhere around 600 acres, Potticary says, but he declined to say exactly where it would be located for fear of land speculation which might raise land costs

"The new airport will play a big role in balancing the tax base," he says. "It will be a big draw for industry."

If the airport is relocated, the mayor says the old airport land may be banked by the city and used for low cost residential development through the landbanking principle

"What we'd like them to do (the federal government) is to sell the airport to us and put the funds back into the location we're thinking of," Potticary says "In other words, loan us the money but still get a few million dollars back on the deal "

The runways will be extended to 5,000 feet to allow jets to land. Current airport runways are only 3,700 feet, and there is not way to expand them at the current site

"We're looking at it so industries won't have to go to Malton airport, they can just deliver the stuff to the new one here"

Once chartered aircraft start landing at the new airport, the city (or region then) will get more than the $100,000 federal grants it is receiving now for the airfield

Potticary denies that General Motors put on the pressure that initiated the project

There are quite a few firms that would like to bring in heavier planes, not just GM quite a few Although that's one reason for relocating, it's not the main one "

Although that's one reason for relocating, it's not the main one."

He says there is "no way we're going to move a whole airport for one industry."

The old airport site will probably be taken over by Crown Assets and sold to the highest bidder so that the city might not get off as cheaply as it thinks

Potticary makes no real comment of this aspect of the deal, although he does say that it will be strictly the federal government who will control the sale of the airport

The mayor says that making the old airport site into a residential area is not really in contravention of the current city policy of slowing down housing for industry

Asked if it wouldn't be better to use the old site for light industrial and commercial development, Potticary says "no way as far as I'm concerned"

"That's the problem we've been having all along, we've been putting industry right in the middle of town It should be located on the fringes. This is a good chance to use our long range planners "

City officials have been working closely on the plan with Oshawa-Whitby MP Ed Broadbent and Oshawa MPP Charlie McIlveen. Another appointment has been set up with the federal minister of regional economic expansion so the city can present full plan for a new airport including economic structure

The present Oshawa Civic Airport will be moved to the outskirts of the city and expanded says Mayor Jim Potticary. Potticary would like to see the current airport land used for residential purposes.

Picked in its Prime

The more you know about whisky, the better for OFC 8-Year Old. The Prime Canadian.

For starters: New OFC 8-Year Old is aged a full 2 years longer than either of the two largest selling premium brands

Thus, age alone, should make us better. But any good distiller will tell you, it takes more than time to make a whisky prime.

The truth about age

2-year Old Canadian rye is pale, harsh and unmatured. Around 12, it's darker and has begun to take on a heavy 'woody' taste. In between 2 and 12, at one point in time, Canadian whisky is in "The Prime of Life": golden, mellow, smooth and full-bodied

8 years is "Prime"

In our opinion, 8 years old is "Prime." That's why OFC 8-Year Old is 8 years old. And only 8 years old

"Prime" is more than time

Schenley puts a lot more into OFC than time: Only 100% Canadian grains, and only deep-welled water. Every drop is distilled four times, and aged in hand-charred, white oak barrels for a full 8 years

Finally we blend after aging

Why after? So that, despite differences from barrel to barrel, OFC never differs from bottle to bottle. Or glass to glass. 120 separate taste tests ensure it and each bottle carries this numbered back label This is Schenley's Guarantee of "Prime" 8-Year Old Quality "Prime Quality" Thousands are switching to OFC and taste is the reason.

Try OFC 8-Year Old. We think you'll find it a very rewarding experience

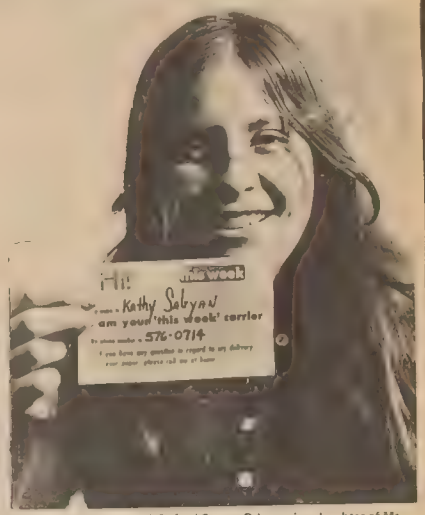
Hi! I'm Kathleen!

Remember me from last week? I'm Route 433



Kathleen Sabyan, 1514 Oxford Street, Oshawa, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Sabyan

Kathleen is one of 445 This Week carriers who are out during the next two weeks to leave their business cards with you, the reader

Kathleen-all-smiles, and her 444 youthful colleagues are asking you where exactly you would like them to leave your This Week - inside the backdoor, or inside the front, or in the milk box, or perhaps another spot most convenient to you

Kathleen wants to make very sure you get your This Week on time, every Wednesday

Kathleen and her 444 colleagues would also like to record your name and address in their carrier delivery books

We at This Week hope you are returning Kathleen's smile and that you'll keep her card in a safe place. Her's and those of the other 444 also

Kathleen and colleagues will be back at the end of May to collect from you a 50-cent voluntary delivery payment.

If you like the job your carrier does for you and the product the carrier delivers faithfully every Wednesday, we hope you'll become a paying reader. When Kathleen and colleagues come to collect they'll give you an official receipt that'll be worth a minimum of $1 off merchandize at a number of Oshawa and area retail outlets.

Sir

About a year ago we subscribed to Reader's Digest while we were living in Beamsville, Ont. After moving to Oshawa, we renewed our subscription about a month before we received a gift subscription to the same magazine for Christmas

Meanwhile, the magazine we had subscribed to was going to our old address in Beamsville and being forwarded only after much delay. I wrote to the company several times explaining the mail mix-up and asking for cancellation of my subscription since I was receiving tthe gift subscription I said I would pay for the magazines I had so far received

I received no satisfactory reply, only communications to the effect that I had not paid for the full subscription

Finally I received a letter of assignment from Reader's Digest's collection agency for a whole $3.97 How can we get through to these people?

Mrs. George Ryckman

This Week wrote to the circulation manager of Reader's Digest explaining Mrs. Ryckman's problem. Here is the reply:

This Week recently wrote to our Circulation Manager on your behalf. In his absence, your complaint has been passed on to me. I am disturbed to learn you wrote us direct about your subscription renewal, gift, and bills and we failed to acknowledge your correspondence. I apologize for this discourtesy

I readily understand your annoyance because we continued to bill you at your previous address after you requested cancellation of one subscription. The charge and this subscription have now been cancelled. Any further statements received in the near future should be ignored - they would have been pre-addressed prior to completion of our transaction.

There will be no charge for the extra magazines forwarded from your previous address - please give them to a friend with our compliments.

You will continue to receive The Digest at your Oshawa residence under your gift until December 1973

I am grateful the matter was brought to our attention and hope you will find our future association satisfactory. I trust I have been of help.

Sir:

I wonder, if you at This Week, cound find out anything about a certain "spaymobile", (a mobile truck going from city to city for the purpose of spaying animals at a cost below that charged by veterinarians)

I have phone local Humane Societies and they seem to know nothing about it, and I can't seem to get any information from anyone This may seem like a very small problem compared with some other people have, but I assure you that to my children, it's very very important

Mrs. B. Patfield

This Week contacted the Ontario Humane Society in Toronto and was told that if such a unit exists, it must be operated by the Canadian Council for Animal Welfare

You'll be happy to hear it does exist, and although the cost is below that of veterinarians, no price has been set yet. The unit should be put into operation in the next two weeks, but no date for an Oshawa visit has been fixed. We suggest you call the council in about two weeks at 1-255-0333. If you still have trouble, please get in touch with us again.

Sir:

I happened to be at the Oshawa Centre one Saturday and I saw the Rameses Parade There was a flute band there called the Ulster Flute Band of Oshawa I was wondering if you or any of your readers that are members of the band could get in touch with me as I am interested in joining it

I played in a flute band in Scotland for 17 years I would be very obliged if This Week could help me in this matter

Bill Clark

If Mr. Clark has not been contacted already by some of the people This Week got in touch with, he might call Ulster Flute Band Master John Shearer at 723-4482

A TRADITION OF HELPFUL SERVICE
FOR OVER 100 YEARS

Father John Newton celebrated his first mass in St. John the Evangelist Church on Sunday. Father Newton is the first Whitby priest in 100 years to be ordained.

Every day should be Mother's Day says Rev. Oscar Simpson

Last Sunday was Mother's Day and I would like to pay tribute to all those wonderful people we call Mom

The Bible tells us that a virtuous Godly woman is pleasing in the sight of God. Abraham Lincoln often mentioned his mother and her Godly influence on his life

He sat at her knee and listened as she read the Bible and took his principles of conduct from God's Word

Billy Sunday, a well-known preacher of years gone by, credits his mother's prayer life for his converston

If you have a mother who believes in and truly lives for God, be thankful. Most people are not so privileged

If your mother has died and she was serving Christ she has prayed that you would serve her God too.

It takes more than just going through the mechanics of being a mother to be a good one. It takes real love and patience and more than the human nature is able to give. It takes God.

That is why many famous people attribute their success to a "Mom" who prayed with and for them and lived what she believed.

I thank God for all you Christian mothers. Keep on Keeping on and remain faithful. You may not get much publicity but your family loves you more than I'm sure they tell.

Learn to be thankful, all you sons and daughters and husbands—thank them for those good meals, clean clothes and clean home—for their love

Make every day a "Mothers Day" let her know she's "Queen of The Home"

God bless you Mother
I thank God for you

Rev. Oscar Simpson

Part 6.

In the eleventh chapter of Hebrews we are told a most unusual thing. As you will recall, Abram had received title deed to the land of promise from God. It was his and yet we read in this same chapter that Abraham lived in that land as a stranger. One might wonder why he did not settle there, why did he live as a stranger in a land that God had given him? Certainly it was not because he had little regard for the promises of God.

In the 10th verse of this same chapter we read these words. For he (Abraham) looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. But now they desire a better country, that is a heavenly: wherefor God is not ashamed to be called their God: for He hath prepared for them a city." Here we learn the reason why Abraham lived in the promised land as a stranger. Here for the first time in all the Word of God we learn of the heavenly Jerusalem and that Abraham knew of it some 2000 years before John described it in Revelation 21 "And I John saw the Holy City, New Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband and he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain and showed me that great city, the Holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God." It was not that Abraham had little respect for the promises of God that he lived as a stranger in the promised land, but, because when God spoke to him of an even better promise, Abraham, believed God concerning that which He promised and became the possessor of "title deed" to that city four square

We said earlier that the promises of God made to Abraham were confirmed to his seed through Isaac and Jacob When God gave the better promise to Abraham He did not take back or rescind the first promise concerning the land The seed of Abraham have the two "title deeds" before them It is a question of what they can believe God for, the land, the lesser of the two "title deeds" or the heavenly city, the better promise The Lord Jesus Christ said to the seed of Abraham, "The meek shall inherit the earth (land) The apostle Paul speaking to both the natural and reckoned seed of Abraham spoke of their "title deeds" as being the "Jerusalem which is above

Whichever of the two "title deeds" they believe God concerning it will all be by grace through faith God having provided "title deed" to both spheres of blessing to those among them who will but believe that which He has promised

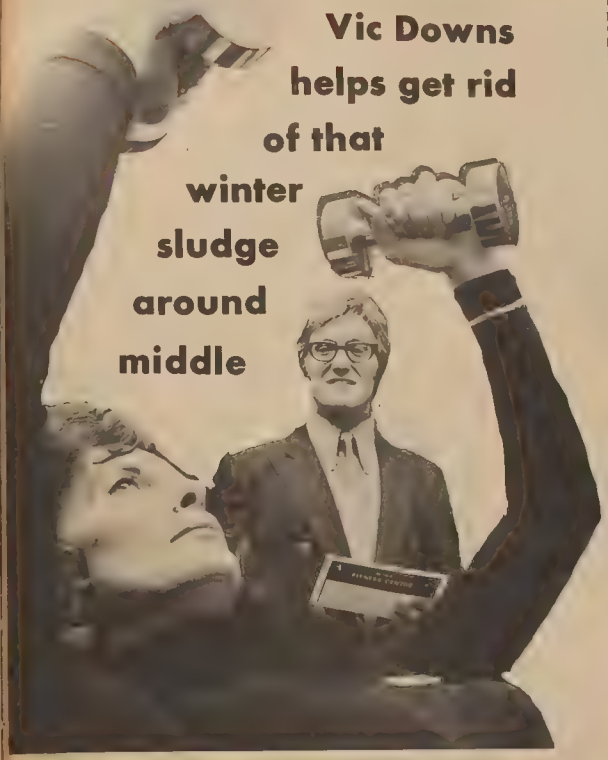
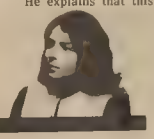
Fitness centre

Vic Downs helps get rid of that winter sludge around middle



Vic Downs and instructress Pat Woodhouse help get Oshawa people into shape.

by jane milne



The average person seen by Vic Downs of the Oshawa Fitness Centre is in "terrible" condition

When guys walk into our gym, I'm amazed to find out their actual age," he says. "Some you'd think were 50 but are really only 32. They look older because they are overweight and out of condition."

Downs says the program at the centre coordinates diets as well as excercises for its members and that it is the goal of the centre to convert bad eating habits.

"The trouble is that many people get into condition but then go right back to their old shape through poor eating habits."

He explains that everyone is different with a certain number of fat cells in their body when they are born which can swell causing the person to look overweight due to improper eating habits

"The only way to remain slim is to watch your diet," he says "People just haven't been educated in proper eating habits."

People soon will have the advantage of purchasing health food right next door to the centre on Celina Street and he is hopeful this will encourage his members as well as the rest of the community to develop good eating habits

The actual program set up for members is done individually with the staff of the centre deciding the client's goals in a discussion with him

"We try to do this in a diplomatic way," says Downs. "We ask them what they want to accomplish but through experience, I have found it necessary to channel their answers to what I want

He explains that this reasoning is based on what people think of themselves

"People think they're in pretty good shape and when they're dressed they look presentable," he says "If those people would take a good look at themselves without their clothes on, they would then see realistically what is needed."

The length of the program depends on how often an individual uses the centre's facilities and how much effort he or she puts into exercising and following the diet

Downs says people can usually see results after two or three months but that the whole point of the program is to maintain the desired conditioning.

"People who come to the gym are basically lazy; that's why they got out of condition in the first place," he says "We therefore, try to give the centre a club-type of atmosphere so there will be enjoyment attached to it rather than boredom."

The actual exercises take up about half an hour but added features such as the sun room, sauna and whirlpool bath can keep a member busy for a whole day

"The idea of the centre is to make the place a second home for its members and we picked the downtown location so that business people can use the facilities during their lunch hour if they wish."

The centre is open from 10 a.m. to 10 .p.m. throughout the week, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturdays and 1:30 p.m to 5 p.m. on Sunday

Alternate days are assigned to men and women members giving the men the opportunity of working out five days a week and women four days

"The body needs to be rested so we feel the alternate days provide this

"The body needs to be rested so we feel the alternate days provide for this," says Downs. "We also start the members off gradually since many have never excercised since they left school 15 or 20 years ago."

A "fitness-health card" is kept up to date for each member and records his or her visits, with the original weight and measurements listed as compared with their progression toward their goal

Having been in the fitness business for 15 years, Downs is very pleased with the fact that many doctors advocate such facilities for patients who need to reduce or exercise in order to avoid or recover from such ailments as heart conditions and high blood pressure

In my centre in Brampton, I have 20 doctors enrolled in the program and they send many of their patients to us also

The cost of becoming a member of the centre is $90 for 14 months which Downs says allows for two extra months during which the member may be unable to use the facilities due to vacations or illness

"All you pay for when you come to the fitness type of clubs is the service," he says

Town has high hopes for Oshawa

By John Bell
Staff Writer

Harold Town, perhaps the most noted painter in Canada, isn't an artist in the usual sense of the word.

He's a 24-hour-a-day seven-day-a-week artist who believes in putting everything into what he's doing

Arriving at Town's studio in Toronto last week, I somehow expected to find him standing elegantly dressed, brushes in hand, dashing off another masterpiece in the middle of a sunlight-drenched room

To say the least, boy was I wrong. The door opened and there stood Town, smiling, dressed not in the fashion of the day, but in paint-splattered overalls. Behind him lay the studio, looking more like a scene from World War II. For some reason, I was disappointed

I had intended to impress Town with my vast knowledge of art, his in particular, by asking such pointed questions as: "Mr. Town, what have you painted recently?;' or: "Mr. Town, what's your favorite color?", but somehow he anticipated my nervousness and steered the conversation towards Oshawa and its future as a haven for art

Relieved at being back on home ground, I asked him about the three exhibitions of his latest work now on display at the Robert McLaughlin Gallery

The whole thing about the Oshawa show, he said, is that the exhibitions – Snaps, Parks and the Vale Variations -- are being shown for the first time anywhere in Canada, and this is the first time such a large area has been made available to him to display his works.

Even though he said he didn't think there would still be enough room at the gallery, he was pleased at the fact that "this was the first time people would be able to see a large portion of my work in a comprehensive way"

That's all well and good, I thought, but what are the works all about? He had little to say on his Parks series or the Vale Variations, except to mention that the variations were based on the ink drawing by artist Florence Vale and he had simply expanded on the original

The Snaps however were another matter. In my mind I pictured a series of drawings or paintings resembling photos, but not so

The Snaps, it seems, came about through an entirely new process of paint application to canvas, a process he developed himself. The process, put in simple terms, means using something like a 'plumb-line'

Harold Town

The line is coated with paint and snapped across the canvas leaving a line of paint. This is repeated again until a color change is wanted, then after taping over the first color, the process is repeated until "beautiful" creations resembling a fabric-work design evolves

But Town seemed more interested in talking of Oshawa and the Robert McLaughlin Gallery

He said he had high hopes for Oshawa as an art centre in Canada, providing it could resist what he called "the power-play politics" of the Toronto art-scene.

The advantage Oshawa had over Toronto, he said, was that it could offer exhibitions and shows that were not concerned with what was in fashion in art circles. Oshawa, he said, had seen a lot of innovating in the past

Enough about Oshawa, I thought to myself, after all I live there; but let's find out about Harold Town, the Harold Town who is constantly in the news criticizing this or that topic including the proposed Pickering airport

There is, it turned out, no such animal as Harold Town the playboy. As a matter of fact, he pointed out, he rarely goes out on the town and there's good reason for that: he's an artist.

Seven days a week, Town gets up, goes to his studio, sometimes working there until three in the morning, returning home only to work on sketches and drawings, or working on numerous articles for magazines and the handful of books he's writing. But playboy? No way

He's an artist. Painting is his entire life, as it should be for any artist in paints, and that very statement means work, hard work, continous work because as he ays, "if you're not trying for the best you can do, don't do it at all.

"You must have a higher purpose in life; I don't mean that in the religious sense of the word. It's just a matter of paying for being here."

The world doesn't owe anybody anything, he said, as a matter of fact it's the other way around, we owe something for getting through it once.

Not wanting to take up any more of his time, I thanked him and made ready to leave. Just as I was about to walk out the door, he shouted to me to wait a minute; he had something for me.

Since during the interview I had given him a hand moving a table, he said he couldn't allow anyone who had worked for him to leave without pay. Pay? I couldn't think of it!

Smiling, he handed me a genuine Harold Town jigsaw puzzle. I asked what I was supposed to do with it, we laughed and I left to write this article while he went back to stretching canvas over frames

Rainy days, he had said, were the best days to stretch canvas, because when the canvas dried, it tightened up beautifully. I had to admit, I didn't know that

In Redd's opinion

Sunday's western show was a really smashing affair

A near capacity crowd of country music fans gathered Sunday night at the Civic Auditorium for a really smashing show.

The Myers Brothers from Chatham opened the evening and supplied back-up for Canadian Ray Francis The balance of the show was largely modern country and on the swinging side with a fine serious pause provided by Jan Howard

Jan (a veteran performer) held the crowd with solid ballads and expert showwomenship (can't have the libbers after me)

Hank Williams Jr's show, though short, was solid. Hank was suffering from a bug of some kind as were several others on the show

A good mixture of Hank Sr's. old songs and Jr's. new ones finished up with Hank playing a lick or two on bass guitar, drums, and piano, the piano in Jerry Lee Lewis style

The hand-down star of the night was Donna Fargo, who at this time last year was teaching high school English in California How come teachers in my day never looked like that?

Donna's show was up country in tone with some standards thrown in for balance All in all a first rate Country Spectacular

In addition to those billed to appear, a couple of surprises were included—old-time stand up comedian mud banjo player The Duke of Paducah and songwriter performer Merle Kilgor, and although not featured heading up Donna Fargo's band, Odell Martin with some real fine guitar licks

The Ranch Steak House and Tavern in Ajax, hidden behind the Ajax Plaza on Commercial Avenue, is a real gem of an eatery

This is a fairly new spot but one you should add to your dining out list fast before all the area hears of their fine food and modest prices

Our dinner started with a small crisp, fresh and tasty salad with a red Thousand Island dressing For her main course my guest chose a New York sirloin steak which arrived at the table just covered in chopped mushrooms

Perfect in every respect" was the comment and I believe it for she was so busy eating that several minutes passed without a word (Silence from a woman flattery indeed)

Myself, I chose lobster tails (six halves) done to perfection with an abundance of melted butter which I rpoceeded to spread lavishly over the lobster and the table cloth even though I had no intention of eating the latter

Boy that was a fine lobster feed Dessert for yours truly was a slice of quite acceptable coconut cream pie (there goes the diet). The coffee was exceptional, black, hot and plentiful

One small complaint or two—(A) the tables are on the small side, though we sat at a table for four we had just enough room to be comfortable—(B) the lobster tails were served without a lobster fork

Put the Ranch Steak House on your must list but do it now for as the word spreads the crowds will gather in what to this time has been a secret spot for a number of informed locals Total bill for two including two drinks $19 25

Spring means bike danger is here again

Luckily, this accident did not have the tragic ending that many bicycle mishaps have Kevin Borosky, 10, of 927 Regent Street in Oshawa was hit by a car as he rode his bicycle to school In the photo above, Kevin's worried father, John, leans over to make sure his son is alright while in the photo at left, the boy is lifted into an ambulance to be taken to hospital The accident took place at the corner of Regent Street and Harmony Road as Kevin was on his way to St Gertrude's School

Works committee

Five Oshawa politicans emotionally involved with roads and sewers

By Garnet Cowsill
Staff Writer

Who could ever become jealous about roads and sewers?

The five members of the city's works and operations committee that's who!

"There is a certain amount of jealousy about what you're responsible for in any committee," says committee chairman Ald Cliff Pilkey

And perhaps that is the reason why the committee is operating so effectively this year

The major function of the committee, say its members Pilkey Con John McLaughlin and Aldermen Ruth Bestwick John Aker and Alan Dewar is to decide what roads and sewers should be built, how snow should be removed during the winter and how traffic should flow through the city

Let's face it, says Dewar "roads and sewers are not the most attractive things in the world and perhaps only become a problem when they don't function properly but members of the committee are often in the public eye because the things we manage are of immediate concern to the citizen and are visible to the average guy"

Many of the public think the three standing committees of council are really run by city hall bureaucrats But the committee members know better

"The staff is employed by the city and if we didn't have confidence in our chief administrators, then we would release them from their capacities" says Aker "We trust their statistics preparation and recommendations but the final decision is the committee's

All the committee does is make a decision based on staff input and recommend either one thing or another to city council for the final decision But a member of the committee can still object to the decision once it comes before council

Just because a committee report is presented to council they say it doesn't mean they have to all agree with it

The committee realizes that the general public is "suspicious of its top department heads Dewar offers this explanation

"People are very suspicious of people who know more than them and the public and politicians can't match the staff's expertise so they do wonder a bit But from my experience I have found the staff really does have the best interests of the city at heart"

The committee system of government is a good one, the councillors agree It is set up in such a way that there are "checks and balances"

"The staff approach a problem on a technical basis and try to establish a technical level of service within financial guidelines We are the political check of that process" that can either block or pass staff proposals, committee members say

Councillors says they work with matters concerning their committee "for a good working day", or an average of eight hours out of the 15 or 20 hours they spend on council business a week

"I wanted to be on the works and operations committee badly when I first got onto council," says Dewar "That's where the city is run If I understood the workings of that department, then I would understand a lot."

One of the major problems that committee members face is that there is only a certain amount of resources for a number of projects, even though works and operations does get the biggest cut of the capital and current budgets.

Even a more fundamental problem than that is "the level of understanding between our colleagues who tend to look at a problem in a political way" and fail to consider the necessity for a certain project, they say

> The works and operations committee burns the midnight oil discussing roads and sewers.

"We run into a personal problem with individuals' problems we haven't got the authority to deal with and really all we can do is sympathize with them says Pilkey

People do have access to the committee system so that if there is a problem, question or decision to be made, members have to gather all the necessary information and make a decision without wasting time.

"Members of all committees soon become specialists in their particular fields so they can zero in on a problem," they say. "In the end, they feel more responsible for the decision."

The committee members admit that because they spend so much time on their own committee, they don't really know what's going on in other committees and so they have to rely on those other committees to be responsible.

"You've got to hope there is a good committe there and things can be adequately explained" says Dewar

An effective committee, they say, depends upon the personalities involved and the back-up staff

"We are extremely fortunate to have a chairman like Cliff (Pilkey)," says Aker. "He's kept us out of trouble"

"If there is a question that can be answered definitively by a committee's chairman, then usually that's the end of the argument," adds Dewar

"There are no screwballs on this committee," says Aker. "We're all hard-working, knowledgeable, efficient, not afraid to make decisions..."

...and VAIN!" Dewar concluded

Nine entries

Oshawa family takes long-shot at winning Fanfare trip

The Long residence on Normandy Street in Oshawa will be filled to overflowing on the July 1 weekend if everyone they have invited accepts an invitation to visit them

The Longs have submitted at least nine entries to This Week's Fanfare Jet contest in which a couple from the area will win a trip for two to any of Air Canada's overseas destinations

In addition This Week will give away $200 spending money to the winners

It's our way of promoting Fanfare Week in which organizers of the gigantic festival hope to attract at least 100 000 visitors

There is no limit to the number of entries a reader can submit and they don't have to be written on the official entry form found elsewhere in this issue

Entries continue to pour in indicating that people from all over Ontario and the rest of Canada have been invited to visit Oshawa during the festivities

In addition, Fanfare Week promises to be an international affair, not only because of the many ethnic groups planning to take part but also because This Week readers have invited guests from all over the world

In the mail over the past week have been entries showing that invitations have gone out Scotland Ireland West Germany, England and the United States

Gerry Beardmore of Lincoln Avenue in Pickering has invited Mary Beardmore of London England to be his guest during the Games Mrs F. Adebar of Meadow Road in Whitby has sent an invitation to a Mr and Mrs. Hindinger of Grassau, Bavaria in West Germany

Mr and Mrs Bob Kennedy of Wichita Falls Texas have been asked to be the guests of Marianne Powell of Wilson Road North in Oshawa, Mr and Mrs Maurice Racine of Champlain, N.Y have been invited by Donald Gagne of Dundas Street East in Whitby

The contest closes June 15 at which time an Air Canada official will make the draw for the winners of the overseas trip Get your entry in yet!

Controller Pilkey:

Tax line held because election at hand

City councillors are fast approaching elections again, so they made sure the tax line was held

That's one way of summarizing the city's $24 8 million budget that showed a .16 mill decrease over last year But at what price?

Controller Allan Pilkey says the levels of city services were maintained and we still have a low budget, and that has to be good no matter which way you look at it

'Sure, we're coming in low at election time and that's not a bad track record,' says Pilkey "But the rate of increased taxes in the last four or five years has been very minimal and I think that is some indication of a council's ability to be able to hold the tax line."

Where at the senior levels of government the power of the ruling party hinges on the good of the policies that are incorporated into its budget, at a municipal level, all that the people look at is whether taxes have gone up or down. But is it all that simple?

Even Pilkey admits that "the overriding factor in every election is holding that tax line down and from that point of view people say the politician isn't doing a bad job."

The whole basis of any budget, but even more so at the municipal level, is to create a governing body that is both politically and economically sound. Oshawa's budget seems to have managed to do this, but really only time will tell

Municipalities produce a service and not a product like other corporations with equally impressive budgets They have to operate those services at cost

It stands to reason that if everything else is rising in price, it would be impossible to maintain those levels of service without increased costs

So why was there a decrease in taxes? Grants

This year the city receives an addition $1 8 million in provincial grants that it would not normally receive In all probability, if the city did not receive them city council would have either been forced to cut services and hold the line, or maintain those services and come in with a mill increase

To politicians, those grants were a God-send. Truly a political nugget in their campaign pots "We have held the tax line they can all proudly declare

But have they made sure, for instance, that enough money will be spent this year in maintaining our 15 and 20-year-old civic structures or facilities so we won't have to turn around in two or three years and build new ones, increasing the burden to the taxpayer?

Controller Allan Pilkey

Holding that tax line could, in some cases, very well mean this type of thing could happen. It is reasonable to assume that taxpayers would rather pay 1973 prices and a slight increase in taxes now, than 1976 prices and a big increase later

By holding the tax line politicians may well have put themselves on the spot in another way They've managed to keep taxes down this year, but what about those tax increases we can all expect once regional government is implemented

Will the narrow-minded among us question the elected representative's ability to hold the line this year but not next year, even though sufficient provincial grants have been promised?

And what of the decision process itself?

Pilkey says it took board of control about 120 hours to bring down the current budget. It took reams and reams of documented information and hours of confrontations with the staff to finally certify the budget

Aldermen on the other hand received a 53-page condensed budget document and approved it in about three hours. A document, perhaps, that some did't even understand

It is indeed unfortunate that council cannot find the time to offer more in depth discussion on the spending of almost $25 million

The public school board tried a commendable approach to its budget problems this year by holding special meeting with ratepayers, students, teachers and interested parties to get their views on how money should be spent and where

Pilkey doesn't seem to agree with this method and offers the justification that the people elect the board of control as a finance committee to look after budgetary problems

Also, one could question the way the budget is presented. In senior levels of government, if all the facts are not in about one particular piece of budget, that part can be tabled until the information is provided

At the municipal level, a councillor who doesn't feel he could vote in favor of one particular part of the budget in good conscious because of a lack of information cannot table that portion

The budget has to be accepted and adopted in full or not at all

All in all, the board of control did work hard and its budget apprears to be a good one Time, of course, will tell

In the meantime, it is really unfortunate (but only human nature,) that the people judge a municipal budget by their bank books, and not the benefit it brings the city

As Ald. Alan Dewar put it, the tax rate could have been decreased even more, but the people would really start to gripe when they began backing out of their driveways into six-foot potholes

Look at it this way. If the federal government was to say: "We're going to decrease income tax this year but maintain exactly the same levels of service we have not---no UIC welfare, foreign or domestic policy changes" How long would they last?

Operation Sweep repeated this year by CLOCA

The Central Lake Ontario Conservation Authority is again operating Project SWEEP (Students Working in an Environmental Enhancement Program) under a grant from the Ontario ministry of natural resources.

The CLOCA covers an area of some 250 square miles from Pickering Township on the west to Clarke Township on the east, north to the Ridges.

Twenty-two male and female students, 18 years and older, will be hired as laborers commencing in mid-June. Their duties will include cleanup along roads, streamsides, and lakeshore, as well as development and maintenance in conservation areas.

Public education will be stressed in conservation practices, and environmental improvement activities.

Laborers will be paid $2 an hour, plus vacation pay, and will work a 40-hour week, for a period of at least 10 weeks.

Application forms for Project SWEEP are presently available at the Central Lake Ontario Conservation Authority office at 69 King Street East, in Oshawa.

Application must be made by June 8 at the latest.

Mayor tours ball parks

By Jim Shaw
Sports Editor

Mayor Jim Potticary received a first hand look at Oshawa baseball diamonds on the weekend.

Last week in our sports pages we published a story saying the Oshawa Junior Legionaires baseball club were forced to cancel their opening game of the Leaside Baseball league as the diamond and the facilities at Kinsmen Stadium weren't ready.

Last Thursday, this writer had dinner with the mayor regarding another sporting subject and our story came up regarding the diamonds in Oshawa. Mayor Potticary took a keen interest in the complaint filed by Jim Lutton president of the Royal Canadian Legion Baseball program in Oshawa.

Potticary a supporter of all sports in Oshawa, wa upset about the remarks especially about Kinsmen Stadium and told us that he would personally investigate the problem.

On the weekend Potticary, Jim Lutton and "Dusty" Claus took a tour of the baseball diamonds in Oshawa. They visited two diamonds at Alexandra Park, Nipigon, four diamonds at the Knights of Columbus park, Lakeview and Kinsmen Stadium.

It looks as if the tour is starting to pay off", said Lutton, "as the Kinsmen Park is already under repair.

Last week 38 lights were out on the standards, the diamond wasn't in shape the caretaker didn't have a key for his room, the water wasn't on, and the dressing rooms weren't cleaned out.

These matters now seemed to be cleaned up and it's baseball as normal. It's hard to point the finger at anybody in this situation.

For the past couple of weeks now Oshawa has received an abnormal amount of rain and the parksboard naturally has to count on the weather outside to complete their work assignments.

You're fur-ther ahead to store your coat

Millie Atchison and H.A.J. Sluiter of Oshawa Furriers recommend storage of coats now that the warmer weather is approaching. This prevents the humidity from drying up the oil in the skins, causing shedding.

Proper storage or furs can double the life of a coat.

This is the opinion of H.A.J. Sluiter, owner of Oshawa Furriers on Bond Street East.

"If you don't store a coat, some may only last for 10 years when they could possibly be worn for 20," he says.

The reason for storage during the summer months, he explains, is to prevent humidity from drying up the oils in the skins of the coat which can crack and in some cases cause the fur to peal off

Most people bring their furs into Sluiter for storage during April or May, depending on the weather, and can leave the coat with him until Jan. 1 for the storage fee.

"The cost of storage is based on an evaluation of the value of the coat," he says. "There is a minimum charge of $6."

When coats are first brought to him for storage, they are looked over for the presence of moths which, if found, necessitate cleaning of the coat

"If there are moths in the coat, we have to send it to the cleaners right away because when the eggs open up the larva begin seating at the coat," says Sluiter

He says that moths are not common, however, and that he very seldom has to have coats cleaned for this reason.

"Shinerizing is a special process of cleaning for furs which cannot be done by dry cleaners," he says. "We use this method of cleaning quite often in cleaning pile coats as well."

Sluiter says that in caring for coats, he also makes minor repairs and is accomplished in remodelling and in making custom-made coats

Sluiter agrees with conservationists who criticize the fur industry for using pelts of endangered species.

"I don't think we should make coats from leopards or ocelots anymore but of course I'm in the fur business and can't agree with those who say only fun fur (imitation) should be used."

"I have read a lot of articles by conservationists who are against furriers," he says. "These same people will have a turkey on the table and a fur collar on a cloth coat."

"They're raising turkeys and chickens to eat and we're raising mink for fur."

Oldest butcher doesn't miss the good old days

Norman Allin remembers well the mud streets of Bowmanville when he started his career as a butcher there more than 60 years ago

I started my apprenticeship in 1912 and worked for T.W. Cocker for about 20 years before coming to my present location in 1939 he recalls

Still active in running the small butcher store known to Bowmanville residents as Allin and Son Meat Market Allin can remember the days when he used to make his own sausages and head cheese

We used to sell sausage at two pounds for 25 cents and head cheese for 15 cents a pound," he says. "Now sausage is about 80 cents a pound to buy.'

His business has also changed with many customers ordering meat for freezers which he and his son cut and package

There isn't the waste today, he explains since meat is more carefully trimmed and although people are buying more meat than they did 61 years ago, he says their tastes really haven't changed

We don't sell a soup bone but once in a blue moon thought he says

Another change in the butcher business is the quantity buying by restaurants and hotels of portions meat cut according to sizes

The last of the businessmen who were on main street when he first began his business Allin says that he doesn't really miss the good old days

Everyone is better off than they were then we have every convenience, he says In the butcher business we have better equipment too We used to have to use ice because there were no electric refrigerators when I started

He says that in the fall of the year butchers had nothing not even ice to keep their products cool

They would just hang it out back with no heat at all in the store

Allin also helped kill at the slaughterhouses and says that his success in the business is due to the fact that he learned butchering from the bottom up

At 75 years of age he plans to continue working as he has since 1912

You just can't sit down you've got to do something

Lawn Weedkillers

2,4-D Available in 8 oz., 16 oz. and 32 oz. cans.

You can take your choice from two — which you should choose depends on the weeds you want to control.
Our HERBATE AMINE 20, 2,4-D Weed Killer is economical and effective in controlling Dandelion, Plantain and some other broadleaf weeds commonly found in lawns.
But if you've got Chickweed, Black Medic or Creeping Charlie as well, then you need Chipman LAWN WEEDKILLER. It's a bit more expensive, but it does a whole lot more — and it goes further too. An 8 oz. can of HERBATE AMINE 20, 2,4-D treats 2,700 sq. ft. of lawn. The same quantity of our LAWN WEEDKILLER treats 3,600 sq. ft. Caution: These weedkillers should not be used on bent grass. If you're not sure if your lawn has bent grass or not, then test a small area first.
After you've sprayed your lawn, all you'll need to control the odd new dandelion or other weed, is a can of our LAWN WEED KILLER in handy aerosol foam spray form. Then it's a simple matter to treat individual weeds as they spring up.

LAWN WEEDKILLE

Available in 8 oz. and 16 oz. cans. Available in 18 oz. Aerosol Bombs.

Asthmatic children are taught proper breathing techniques through swimming.

The terror of asthma attacks is being conquered at the Civic

An asthma attack can seem like the end of the world for a child and for his parents

At least that used to be the case But now thanks to the eight-week course for asthmatic children sponsored by the Ontario County Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, both the child and the parents are learning to cope with this frightening experience

The course, being put on for the second time at the Civic Auditorium complex each Saturday is designed for two reasons The first is to teach the child not to panic when an asthma attack comes on and secondly to give parents insight into the causes and preventive measures available to them to help the child through the attack

From the parental standpoint the course offers eight weeks of lectures on all aspects of asthma including proper diet for the child and how to help the child relax when an attack comes on to be able to get through it without panic

While the parent is being filled in on the background and how they can help the children in the course this time there are 22 children going through a series of breathing and physical exercises under the supervision of physiotherapist John Brown of Toronto

Mr Brown explains that the exercises are designed to put the child in a position of physical exertion, not quite to the point of bringing on an attack, and then counterbalance this with periods of relaxation and deep-breathing

The exercises can range from running on the spot to jumping up and down until the child is almost out of breath At the end of each series of exercises the child has to relax and breathe deeply
